

CORRECT REVIEW OF BANDON'S INDUSTRIES

THE BEST TOWN IN ALL COOS COUNTY

Some Facts to Show What the "Little Town of 1400 People" Really Is.

It is not to be expected that the Coos bay end of the Coquille country will pay for the issuance of booklets that sing the praises of Superior Coquille; therefore it simply behooves this town and vicinity to get out their own pamphlets describing truthfully our many and growing industries, and advertising to the world what is an HONEST FACT, that Bandon is in reality the BEST TOWN IN COOS COUNTY TODAY.

The booklet gotten out by the two chambers of commerce on Coos bay descriptive of that territory is a very neat work of art from the printer's standpoint and is profusely illustrated with Coos bay scenes. The unexampled prosperity of Coos bay and her promising outlook for becoming the great business center of the growing Northwest are vividly portrayed, but the RECORDER man was forced to borrow a microscope to find any considerable reference to Bandon. This by dint of effort we did eventually find:

"Bandon is a prosperous town of some 1,400 people, with sawmill and shipyard, at the mouth of Coquille river."

Now, as a matter of fact, we have a population conservatively fixed at 2,500, have five sawmills whose sirens are heard every day, a woolen mill, shingle mill and broom handle factory, also planing mill, each in operation, and the shipyard referred to where two steamers are now under construction. In the fall of the year two fish canneries operate (one at Prosper), and just now a creamery is in course of erection in Bandon. The most important new industry, however, is the paper and pulp mill, at last a reality among us, a full account of which is elsewhere printed. Then there are the two steamers plying regularly between Bandon and San Francisco in addition to several schooners. A third steamer, too—the Field—will belong to the fleet after July next.

So thus is described more fully "the little town of 1400 with a sawmill and shipyard."

Mrs. W. C. Scott Dies

A copy of a newspaper published in Fillmore, Ventura county, Cal., has reached this office, and it contains news of death of Mrs. W. C. Scott, wife of a Presbyterian pastor of that city. She passed away on February 23d, and a portrait is published with the extended mention of her noble life. Rev. and Mrs. Scott were residents of Bandon for a period of five years, leaving here less than a decade ago, and will be remembered by the older residents as earnest workers in the Christian cause. Deceased was 52 years of age and the mother of two grown children.

Mrs. A. D. Morse spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents up the river, returning Monday.

No One to Die.

"I have found out that there is no use to die of lung trouble as long as you can get Dr. King's New Discovery," says Mrs. J. P. White, of Rushboro, Pa. "I would not be alive today only for that wonderful medicine. It loosens up a cough quicker than anything else and cures lung disease even after the case is pronounced hopeless." This most reliable remedy for coughs and colds, la grippe, asthma, bronchitis and hoarseness is sold under guarantee at Lowe's drug store; 50c and $1; trial bottle free.

Mr. Heuckendorf Sues

E. Heuckendorf, in a suit filed yesterday against Sudden & Christensen and others for an accounting in connection with a shipbuilding contract, found that the legal subterfuges usually employed to designate unknown parties in an action were too tame to be applied to the case at issue. He did not name the impersonal defendants, John Doe, Richard Roe and other titles of the common law, but jumped bitterly on his legal foes by calling them most of the names in the history of highwaymanship. Paul Clifford, Jack Sheppard, Jonathan Wild, Dick Turpin and Claud Duval were reincarnated by Heuckendorf in his wrath, and these "dead road agents" are now on the records of the superior court of San Francisco as persons who must account to Heuckendorf. History and theology, taken jointly, would suggest that they have given their accounting already.

Why Heuckendorf was not consistent and named the men whom he opposes in a shipbuilding deal after gentlemen of the sea, like Morgan, Captain Kidd and others of the Jolly Roger, he does not explain. He is equally silent on why Jesse James was left out of this list.—San Francisco Call.

The above belligerent plaintiff is none other than our Emil Heuckendorf, the ship builder, who was treated rather roughly by a score or so of San Francisco's waterfront capitalists. They tied our Heuckendorf hand and foot financially, but these obstacles have now been removed by a decree of the federal court of Oregon, and Mr. Heuckendorf seeks through the new complaint filed by his attorney, T. S. Minot, to recover $10,000 damages.

FACTS ANENT OUR NEW PAPER MILL

MR. MARSHALL FAMOUS IN THE BUSINESS

Southern Oregon's Great Industry Assured, and the Location Bandon.

Mr. Frank J. Marshall of New York, who is now in Bandon as the capitalist promoter of our projected paper and pulp mill, paid his respects to the RECORDER last Friday, and we found him a most affable and entertaining gentleman. Of the new enterprise, of which he is to be general manager, Mr. Marshall said:

"There is no longer a scintilla of doubt as to the outcome of this project. We have practically all the funds subscribed, and there is little to do but to proceed with the work. I have taken $10,000 of stock myself and am anxious to take more at a future date. I shall leave for New York very soon to purchase the necessary machinery. During my absence the board of directors will see to the erection of wharf and buildings on the purchased site near the shipyard above town.

"Will our industry prove a big one for Bandon? Well, it assuredly will—a big one for all Southern Coos and Northern Curry. We shall employ about sixty people in the mills, not to mention the number of men who will find work in cutting and hauling the wood pulp, for we must have daily no less than fifty cords of fir, hemlock and spruce. The abundance and cheapness of pulp material in this locality is the principal factor considered, for you must remember that eastern mills import their pulp from Germany and Norway and yet make an excellent profit. No venture, as I see it, could be more remunerative in this section than a paper and pulp mill. Look at the Oregon City mills, and they manufacture the cheaper papers whereas our specialty shall be the finer grades such as are not now made anywhere on this coast. When the Oregon City mills were built the shares were worth $100 each. I very much doubt if you can touch them today for $1000 each. We are going right ahead with our proposition regardless of any attempts by the paper trust or others to defeat our plans."

Mr. Marshall has evidently a thorough knowledge of paper manufacture in all its varied forms, and has invented machinery used in the business, as the following from the World's Paper Trade Review of Sept. 1, 1905, attests: "The pioneer of high speed trains or drives for papermaking machines was Mr. Frank Marshall of Massachusetts, U. S. A.; also in treating or beating and refining pulps, as his refiner has done more than any other invention for the elimination of the time element in the preparation of paper pulps. Each of his inventions rightly bears his name, and has rendered it famous in the paper-making world."

In another issue of the World's Paper Trade Review, published in London April 21, 1905, we find a challenge from F. J. Marshall issued to a named party or any other person of the subject of time saving in beating. Up to the present no one in England has had the courage to accept this challenge. The substance of it reads as follows:

"I will wager 200 pounds against a like sum that I can, with the Marshall Perfecting Engine, reduce the time required in beating from 65 to 85 per cent., and in some cases can dispense entirely with the beating engine. That time in beater is not necessary in order to make stuff greasy I can prove and am willing to prove it. I will state that as, one of the conditions of my challenge I will agree to take soda or sulphite pulp direct from a mixing tank and pass it through the Marshall Engine and make it more greasy than an expert can by keeping it in the beating engine for hours. I am willing to wager the 200 pounds that I can not only reduce the time in beating from 65 to 85 per cent., but at the same time will agree to make a better sheet of paper in every way after so reducing the time. Now, here seems to me to be a chance to demonstrate the new against the old.

"I am not issuing this challenge to advertise the Marshall Perfecting Engine in Great Britain, as my patent expired there a few years since. Therefore I have no interest in its sale on the other side, and am talking simply for the benefit of science. Respectfully, F. J. MARSHALL."

Nominations Filed

Nominating petitions are coming in slowly at the county clerk's office but the monotony of things is to be changed in the not very distant future, says the Coos Bay Sun. The dark horses presumably intend to break into the going when the early starters have exhausted their ginger and their "legion of friends" become calm in their support. Old patrons of the game have adopted this theory with success. It remains to be seen how it will work once more. At all events it is a fair field with no favorites and the people should have a good, large field to pick from when the "barrier goes up."

John E. Perzott of Coquille filed his petition Monday with the clerk. He wants the nomination for sheriff on the republican ticket. Other nominating petitions already filed, political complexion, residence and the office sought are as follows:

School Superintendent—W. H. Bunch, republican, of McKinley; Albert Goetz, republican, of Lee.

Sheriff—Calvin W. Wright, democrat, of Marshfield; W. W. Gage, democrat, of Coquille.

County Clerk—James Watson, republican, of Coquille.

Treasurer—J. B. Dalley, republican, of Coquille.

Assessor—T. J. Thrift, democrat, of Coquille.

Surveyor—A. N. Gould, republican, of Coquille.

The time for filing petitions will expire after 5 o'clock p. m. April 1st.

Bandon Heads the List

Bandon is the banner precinct up to date with 293 registered voters of the 1100 that have so far complied with the law to enable them to exercise their voting powers at the coming elections. On May 15, 1906, when registration books closed for the elections, there were 2704 registered voters. The registration this year should double that number and officials expect to be thoroughly busy enrolling names from this on.—Marshfield Sun.

The Wedderburn Radium tells of Captain Jacobson of the schooner Berwick being forced to stow away on the steamer Plant in order to reach San Francisco. The skipper wasn't broke; passage merely was refused him.

Geo. S. Davis of Arago has declared his intention of being a candidate on the republican ticket for the office of county commissioner.

HIGH SCHOOL TRY-OUT BIG SUCCESS

ALL THE CONTESTANTS DID CREDITABLY

Misses Langlois, Gibson and McNair to Represent at Coquille.

A very large and appreciative audience greeted the high school students at their tryout contest held at the opera house on Saturday evening. Ten students entered the contest in their maiden efforts in public speaking, and the usual stage fright going with these first efforts was wholly absent; there was not a single break or hesitation in any of the ten numbers. Each speaker was given the best of attention and received liberal applause at the close. Where all did so well no individual effort will be mentioned. They all entered into the contest with the purpose of doing their best, and they all did well. The hard work they have done in the preparation has been for them an excellent training. The contest was held for the purpose of selecting three students to represent the high school in a contest to be held with Coquille at that place. The judges were County Superintendent W. H. Bunch, Geo. P. Topping and T. B. Wheeler. The three representatives selected by the judges were, Lena Langlois, dramatic; Nora Gibson, oratorical; Ritta McNair, humorous. The following was the program:

DRAMATIC

Ebba Wren—"Jephtha's Daughter," by Willis.

Erma Craine—"Echo and the Ferry," by Jean Ingelow.

Lena Langlois—"The Famne," Longfellow's Hiawatha.

Sylvia Rackleff—"Swan Song," by Katherine Brooks.

Jessie Wood—"Genevra," by Rogers.

ORATORICAL

Nora Gibson—"The New South," by Grady.

Elisha Wilson—"The Fate of the Indian," by Sprague.

HUMOROUS

Hazel Stephenson—"Katrina's Visit to New York."

Sherman Hufford—"Sockery Setting the Hen."

Ritta McNair—"Miss Splicer Tries the Toboggan."

The singing of high school songs added not a little to the enjoyment of the evening. The students appreciate very much the public interest that was manifested in their behalf.

NOTES BY LENA LANGLOIS.

A recent letter to one of the Recorder force from an old friend in Spokane mentions F. B. Tichenor, formerly of Port Orford, as a booster for Coos and Curry of the first water, and also states that the said Tichenor recently became the father of a 12-pound girl, christened Dora Theodora. The communication also stated that Papa Tichenor set up the champagne on the event. Here's similar success and happiness to all true boosters.

The North Bend Harbor, states that the gasoline schooner Berwick of Rogue river entered Coos bay, with crippled steering gear last trip. A big green sea smashed her rudder at sea.
