One Touch of Nature Makes the Whole World Kin.
When a rooster finds a big fat worm he calls all the hens in the farm yard to come and share it. A similar trait of human nature is to be observed when a man discovers something exceptionally good—he wants all his friends and neighbors to share the benefits of his discovery. This is the touch of nature that makes the whole world kin. This explains why people who have been cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy write letters to the manufacturers for publication, that others similarly ailing may also use it and obtain relief. Behind every one of these letters is a warm, heartfelt wish of the writer to be of use to someone else. This remedy is for sale by C. Y. Lowe.

Mr. Geo. Hitchcock, superintendent of the rockwork on the Coquille river jetty is of the opinion that never has work progressed more satisfactorily than at the present time. There is no hitch in blasting, and the output of rock from the quarry is lately considerably increased, and the transfer of the rock from this side of the river to the dumping cars on the north end of Uncle Sam's improvement is admirably worked out. Mr. Hitchcock thinks as do all who have inspected the work in progress, that if the "Knocking Thomases" will only have patience, consider the good work there is being done, with proper appropriations from Congress to expedite work, they will soon see a deeper entrance to the river and a better harbor inside.

Interesting Old Items.
(From Coos Bay News)
The great question, overshadowing all others in Portland, appears to be the name of the Willamette or the Walamut. Column after column is written upon the question by the Bulletin and Oregonian, taking opposite sides; going back into the Indian sounds, and each making the matter so clear that no one can tell anything about it. Now, we have a river in our own county, just as beautiful as the river in our great Oregon valley, called the Coquille or Coquille, which? We find it spelled both ways by residents of the county and on our maps.

The remnant of Coos bay Indians had a grand pow wow at North Bend last Saturday night, occasioned by one of the old men taking a trip to the happy hunting grounds. The young braves and dusky maidens made the night hideous with their yells and howling, and at early dawn burned the house where the great sachem died. A few years more and the "noble red man" will fade like the autumn leaf. This once mighty tribe is dwindling to a few dejected creatures, who favor their ancestors only in color—and some of the younger ones not much in that.

Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup, the cough syrup that tastes nearly as good as maple sugar and which children like so well to take. Unlike nearly all other cough remedies, it does not constipate, but on the other hand it acts promptly yet gently on the bowels, through which the cold is forced out of the system, and at the same time it allays inflammation. Always use Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. Sold by Bandon Drug Co.
