DEMOCRATS PREPARE FOR CONVENTION

The Eyes of the Nation Are Now Centered Upon Denver.

THE CONVENTION WILL MEET JULY 7

The eyes of the country are now upon Denver where the Democratic national convention meets July 7th, after which the great presidential campaign which promises to be one of the hardest fought in the history of the nation will be in full blast. It is generally conceded that Bryan will be the nominee for president, although he is not the choice of Tamany and that powerful body promises that there will be something doing at the convention and there is a possibility that they may swing the convention from the "Peerless Leader," however, this is not a probability, as the Bryan people claim more than enough to nominate their man on the first ballot.

There is about as much speculation as to who will be chosen for second place as there was at the Republican convention in Chicago and the problem will probably not be solved until after the votes at the convention are counted.

Jerry B. Sullivan, of Iowa, is said to be very acceptable to Mr. Bryan, while others think there should be an eastern man on the ticket, possibly from New York, as the Republican nominee is from that state.

There is much excitement at Denver over the coming convention, as such a gathering is not as common to that city as it is to Chicago, and there is a great demand for admission tickets, and every morning the mail adds to the pressure and increases the perplexity of the men who are to dispense the admission. From present indications, it seems that every man in Colorado and all adjoining states expect to attend all the sessions, and wishes tickets for himself and friends.

Johnson men are on the ground in great force and express themselves as being pleased over reports from the east to the effect that Bryan would not be able to control votes from there. The Bryan people on the other hand, merely laugh and assert that all opposition to their man would not total more than 125 votes.

NEW LAWS ARE 12 IN NUMBER

Governor Proclaims an Even Dozen Acts Passed at Recent Election

THE LAWS HAVE BEEN PUT IN FORCE

Twelve new laws and constitutional amendments enacted by the people at the election June 1st have been in effect since Tuesday June 23rd, when Governor Chamberlain issued a proclamation declaring them to be a part of the law of the state. Sweeping changes in the affairs of the state result from the operation of some of these laws.

Hood River County is now officially in existence, the general elections will hereafter be held in November, and the District Attorneys are shorn of their power to indict persons accused of crime. The Sheriff of Multnomah County has the right to feed the county prisoners at 12 1-2 cents a meal.

The legislature is instructed by a law having a majority of 48,506 to vote for the people's choice for United States Senator. The day of the political worker at the polls is past, and the men who have at previous elections loaded the voter with cards of the different candidates can no longer work on election day. The Huntley corrupt practices act, which has a majority of 22,741, prohibits all efforts to influence voters on election day.

Hereafter campaigns are to be conducted through the Secretary of State and State Printer, so far as advertising is concerned. The State Printer is to make pamphlets setting forth the claims of the various candidates as to why they be elected. The cost of the pamphlets is to be borne by the candidates, who are to pay from $50 to $100 a page for their space. The Secretary of State will mail the pamphlets to the registered voters a few days before the primaries and another set shortly before the general election.

Primary elections for the nomination of state and county officers will in the future be held in September, the primary law fixing the time for holding the primaries at the 45th day before any general election. The general election being changed to November, carries the primaries over to the early fall. The Governor's proclamation makes both fish bills effective, so that Columbia River fishing is strictly regulated on both the upper and lower rivers.

The laws proclaimed by the Governor are as follows: Changing location state institutions.

Changing time of election. Sheriff to feed prisoners. University appropriation. Wheelman's fish bill. Recall public officials. People's choice for U. S. senator. Proportional representation. Corrupt practice act. Gillnetter's fish bill. Indictment by grand jury only. Creating Hood River County.

A Life's Striking Object Lesson.

Grover Cleveland's life presents a striking object lesson to the American boy. It was from a very lofty height that the ex-president fell to the grave. All the honors that life could give had fallen to him. His last days were those of dignified repose, full of the confidence of his countrymen, a lofty figure in the republic, and the chief and beloved citizen in the university town of Princeton. Such activities as he had were as a trusted adviser in the councils of the great university, and as a stable and absolutely honest trustee in one of the great reformed life insurance companies.

Whatever may be the estimate of Cleveland's constructive statesmanship, he had to his credit in his retirement, the enduring monument of the Monroe doctrine, which, with a courage that startled Christendom and brought the great British nation at the feet of America, he, more than any other man, wrote in ineffable letters into the international law of the world. When Mr. Cleveland sent his famous note to Great Britain declaring our government proposed to assume the right and would, whether Great Britain be willing or unwilling, investigate and determine the Venezuelan boundaries, regardless of what the consequences might be he awoke world reverberations that time will never still. It forced the acknowledgment by Great Britain of the Monroe doctrine as a fixed policy, and constituted an unparalleled triumph in American diplomatic achievement.

To have done this, to have risen, step on step, to the presidency of the republic, to have lived as he lived in a lofty and conspicuous retirement in his last days, and to have had for his start in all this, a youth of poverty, self-denial, studying at night by a candle light in a grocery store, and supporting a widowed mother at 17, is a beacon-light of beautiful glow to every American boy. Like Lincoln splitting rails, like Garfield driving a canal boat, like Grant in the tannery and as a bankrupt merchant, Cleveland rose from the ranks of the great commonality, and it is an inspiration to American youth to love our land, because it is free and wide open, and to aim high and strike hard.—Journal.

The young couple are among Lampa's most highly respected young people, and they have the best wishes of a large circle of friends for a long and prosperous journey through life.

They will be at home to their friends in their new residence recently erected at Lampa.

Business Picks Up.

From the Boston Globe. On every hand are signs that business is picking up, and that the panic of last year, which seemed at the time to have knocked the bottom entirely out of prosperity's dinner pail, was more artificial than real.

Every day's news reports tell of this or that big factory, mill or foundry resuming full time with a full force.

Panics generally come with a thud, while prosperity steals upon us so gradually that many people do not hear her footfall until she is at their elbow.

Even the professional pessimist can hear her this time if he makes half an effort at listening.

STATE BANKERS MEET AT SALEM

Large Attendance of Financiers at the Capital City

THEY ARE GIVEN FREEDOM OF TOWN

Report comes from Salem that the Banker's Convention has filled the city with solid looking gentlemen representing the banking houses of Oregon with a sprinkling of well dressed delegates from the larger cities, such as Chicago New York and San Francisco.

The Elks hall where the convention was called to order at 11 a. m. was lavishly decorated with flags and roses, and the Willamette hotel, which is designated as headquarters, is also beautifully dressed with flowers, the gift of public spirited citizens.

The meeting is one of the most important ever held in the state as the bankers have been discussing plans for relieving the financial difficulties over the state with very good results.

The banks of Oregon are for the most part on a solid financial basis with no signs of distress in the market of the state.

A Quiet Fourth.

Bandon will have a quiet Fourth this year as it was not thought best to celebrate, but give other towns a chance to get the crowds of once. A great many of our people will probably go to Coquille, while others will spend the day quietly at home, or down on the beach. Some will probably have a quiet picnic party, and it is a sure thing that all will have a good time. In the evening there will be a dance at the Oriental Hall for the benefit of the band, the music will be furnished by the Seaside Orchestra. Tickets, $1.00 This dance will no doubt be well attended as the people in general are very friendly to the band.
