Wordless Sermons.

We complain bitterly, and with much reason, at the reigning spirit of itensified commercialism. In its mad scurry for gain, it strives to obliterate time, and conquer distance. It takes the child from the cradle and ties it to a machine. It transforms the world into a workhouse, and despises leisure. It drives lives into hard lines, and has little mood for mellowed hours.

But the system is not all fault. It has delivered the most effective sermons ever preached on prohibition. When the big railroad systems notified their employes that they must forego intoxicants or lose their positions, there were thousands of instantaneous conversions to the cause. There was in addition, a significant warning to all young men that gradually the doors of employment are closing to drinkers. No pulpiteer in a lifetime of sermons ever drove so many nails in the coffin lid of intemperance It was an unpulpited sermon preached by the spirit of commercialism and the surviving fittest.

Others like it have been preached by great manufacturing and mercantile establishments. It is a move everywhere. It is the sanest of sanity, and for that reason is spreading and extending to the minor establishments and industrial places. The crowd in the electric car is imperiled when the hand and brain of the motorman are unsteady. The depositor's funds in the bank are jeopardized when the cashier's brain is ever wine-soaked. There is no place in the activities of life where an intoxicated man is useful.

Carrying the theory further, Superintendent Vanderhoeff of an Ely, Nevada, mine recently delivered a wordless sermon on cigarettes. A notice posted at his mine warns cigarette smokers not to apply for employment. He believes those who do not smoke cigarettes can give better service than those who do, and that is the reason for his action. He wants results. All captains of industry want results. All employes want results, in this tense, steel-strung commercial day.—Journal.

THINKS IT SAVED HIS LIFE

Lester M. Nelson, of Naples, Maine, says in a recent letter: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery many years, for coughs and colds, and I think it saved my life. I have found it a reliable remedy for throat and lung complaints, and I would no more be without a bottle than I would be without food." For nearly forty years New Discovery has stood at the head of throat and lung remedies. As a preventive of pneumonia, and healer of weak lungs, it has no equal. Sold under guarantee at Lowe's Drug store 50 c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

"Uncle Remus" Dead

Joe Chandler Harris who became famous over the pen name of "Uncle Remus" died at Atlanta, Ga., July 2. Mr. Harris was in his sixtieth year. He first achieved recognition as a writer when he started a series of animal stories in the Constitution, in which "Brer Rabbit" was always the hero. At that time he was twenty-eight years of age. Many years ago the royalties of his books made him financially independent, but for a long time the love of newspaper work kept him busy as an editorial writer. Finally, however he retired from newspaper work and devoted his whole time to his books. Recently he became connected with a magazine bearing his name, assuming editorial control of it.

BADLY SPRAINED ANKLE CURED

Three years ago our daughter sprained her ankle and had been suffering terribly for two days and nights—had not slept a minute, Mr. Stallings, of Butler, Tenn., told us of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. We went to the store that night and got a bottle of it and bathed her ankle two or three times and she went to sleep and had a good night's rest. The next morning she was much better and in a short time could walk around and had no more trouble with her ankle—E. M. Brummit, Hampton, Tenn. 5 and 50 cent sizes for sale by C. Y. Lowe.
