

Band Concert

Regardless of the wind and dust and other features characteristic of the Pacific Coast Climate several hundred people journeyed to Band Park Sunday afternoon to attend the opening concert by the Bandon Concert Band, and were highly entertained for a couple of hours, by the two dozen pieces composing the band.

The selections numbering ten, including a trombone solo, Stephen Adam's Holy City, by Mr. L. Sutherland, were well rendered and evoked great applause.

As the band is no new luxury in Bandon we hardly need to repeat the facts so well known as to the proficiency and the ability of Prof. Kausrud as a director. It is understood that the band will give a concert every Sunday afternoon when there are no other attractions in town and the citizens will certainly appreciate the fact as was evidenced by the large crowd in attendance Sunday afternoon.

Souvenir Postcards

In speaking of souvenir postcards of Bandon have noticed several scenes recently taken, and by all evidences, either taken by flash light after midnight or just about sunrise since no signs of life are visible, except a horse tied in front of Lewin's meat market, and perhaps a human being in front of the K. of P. Hall.

With no offense to the photographer it might be well to make the suggestion that the next time First St. Bandon, Ore., poses for a picture to go on a souvenir postcard, that the same be done sometime during the day when there is something doing. This would create the impression on the receiver of the post card in the outside world that Bandon is inhabited by the human race and not a deserted village, over which the buffalo and the Comanche Indians roam at will.

Who got the Deer?

Last week three of Bandon's prominent business men shouldered their trusty rifles and walked seven or eight miles in the wilds of Coos County, with the determination of slaughtering game for household purposes, thereby cutting down the meat bill for August.

We are informed that one of the party succeeded in bringing down a fine buck and with the assistance of his comrades got the trophy safely to his home, and that was as far as it got. Anyhow the two were seen talking to themselves with a very disgusted look on their countenances Thursday. No doubt the strains of the little song entitled "Much Obligated to You," was ringing in their ears.

Bandon Bloomer Girls

Last Saturday afternoon a number of Bandon's fair sex, donned the base ball suits and proceeded to play a regulation nine inning game of baseball. Miss B acted in the capacity of pitcher, while Miss C caught all the "flies." Both girls played good ball and with a little practice would no doubt make professionals. The first two girls up on Miss G's side struck out but the third succeeded in getting to first and making a home run which deserves considerable credit. Miss L made a two base hit and Miss M and Miss C M each made a three base hit. Miss Q landed a three bagger but the umpire called it a foul, which angered the girls and a general jangle ensued. The umpire stoutly maintained his decision and after considerable parleying the game was again resumed.

Miss N, captain and catcher of the opposing side, broke the world's record by making six successive home runs in the last two innings. In the meantime several incidental plays had been made which helped both teams some and tied the score it being 9 to 9. However, it is reported, that Miss N's side played better ball but the score would indicate that they were pretty evenly matched. As to whom all the players were we could not learn.

neither could an official score be obtained.

"Which side won?" Why, nobody seems to know.

A Question In Kind.

New evidence that William IV. of England fulfilled the saying "Once a sailor, always a sailor," is found in "Leaves From the Journal of Sir George Smart."

In 1834 Sir George presided over the musical festival in Westminster abbey. The king and Queen Adelaide were present, and the king, as was his wont, slumbered peacefully whenever the music was sufficiently soft to permit it.

While the duet for basses was being sung in "Israel In Egypt" the queen woke him up suddenly by remarking, "What a fine duet—"The Lord Is a Man of War!"

The king, not thoroughly awake, caught only the last words. "How many guns does she carry?" he eagerly asked.

An Economical Suitor.

It was fair time in Selkirk, and Sandy and his sweetheart were wandering round arm in arm, enjoying the sights. Presently they espied a smart looking pie shop, which they promptly entered. Sandy ordered one pie and sat down and commenced to eat it. Meanwhile the girl looked shyly on.

"Is't fine, Sandy?" she timidly asked.

"Aye, 'tis awful fine, Jennie," he answered. "Ye should buy one!"—Penny Pictorial.

An Exchange of Compliments.

Judge Charles P. Daly of New York was a charming conversationalist as well as a model citizen and an accomplished jurist. He met the Duke of Wellington once, and the duke remarked to him that he seemed too young to be on the bench.

"I owe my position," replied Judge Daly, "to one of those accidents of fortune to which your grace owes so little."

"I recall my criticism," said the duke grimly. "You are doubtless where you belong."
