Oregon Life Has Unequaled Record

Showing an increase in business of $747,867 in a single year, and an aggregate of $2,262,367 in a little more than the two years of its existence, the Oregon Life Insurance Company, according to President A. L. Mills's annual report, has smashed all records for growth. Mr. Mills read the report at the annual meeting and election of officers yesterday, and called attention to the fact that practically all of the local companies had been left in the rear by the home company. This growth, the president stated, was due to the safe conservative lines upon which the company was builded.

"It was not intended," said Mr. Mills, "that Oregon Life should have a meteoric career, starting the business world with gilded promises impossible of fulfillment, and that, in the end would have to be repudiated."

"Investments of the company are of such a high character that the most conservative financial institution would not hesitate a moment to approve them; though the securities are gilt edged, nevertheless the average return is 2.06 per cent a year.

"Our surplus to policy-holders is now $106,230, and our excess of income over every disbursement (which includes death loss) has increased from $19,376 in 1907 to $34,383 in 1908."

The safety of investment in life insurance as a general proposition is commented upon, and attention is called to the fact that only 15 per cent of the insurable people of Oregon carry policies in regular companies.

Million Given by Mrs. Vanderbilt

New York March 8.—Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Sr., has given more than $1,000,000, it was announced recently, for the erection of four model tenements for persons suffering with tuberculosis. The buildings are to be operated in connection with Dr. Henry L. Shively's tuberculosis clinic of the Presbyterian hospital. A moderate rental will be charged.

The buildings will be erected on a large plot close to the East river. They will be provided with ample light shafts, large courts and attractive roof parlors and gardens, will be six stories in height and contain about 375 apartments of from one to five rooms and bath each.

Strange Human Nature

"Hit's a mighty strange thing," said Brother Williams, "dat w'en we lays up treasures in heaven we still spends all we got on earth wid de doctors to keep us from gwine whar it is! We pray erbout it and sing erbout it, street are gol and milk an' honey, but somehow or other we don't feel like walkin' on a shiny pavement, an' milk an' honey don't seem ter suit our appetite! I reckon it's des po' human natur' showin' up whar hit's least expected. We is all weak critters."—Atlanta Constitution.

The Gamblers' Last Stand

As a state, Nevada is the gamblers' last stronghold, and the moral sentiment of the country is about to carry the position. A drastic anti gambling law has passed the Nevada Assembly and is now before the Senate for consideration. It is aimed at the professional gambler, and it properly designates him by common notoriety. If diamonds, purple and fine linen be his insignia, and he cannot show the properly constituted authorities that he enjoys an income or follows a business by which he came do these things honestly—if he should live and flourish as the green-bay tree and there should be no visible means of support, the presumption will be against him under the new anti-gambling law. He will find himself liable to arrest and prosecution as a gambler.

There are a number of other provisions that completely cover the field to the discouragement of gambling as a business in Nevada. It is evident from the text of the measure and the substantial majority by which it passed the Assembly, that public sentiment in the Sagebrush State is determined to put the gambler out of commission.

If the bill under discussion passes the Nevada Senate—and from all reports there seems to be little doubt of that—the anti-gambling crusade, legally conducted, will have established itself in every state and territory except Alaska. There will be in the United States proper no place where the professional gambler may follow his nefarious calling without having to fight for it. Of course gambling will not be suppressed in Nevada more than in any other state; but it will be put under the ban, driven to cover and reduced to a much lesser evil than when openly conducted.—Telegram.

Bank to Open

R. H. Mast announced Wednesday that the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Coquille would open its doors for business on Monday next unless unexpected delay occurs in the arrival of supplies from Portland. This institution was incorporated two years ago, but the arrival of the financial crisis at that time put a stop to the proposition, but now that times have improved, the directors deem it safe and expedient to open for business. The new bank will open with a capital stock of $25,000, entirely held by local parties.

R. S. Knowlton is president, G. A. Robinson vice-president, and R. H. Mast cashier. The directors are R. S. Knowlton, Geo. A. Robinson, R. H. Mast, E. E. Johnson and Geo Belloni.

Temporarily the bank will occupy the east part of the Leneve building and use the old Leneve vault for safe deposit purposes. No definite plans have been made regarding the disposition of the bank property on the opposite corner, but it is expected that the building will be completed some time this year and permanent quarters established there.—Sentinel.

Food, For Instance

The unfortunate paterfamilias already had a family of ten, of both sorts and sizes, and it was as much as he could do to find bread and butter for them all, when there were signs of the approach of another olive branch. He broke this gently to the children, and they received the news in silence, except one missie of some ten summers, who said, with a sigh: "Well, I suppose it can't be helped, papa; but there's lots of things we wanted more."
