Attractions at Seattle Fair

Right now the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition is the magnet that is attracting thousands of people from eastern, southern, and middle western states to the Pacific Coast partly for the reason that the exhibition will open up a new line of thought with its great displays from Alaska, Hawaii and the Philippines as well as the Orient, and partly because of the much advertised scenic beauties of the states bordering on the Pacific.

The state of Washington and more particularly the Puget Sound country will soon be the mecca for trainloads of strangers. But Washington will not hold the visitors for an indefinite period for they have something in mind further than a visit to the exposition at Seattle.

There are opportunities on the Pacific Coast for the homeseeker as well as the merchant and manufacturer and the visitors to the fair intend to see just what Oregon Idaho, Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, Nevada, Oklahoma, as well as British Columbia, have to offer in the way of inducements to settlers. Of course the tourists will be here in large uumbers and their itinerary early always includes all the mountains, lakes and seaside resorts of the Northwest.

The exposition itself is going to open the eyes of the thousands of visitors who will come to Seattle expecting to find an exhibition very similar to what has been offered before. The Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition is not going to be remembered after its gates close because of its great size or by the number of its buildings, but because of the beautiful picture formed by the work of the builder and landscape artist, framed in by lakes, mountains and woodland scenery distributed lavishly on every hand by nature.

At this time, more than two months before the official date of opening, the buildings stand complete, the streets are paved and now the exhibits to fill acres of space are arriving in Seattle. Canada's magnificent exhibit that attracted the attention of thousands of visitors to the France-British Exhibition at London last year has arrived in Seattle and from Italy comes several carloads of rare exhibits for the foreign section and big manufacturing concerns throughout the United States are forwarding their displays direct to the exposition grounds where now a long row of heavily laden freight cars waiting to be unloaded is a daily scene.

Within thirty days every exhibit building on the ground will be well filled and the United States government will have its display in readiness early in May. When the gates of of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition open June 1, 1903, the show will be complete in every detail, an example of western spirit and enterprise.

Farm at the Fair

A minature farm has been established at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition where the products of the state will be cultivated as an object lesson to the visitors to the fair at Seattle this summer. It is hoped that such a farm will do much towards increaing interest in the clearing of logged off lands of the state.

On the exposition grounds is a producing farm in every stage of its evolution from the country as the timber cutter has left it, showing practical demonstrations of the several methods of clearing. This it is believed will lead to a brisk demand among the eastern visitors to the fair for the logged off lands of the state.

To create further interest excursions will be run to the various sections of the state where the logged off lands are fast being converted into great producing farms. The minature farm at the exposition will suggest the possibility of development and the excursions to places where such work is being done on a large scale will no doubt meet with the approval of thousands of visitors to the 1909 exposition as well as their patronage, after they see the land as it really is.

There will also be demonstrations of the wonderful productiveness of the virgin soil of the state which will stand greatly in contrast with the worked out farms of the east. This condition will commend itself to the eastern farmer who visits the fair. The very fact alone that two crops of potatoes can be produced every year on the same ground in the Puget Sound country is a fac that will probably surprise many easterners:

The minature farm has been platted into small rectangular blocks which have afforded an excellent opportunity for the good roads instructors and landscape artists to sow the germs of modern road construction and the art of beautifying the farms which will have the effect of making life on the farm and in the country more attractive. Practical demonstrations of berry raising will also be made on the model farm.

Harvey W. Scott.

It appears quite possible that Harvey W. Scott of Oregon may become United States ambassador to Mexico. The announcement is that Mr. Scott was offered the distinguished position by President Taft shortly after the inauguration. If the appointment shall be made, it will be a deserved recognition of the commonwealth of Oregon. It will, in addition, be a merited reward for a talented and accomplished man. This newspaper has had, and still has, many reasons for dissent from the personal and political views of Mr. Scott. In a general way its views on civic standards and govermental policies are as widely at variance with those of Mr. Scott as are the antipodes.

It is, however, easy for the Journal to see many reasons why Mr. Scott has fairly earned the distinguished position that has been offered him. In mental attainments there are few men in the country who approach the standard of Mr. Scott. His search amid the sources of knowledge has been extended, vigorious and profound. The wide range of his information and the character of his talents are abundant preparation for an ambassadorship. His career itself is a token of his merit for the position that is to be bestowed. In the rude life of the pioneer he undertook as a boy the difficult task of his own education. Without aid, and amid manifold discouragements, he pushed his hopes to a fruition and became a graduate of a pioneer university. To this laudable achievement, he has added a life of toil in which at more than three score and ten, there is about him that abundant comfort that perseverance and frugality have worthily won. In such a ltfe, with such a beginning, and with such a fruiiton, there is typified the Oregon pioneer spirit in its finished form. It is a life that has fairly earned ambassadorship, and if later advices shall confirm his naming and acceptance, this newspaper will applaud. Mr. Scott is one of Oregon's most distinguished sons and the honor conferred upon him is an honor conferred upon Oregon.—Journal.

Quartz Gold

Considerable interest has been excited in Myrtle Point recently over the appearance here of quantities of quartz gold that come from a section of the country not definitely known, nor is the finder of the mine known for a certainity, but it is expected that there will be a reminder of high days in some of the best mining sections. Whoever it is that has made the find is evidently keeping very quiet about it until his discovery is secured from intrusion.

The first sample to excite comment contained about $2.50 worth of gold; then a few weeks later over five ounces of the precious mineral came in, which at $18 an ounce would amount to more than $100. It is evidently quartz gold and has been pounded out of the rocks by the use of a mortar. It is rumored that it came from the Enchanted Prairie district, and there are many who believe that the mother lode, so long sought in this section, has finally been discovered. If it has there will be something doing when details of the find are given out.—Enterprise.

Epworth League Convention

Seattle, Wash, April 27—With the spirit of enterprise and accomplishment manifested in all its undertakings, Seattle is preparing to take care of the International Convention of Epworth Leagues, which meets in Seattle July 7 to 12, and extends to all of the 1,500,000 Epworth Leaguers a cordial invitation to attend.

Seattle is a Western gem, still somewhat in the rough in exteriors but as well governed and as moral as any city in the East. It is beautifully situated on Puget Sound, an arm of the Pacific Ocean, with the beautiful Cascade mountains on the East and the rugged Olympics on the West. It is a city of inspiring views and full of interest from a commercial standpoint; its waterfront scenes and the great public public works now in progress being of unique attractiveness.

The 200,000 people of Seattle are largely transplanted Easterners, Southerners and Canadians. They represent the pioneer elements of those people and are the well from which the Seattle spirit—the spirit which makes Seattle famous for the accomplishment of great things. The latest evidence of this spirit will be found by visitors in the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition which will be one of Seattle's attractions this summer. The exposition will be the most unique ever given on the American continent and there is every indication that it will be both artistically and financially successful. The natural surroundings of the exposition grounds are certainly the most beautiful in which any American exposition has ever been held, as beautiful views of lakes and mountains can be had from many points on the grounds. The architecture is good and the fair will be ready June 1, with buildings and exhibits valued at over $50,000,000. July 12th will be Epworth League Day at the Exposition.

For Obeyance of Law

San Francisco, Calif. Apr. 15—Mr. J. Frank Moroney, Chairman of the California Branch of the National Model License League, announces that the trade convention of all of the wine and spirit interests of the Pacific Coast, which was to have been held in San Francisco May 10. has been postponed to May 17. The change in date is due to the fact that the time originally selected conflicts with other conventions to be held in San Francisco.

The object of the convention is to form the Coast trade into a gigantic organization that will work in concert against prohibition and in favor of the proper regulation of the liquor business on the Coast.

Mr. Moroney has been an ardent advocate of model license since the national organization formulated restrictive laws and he is convinced that all that is required to preserve the wine and spirit interests of the Coast is united action on the part of the trade in favor of all measures that will guarantee obedience to law and respect for public sentiment.

At the convention the national body will be represented by Capt. D. M. Smith, General Counsnl of the League, who will deliver an address on the legal and political phases of the liquor problem.
