was a romantic one. She was first marrled to Gustav Modzejewski, by whom she had one son, Ralph. Her second marriage was with Count Bozenta in 1868. The count was exiled from Poland, in 1876, for his political writings and his wife was forbidden to appear on the Polish stage. The couple came to this country and were naturalized, the countess taking as her stage name a modified form of the name of her first husband. Her debut in this country was made in San Francisco in

In happy contradiction ot the fate of many great artists she did not die poor. She earned during her stage career a million dollars, but gave to charity with an open hand. She founded an industrial school for girls in Cracounted for the disposal of the larger part of her earnings. She left an estate amounting to about $120,000.

In spite of the decree of exile pronounced against her husband, and despite the decree, issued after she had delivered an address at the World's Fair in Chicago on Russian-Polish politics, barring her from all Russian possessions, it is her husband's intention to take the body back to her native town of Cracow for burial.

father was Thomas Crawford, the noted sculptor whose "Liberty" is on top of the Capitol at Washington. His mother was a sister of Julia Ward Howe and of Sam Ward, the author. Young Crawford spent much of his life in Italy, where he was born, returning time and again after his wanderings over the earth, and there he finally married and made his home He attended St. Paul's at Concord, N. H., and later entered Trinity College. Cambridge, still later going to Heidelberg. He made a deep study of many languages through his travels.

Though he spent most of his years after marriage in Italy, he made several visits to this country. His chief recreation was yachting and he held a professional master's certificate from the Association of American Ship Masters and from the United States Marine Board. He wrote an astounding number of novels, having produced one every year from the time he wrote the first in 1881, and sometimes three in twelve months. He wrote only one play, which was produced by Sarah Bernhardt in Paris.

Blatter. ONLY ONE OF HIS KIND.

Mr. Clarke was formerly a passenger brakeman on the New York Central. Now he is something different and there is no name for him yet. His vocation is an entirely new one.

The liveliest hotel in Buffalo furnishes free electric cab service for its guests to and from depots, wharves or wherever else they may land or wish to depart from, and also around the city. Now it has added Mr. Clark, says the New York Morning Telegraph. It is Mr. Clarke's business to travel, mostly to New York, but Pittsburg, Cleveland, Chicago and several other big cities are in his line. All he has agents, hotel clerks and folks like that DR. T. P. WISE and get acquainted.

If any person is leaving a New York hotel and going to Buffalo it is Mr. Clarke's business to know it. He gets 208-209 Merchants Trust Building cquainted, tells him all about the hotel he represents and assures him of personal attention if he will only come.

Mr. Clarke's efforts have resulted in from fifteen to fifty people going to the house that employs him every day since he has been on the job. He does not know what to call himself, but it was suggested that he be christened "the smiling front," he is certainly there with that good-natured smile of his. "It's easy," Mr. Clarke said, when asked how he worked. "When a guest comes with my card he always hunts me up. Of course I look after him, see he is satisfied and that he has a good time while in Buffalo. I never thought of going out as traveling representative of a hotel before, but I like it. It certainly is something new. They'll all be doing it soon."
