

American Progress

Pursuing the Manufacturers' Record's recent articles on "American Progress a little farther," we must think in billions to comprehend the meaning of the material development of this country. Our population is now nearly 90,000,000. It will increase in the next ten years to probably 106,000,000. Wealth last year $129,000,000,000, will in 1918 be over $200,000,000,000. A gain of $5,000,000,000 more than the total wealth of the country no longer ago than 1890. Twenty years ago the agricultural output of the country was $2,400,000,000. This year it is over $8,000,000,000. At the same rate of increase in 1918 it will be over $15,000,000,000. But even if this rapid increase shall not be steadily maintained, the amount ten years hence will not be less than $13,000,000,000.

In 1890, $6,525,000,000 was invested in manufacturing; in 1908 $16,000,000,000. The products of manufacturers increased from $3,362,000,000 to twenty billion dollars. Ten years hence the figures will be, respectively, about $27,000,000,000 and $33,000,000,000. In the three great industries of lumber, coal and pig iron, making due allowance for the panic of 1907-8 similar enormous increases are seen and are in prospect.

Railroad mileage has not increased in proportion to other things, but the volume of freight carried and gross incomes have pretty nearly done so. In tonnage there was an increase from 1890 to 1908 of 52 per cent, to a total of 215,000,000,000 mile tons, but this increase will be more rapid hereafter. It would have been greater heretofore but for the shortage in transportation facilities, which has halted new enterprises, stopped the enlargement of existing plants, delayed the opening of coal mines and greatly lessened the aggregate volume of freight that would have been available. And it is to be feared that another period of "shortage" is approaching.

But however and whatever the checks and drawbacks, and occasional spasms of "loss of confidence" and "stringency" and "depression," it is a wonderfully grandly growing country, and its growth will be still greater and more splendid as the years, the lustres and the decades fade into the dim and illimitable ocean of the past.—Journal.

Why Druggists Recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy

Mr. Frank P. Hanrahan, a prominent druggist of Portsmouth, Va., says: "For the past six years I have sold and recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is a great remedy and one of the best patent medicines on the market. I handle some others for the same purposes that pay me a larger profit, but this remedy is sure to effect a cure, and my customer so certain to appreciate my recommending it to him, that I give it the preference." Science Indorses Air Baths

The conditions and conventions of our civilization demand consequent bathing. It is popularly supposed that this frequent bathing is essential to health.

This is quite untrue, says a writer in the Medical Journal. We have seen fine and vigorous men among the habitants of Canada who had never taken a full bath in their lives. Were the truth known many thousands of our fellow citizens probably know nothing of the alleged benefits of the tub, though maintaining excellent average health. Such people do not present the fresh and pleasant appearance of the frequent bather, however long lived they may be. Is not, however, much of the benefit attributed to the water in reality due to the complete exposure of the skin to the air?

The respiratory function of the skin is of high importance, and although water may be dispensed with closing the pores to the air would result in speedy asphyxiation. The historic instance of the boy who impersonated John the Baptist in a medieval procession and whose body was covered with gold leaf with rapidly fatal results is proof.

The ice-cold bath is a superstition; it is a pastime for the abnormally vigorous, not desirable for the average civilized man. A bath not too cold is really an agreeable stimulant as well as being a luxury. The feeling of well-being after a bath can hardly be obtained in any other way, and the rapid multiplication of tubs in hotels and private residences, soon to approach one to the individual, shows how they are appreciated.

Those persons, however, whose travels in the provinces or into the desert may temporarily deprive them of sufficient water for bathing may find a substitute that will at least afford a part of their accustomed enjoyment. The body may be energetically rubbed with a brush or coarse Turkish towel and afterward exposed to the air for 15 minutes or so. The accustomed feeling of vigor will follow and the process will be found by the uninitiated to be astonishingly cleansing.

BEST TREATMENT FOR A BURN
If for no other reason, Chamberlain's Salve should be kept in every household on account of its great value in the treatment of burns. It allays the pain almost instantly, and unless the injury is a severe one, heals the part without leaving a scar. This salve is also unequalled for chapped hands, sore nipples and diseases of the skin. Price 25 cents. For sale by C. Y. Lowe.

Change in Mail Route

Bids are asked for a proposed change in mail route, which if accepted by the department means the abandonment of the Roseburg service and putting on a 23 hour service between here and Drain. The bidder is asked to furnish a $13,000 bond with his bid which will be opened the 26th. The only advantage we can see over the present route is that during the winter months the Drain route is preferable, as at no time of the year are the roads impassable, while between here and Roseburg the roads frequently become impassable, even for pack horses, the mails being delayed from one to three days. Under the present management the Roseburg route gives us splendid service, and since miles of planking have been laid a much better service might be expected this winter.

Postmaster Russell believes it the department's intention to send mail of the second and third class in here by steamer, and route only first class matter over the stage. This, however, is not specified in the bids asked.

We understand that no little dissatisfaction has been caused by the proposed change and that an effort will be made to have the department reconsider the matter.—Harbor.

Good for Biliousness

"I took two of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets last night, and I feel 50 per cent better than I have for weeks," says J. J. Firestone, of Allegan, Mich. "They are certainly a fine article for biliousness." For sale by C. Y. Lowe. Samples free.

Roosevelt as Finisher of Canal

New Orleans, Sept. 7.—Former President Roosevelt is to take charge of the work of pushing the Panama canal to completion, according to a report current in official circles in Panama. This statement was made here today by T. W. Harrison of Columbus. Harrison is attached to the engineering department of the canal, and has just arrived here.

He declared that President Taft was not dissatisfied with the present canal administration, but had already arranged for Colonel Roosevelt to take charge of the work when he returns from his hunting trip in Africa.

Colonel Roosevelt is exceedingly popular at the isthmus, Harrison said.

Pacific Coast Elk Larger Than Any Other

University of Oregon, Eugene, Sept. 8.—That the elk of Curry, Coos, Douglas and other Oregon Coast counties, and those of Western Washington, are larger and heavier than the elk of Wyoming and Colorado is the belief of J. A. Sawyer, county treasurer of Douglas county, and an authority on deer, elk and other game of the Oregon coast district, recognized by the chief hunting journals of the United States. The bull elk of the coast ranges sometimes weigh as much as 1200 pounds. The difference in weight of the average elk of the two regions is about 200 pounds.

"The reason for the difference is the conditions under which the elk of the regions live and feed," said Mr. Sawyer. "For four or five months in the year the Rocky Mountain elk, especially when developing and growing, leads a life of hardship. Whether he lives at all is a question so great that philanthropic sportsmen now feed the herds. On the other hand, the elk of the coast district have during the winter no cold, and snow, but an abundant amount of shoots and young leaves on which to subsist. The elk, like the deer of Oregon, browse more than feed, though both animals can live on the diet of cattle and horses.

Why?
From a small beginning the sale and use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has extended to all parts of the United States and to many foreign countries. Why? Because it has proved especially valuable for coughs and colds. For sale by C. Y. Lowe.

Prehistoric Bones Found

Pendleton, Sept. 6.—Portions of skeleton of some unknown prehistoric animal of unusually huge proportions have been unearthed by Orville Elder, on his farm in Despain Gulch, about 18 miles northwest of Pendleton. To convince his skeptical friends that his find is genuine, Elder brought in a tooth which is 14 inches long and has a chewing surface 7 x 3 1/2 inches.

The molar is in a fairly good stage of preservation, but Elder says that most of the other bones crumble to pieces as rapidly as they are removed from the earth. There are some pieces of the ribs which are six or eight feet long, however, and as all the bones seem to be of like gigantic proportions, the animal must have weighed many tons.

A peculiar feature of the find was the remnant of a sort of horn on the nose which would seem to indicate the animal belonged to some extinct specie not unlike the rhinoceros.

Lost Lads Found at Haystack Rock

Seaside, Or., Sept. 7.—Roy Hatfield and Jack Adams, two Portland youths for whose safety grave fears have been felt for a few days, are reported safe at Haystack Rock on Cannon Beach, and they will reach Seaside this evening. A week ago, the two young men, both 18 years old, left their camp in this place, embarking for Tillamook head.

No word coming from them, it was decided last evening that they were lost, and a searching party was on the point of leaving here to look for them, it being thought that they had been wrecked at Tillamook Head, when word was received that the boys were safe and ready to return to Seaside.

Roy Hatfield is a son of Horace Hatfield, of 507 Washington street, Portland, and his companion is also a resident of that city.

At 82 He Begins Eighty-third Prison Term

Although he is 82 years old, William Morton will begin his eighty-third term in prison in a few days. In Special Sessions Court yesterday he was sentenced for one year, having been convicted of stealing several pairs of women's stockings from a Sixth-avenue department store. For years Morton has been a law-breaker. Lately he has confined his operations to shoplifting and in the last three years he has been in the penitentiary four times.

Salem Has $36,000 Fire

Salem, Ore. Sept. 7.—A fire which was discovered at 11 o'clock tonight in the basement of J. L. Stockton's department store at Court and Commercial streets in the heart of the business district, burned through a portion of the floor and damaged the stock by smoke to the extent of $36,000.

Origin of the fire is unknown. The insurance is small. At 11:30 the fire was well under control.
