Frenchy

Now and then I take a retrospective view of things and conditions in the Coquille valley and compare them with the present conditions, and in so doing I often think of how much better our present circumstances are than they were a half century ago, and of the good things that have sprung up from the small seeds planted by the first settlers in this valley. Of course we cannot expect all the conveniences they have in the east for they count history by centuries, while we have only passed the first half century line. We should be patient and reasonable and if the growlers and kickers would only put a shoulder to the wheel, progress and prosperity would come much faster. We should always remember that a knock travels faster than a boost and if we did remember, then conditions would no doubt be better.

Have you ever thought of the trials and hardships, the first settlers of this county had to go through? For instance, we had two stores in the county, one at Marshfield and one at Empire. Our connection with the outside world was only semi-occasionally, and when flour was short and the price raised to four or five dollars for a fifty pound sack, then it was that we were in great difficulty. Port Orford and Roseburg were our next nearest sources, sixty miles distant. A trip to either place took up the biggest part of a week, How would you like to go that far to a store for provisions. We did it, and enjoyed the situation.

There was my old friend, Sam Dement, who was always ready to round up his cayuses and start out to bring what was needed and wanted.

At one time the flour was entirely used up, sometning had to be done, Sam was ready. Up in the mountains, between Port Orford and the Coquille valley, was old Hans, he had five pack horses,. I was his packer. Sam came up, secured the horses and my aid, to go to the valley, as we then called Camas Prairie and Douglas county. The next day I arrived at Dement's with the horses, and after fixing up Sam's outfit we started. Among his horses was one called "Frenchy," a large, able, sound horse, but full of tricks. What Frenchy did not know was not worth knowing, irritable, fractious and a good kicker, but the worst of all, he would wilfully manage to tear the pack out of shape by bumping against trees or rocks, or by leaving the trail to find another path in which he generally would be caught between two trees to accomplish a wreck.

In those days we had no roads, only trails, which at some parts were hardly passable for loaded animals, an elk, a deer or a bear could squeeze through, but a pack animal, with a two hundred pound pack on his back, made it difficult and at times even dangerous. The worst place, however, was near the locality where the schoolhouse now stands at the middle fork of the Coquille river, above Hoffman's. Here the trail was narrow, on the lower side, a cliff, perhaps a hundred or more feet to the river bed, on the other side a nearly perpendicular rise of the mountains, one misstep and a horse and load would be hurled down never to rise again. Nothing happened on our trip to Camas valley, there we found the flour which had been delivered at John Day's we had a pleasant visit with the few inhabitants of this beautiful valley, and the following morning we started on our homeward trip. At John Backwoods, the location is now called "Enchanted Prairie" we stopped over night and again resumed our trip early in the morning. With a few minor and unavoidable stops all went well, Sam riding the bell horse, I in the rear on foot to watch the animals and their loads. At last we came near the place which I mentioned above, there I noticed that the load on Frenchy was not riding well, Sam had passed the narrow place, a few other horses had followed, Frenchy was nearing it, with his load of flour turning on his back. I called to Sam to stop the horses, which he did thus cutting Frenchy off from further advancement. There he stood, bracing his body against the steep wall of rock and holding the load from turning further, and being thrown from the cliff. I had worked around the other horses behind him and then came the question. What should be done? Knowing the favorite trick of the horse was to kick, and if he did it meant farewell to me, however, something had to be done. Carefully, I walked up to him, not a foot was raised. Slowly one sack of flour after another was pulled from his load, I passed and repassed his heels, but he stood nobly. At last the load was off, and he passed the danger and knew it. Who says horses do not reason, those who do have much to learn yet of those useful animals and man's best friend. Frenchy was reloaded and home was reached without further accident.

Patten Dreads Jostling

Chicago, March 21—James A. Patten has evidently come to the conclusion that he is in danger of being "boo'ed," jostled and hit with clods in his home town if the humor he was in today on his return from Manchester is a sufficient indication.

Manchester must have "got on his nerves," for he called in the assistance of his "bouncer" to get rid of the newspaper men who went around to greet him on his return to his office.

One of Mr. Patten's friends in the pit had a theory to account for the speculator's excitability.

"You see," said this man, "it's like this: I had a dog once that the dog catchers nipped and threw in the pound, and, do you know, that dog never got over the shock? Whenever he heard a wagon in the street he'd get nervous.

"Now, I think it is the same way with Jim Patten. Jim is all right. There isn't a better or kinder man in the world, but he's been through a little rough work, and its kind of got in on him."

A Woman Associate Judge

The mayor of Denver makes the following novel recommendation.

I believe that justice can best be served in Denver by two sessions of police court each day, the first, where all old offenders are to be tried; and the second session, where first offenders and women shall be tried, and that a woman associate judge be apointed to sit with the police magistrate at the second session of the court. Her recommendations would only be advisory under our present law, but they would have much influence in all decisions. The presence of a woman as an officer of the court would soften the proceedings, temper justice with mercy, and inspire courage as only a woman can. She could do a good work, by investigating, outside the court, the causes and conditious leading to a woman's arrest, and help untangle domestic or moral wrongs. I recommend that we try the experiment and believe good rerults will follow.—Womans Joural.

Dynamite on Car Tracks

Philadelphia, Pa., March 24—While returning from a riot call today the patrol wagon was badly damaged by dynamite that exploded under the vehicle Six policemen, the driver and a sergeant were thrown upon the street and bruised. It is believed the dynamite was placed on the car track by strikers for the purpose of damaging a car and that the patrol wagon figured in the explosion accidentally. It is announced that a general meeting of the union men will be held Sunday to consider the advisability of calling off the general sympathetic strike. It is said that delegates will be advised to call off the strike and give the striking carmen financial support.

AN IDEAL COUGH MEDICINE

"As an ideal cough medicine I regard Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in a class by itself" says Dr. R. A. Wiltshine of Gwynneville, Ind. "I take great pleasure in testifying to the results of Chamberlain's Cough Medicine. In fact, I know of no other preparation that meets so fully the expectations of the most exacting in cases of croups and coughs of children. As it contains no opium, chloroform or morphine it certainly makes a most safe, pleasant and efficacious remedy for the ills it is intended." For sale by C. Y. Lowe.

GOOD COUGH MEDICINE FOR CHILDREN

The season for coughs and colds is now at hand and too much care cannot be used to protect the children. A child is much more likely to contract diphtheria or scarlet fever when he has a cold. The quicker you cure his cold the less the risk. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the sole reliance of many mothers, and few of those who have tried it are willing to use any other. Mrs. F. F. Starcher of Ripley, W. Va., says: "I have never used anything other than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for my children, and it has always given good satisfaction." This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult For sale by C. Y. Lowe.
