DIED, at La Fontaine, Oregon, April 11th, Fannie, wife of John Buckingham. She had been sick for several years, having been at an open air sanitarium in Portland for two years, afterward being taken to California, returning home only to die in a few days. She leaves a husband and three children, besides a large number of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. Mr. and Mrs. Buckingham were residents of Bandon for a number of years, and it could truly be said of her—"None knew her but to love her."

Miss Blanche Van Valkenburg entertained the Art Club at Hotel Barview in her usual charming manner, last Thursday afternoon. School Children to Give Play

The first and second grades of the Bandon Public school will put on a musical play at the Grand Theatre, Friday evening, April 22nd. The play will be put on twice during the evening, the first performance beginning at 7:45 p.m., and the second at 8:45. The price of admission will be 15 cts, children under 10 years, 10 cts. There will be fine motion pictures between scenes, so that there will be something doing every minute. The children are being thoroughly drilled and will perform their parts in a most creditable manner. All who attend will surely get the worth of their money. The proceeds will go toward buying apparatus for use in the school, so the cause is a worthy one and should be patronized freely by the public.

Jas. Miller was down from Fat Elk last week visiting relative and friends.

Mrs. M. Van Valkenburg and her daughter Blanche made a trip to Coquille yesterday.

Weeping Animals.

Travelers through the Syrian desert have seen horses weep from thirst. A mule has been seen to cry from the pain of an injured foot, and camels, it is said, shed tears in streams. A cow sold by its mistress, who had tended it from calfhood, wept pitifully. A young soko ape used to cry with vexation if Livingstone didn't nurse it in his arms when it asked him to. Wounded apes have died crying, and apes have wept over their young ones slain by hunters. A chimpanzee trained to carry water jugs broke one and cried, which proved sorrow, though it wouldn't mend the jug. Rats, discovering their young drowned, have been moved to tears of grief. A giraffe which a huntsman's rifle had injured began to cry when approached. Sea lions often weep over the loss of their young. Gordon Cumming observed tears trickling down the face of a dying elephant. And even an orang outang when deprived of its mango was so vexed that it took to weeping. There is little doubt, therefore, that animals do cry from grief or weep from pain or annoyance.—Harper's Weekly.

The Laborer's Thanks.

A tram car was going down a busy street one day and was already comfortably full when it was hailed by a laboring man much the worse for liquor, who presently staggered along the car between two rows of well dressed people regardless of polished shoes and tender feet.

Murmurs and complaints arose on all sides, and demands were heard that the offender should be ejected at once.

But amid the storm of abuse one friendly voice was raised as a benevolent clergyman rose from his seat, saying:

"No, no! Let the man sit down and be quiet."

The discomfiture of the party turned to mirth when the drunken one seized his benefactor by the hand, exclaiming:

"Thank ye, sir—thank ye. I see you know what it is to be tight!"—London Answers.

Served Him Well.

During the early days of the career of William Allen White, when he was charged with the conduct of a country paper in Iowa, he one day received a call from an indignant contributor, who bitterly complained that matter of his, long before submitted, had not been published.

"Softly, my friend," said White in his most soothing tone. "Really I must offer my best thanks to you for those features. They have served me well. From time to time when I get to thinking that this sheet is a pretty poor one to inflict upon a long suffering public I look up your stuff and read it carefully, a process which enables me to perceive how much worse my paper might be, whereupon I become real cheerful. Please don't take them from me."—Cleveland Leader.

A Multiplication Trick.

Here is a little trick in multiplication that may amuse you. Ask a friend to write down the numbers 12345679, omitting the number 8. Then tell him to select any one figure from the list, multiply it by 9 and with the answer to this sum multiply the whole list—thus, assuming that he selects either the figure 4 or 6:

select 4x9=36	select 6x9=54
12345679	12345679
36	54
4082074	483216
3682074	6123256
4441444	6666666

You see, the answer of the sum is composed of figures similar to the one selected.

Men in Petticoats.

It will probably be a matter of surprise to the general reader to learn that the petticoat was first worn exclusively by men. In the reign of King Henry VII, the dress of the English was so fantastic and absurd that it was difficult to distinguish one sex from the other. In the inventory of Henry V, appears a "petticoat of red damask, with open sleeves." There is no mention of a woman's petticoat before the Tudor period.

Cruel Blow.

"Are you aware of the fact," remarked Miss Cutting, "that I am a mind reader?"
"Nevah suspected it, weally," answered young Softleigh. "Would you—aw—object to weeding my mind, docher know?"
"Certainly not," she replied. "Bring it with you the next time you call."

Paced Too Rapidly.

"Waiter, ask the orchestra to play something different."
"Any particular selection, sir?"
"Something slower. I can't chew my food properly in waitz time."—Kansas City Journal.

Only Chance.

"Do you believe," queried the fair widow, "that universal peace will ever be established?"
"Not unless people quit getting married," growled the old bachelor.—Chicago News.

The Settlement.

Suitor—What will your father settle on the man who marries you? The Girl—All the rest of the family, I suppose.—St. Louis Times.

Quite a crowd gathered at Laurel Lake school house to try to organize a base ball team, but the crowd was small and it turned out to be quite a socialist meeting. They tore out the partition in the school house to make room for more scholars in the summer. A nice lunch was served and all seemed to have a good time.

J. B. V. BUTLER, Sec. Com.

Whang! goes the door bell; Mary Ann brushes the bread dough from her brazen arms and rushes to the door expecting the postman and a sweet missive from Teddy the cop. The smart young man standing upon the step, inquires, "can't we do your laundry work?" "indeed," says M. A. "dox me own and the master gets his done at the Bandon Steam Laundry. 'Tis there ye gits the loine work." 14 if
