Mr. Mavity is actually at work taking the census of the Bandon voting precinct. He says the work in Bandon is not so difficult, but when he gets into the country district, included in the precinct, he will have considerable traveling. There is a lot of red tape connected with the taking of the census this year, and a great many questions to ask. For instance, each man must tell how many weeks he was out of employment in 1900, what he was doing ten years ago, and they are very specific as to what he is doing now. The fellow who can answer all these questions, especially the man who works at odd jobs, is a dandy.

High Cost of Living.

We complain a great deal these days about the high cost of living, and it is true that it does cost a "right smart bit," but it is nothing in comparison to prices of 25 and 30 years ago according to a Hillsboro man. This statistician gives some prices, taken from a note book of 1872, as follows: "One pound corn starch, 25 cents; three spools thread, 25c; can corn, 38c; soda, 15c; 128 pounds C sugar, at 13 1/4 cts; three bars soap, 25c; onions and onion sets, 25c per pound; 8 inch file, 50c; now sells 15c, or 2 for 25c; bunch matches, 25c; nails, 8c per pound; can peaches, 50c; raisins, 37 1/2 cts; peaches, per pound, 25c; candies, 25 cts per pound; nutmeg, $2 per pound; 6 cans tomatoes, $2; granulated sugar, 18c per pound."

Butler's Reply.

There was a time, while Lyman Trumbull was chairman of the senate committee on judiciary, that Benjamin Butler was chairman of the judiciary committee of the house. It was at this period that a delegation from one of the southern states visited Washington with a desire to secure the impeachment and removal of the federal judge of their state. They interviewed Mr. Butler as to the probability of carrying such a measure through that session.

"I don't know," was Mr. Butler's reply; "I am chairman of the judiciary committee of the house. The necessary action can be had here. But Lyman Trumbull is chairman of the senate committee, and Judge Trumbull is troubled with two things—the dyspepsia, which makes him miserable, and conscience, which makes him uncertain."

Ginseng's Growth.

The manner of the ginseng's growth gives it a queer shape and in some cases fabulous value. There is first a main root or trunk. Then on the sides there will be smaller roots, one on a side, and by a curious formation the offshoots resemble arms and legs, so that the full grown ginseng looks for the world like a human figure. The more the fancied likeness to the human form is developed the greater the value, according to some of the Chinese. The root as an herb has wonderful properties, but, too, so much beyond is the value of one that looks human. The others will cure cancers and all sorts of other diseases, but the precious one having the human shape will keep off devils and all bad luck.—Argonaut.

Not His Fault.

A story is told of a well known Sheffield tinner who when asked to sing at a dinner, although he had no music with him, went on to the platform to try.

He did his best, but he broke down in the middle and retired.

He was cheered up by an elderly man sitting next to him, who tapped him on the shoulder and said:

"Never mind, lad; that's done thy best, but 't' feller at asked thee to sing out to be shot!"—London Telegraph.

Had to Do It.

Hogan—Phwat makes ye swally all your dinner in two minutes, Hogan? Are yez atin' on a bet? Hogan—It's for the good av me dyspepsy, Molke. Sure, the docther tould me to rist an hour after 'atin', and how else am Ol goin' to get the hour to rist in unless Ol ate loike the devil?—Boston Transcript.

The Higher Court.

"The courts have decided that a woman has no right to open her husband's mail."

"My wife reversed that decision before it was made."—Houston Post.

Still Young.

Teacher—I am surprised that you are not further advanced. You are extremely backward for your age. Little Girl—Yes'm. Mamma wants to marry again.

A Medical Opinion.

"Doctor, how do you account for the existence of rheumatism?"

"The mind, my dear sir, evolved the disease to fit the word."—Chicago Tribune.

Many bog or muck soils contain fertilizing elements in as large per cent as average manure, but they usually need tillage and sweetening with an application of lime to render these elements available for plant life.

While the warmer climate of the west and southwest is favorable for the winter production of eggs, this advantage is quite offset by the fact that the warmer weather tends to greatly multiply lice mite pests, which constitute as serious a drawback as cold weather.

In making choice of land in a new section it is well not only to keep in mind the fertility of the soil and its ability to produce bumper crops, but the distance of the land from market. There have been cases where such handicap has well nigh offset the two advantages named.

His Rules of Golf.

A lawyer of considerable prominence took up the game of golf. Some of his friends volunteered chapters of advice, while another presented to the beginner a book of rules. After completing his first round the counselor was asked if he had mastered the rules. The perspiring lawyer realized the sarcasm of the remark, but proved equal to the occasion. "The rules? Oh, they are quite simple," he replied. "There are two I know of, and to my mind they are the most important. You must hit the ball with your club, and after you have hit it you must find it, of course, before you hit it again. It will take an honest man several weeks to master these two rules. After driving the ball you must hit it wherever it lies. Good lies are as important in golf as in fishing. Losing a ball costs you two strokes and the price of the ball. Hitting a caddy with the ball is justifiable homicide."—New York Tribune.
