

MYSTERIES OF FLORIDA.

An Underground River That Makes Things Very Lively at Times.

Two miles south of Gainesville is a prairie. At certain seasons strangers wonder why it is called a "prairie," for they look out upon a broad stretch of water so deep that storms churn its surface into rolling white capped hills.

On the edge of the prairie, half wall in by rock, dense with immense trees draped in long festoons of moss, is a pool of water called "The Sink."

North of Gainesville is a pretty and mysterious spot called "Devil's Millhopper." A large stream of water comes down hill with considerable force and disappears in a pool that has no visible outlet.

The Monkey and the Chew of Gum. A mild mannered man walked up to the cage of an unshaven son of the forest, wearing among his other clothes a Wesleyan deacon of the old fashioned type.

He placed it once to his mouth and took a generous bite. It proved to be a secondhand piece of chewing gum. As he removed his jaw a few onlookers were well through into spasms, for the wax struck out in an ever dwindling string, and as it drew away from him the monkey surveyed the string calmly, but curiously.

Early Use of the Word "Strike." An early use of the word "strike" occurs in the London Chronicle for 1765. In the September of that year are numerous references to great suspension of labor in the northern coalfield, and the colliers are stated to have "struck out" for a higher bounty before entering into their usual yearly "bond."

Young Supreme Court Lawyers. Chief Justice Fuller was speaking the other day of the large number of brilliant young lawyers that were appearing before the supreme court of late. It was formerly the rule to intrust supreme court cases to veterans, and until recently men under 50 years of age were very seldom seen at the bar.

Simple. In the studio of one of our leading P. A.'s, who was recently showing his relatives for this year's academy, stood a lady of fashion. "Oh, what a lovely picture! How I wish I could paint like that. You ought to let me into the secret how to do it."

ONE ON MOSES.

The Scenic Artist of a Chicago Theater Mixed in Spelling and History.

Scenic artist Moses of the Schiller theater painted the scenery for "The Black Hussar," now on at that house. Mr. Moses has painted the scenery for many plays and operas in his time, but it has never happened that he has been called upon to mount this particular opera before.

"Yes, it is all right," said Prior, "but who is this supposed to represent?" "It is Napoleon," said the artist, "and I flatter myself it's a pretty little likeness."

THE TREATY WITH RUSSIA.

Self Respect Demands That the United States Should Advocate It. Senator Turpie introduced a joint resolution declaring that it is no longer to the interest of the United States to continue the treaty ratified with Russia last April and that notice shall be given to the emperor that the treaty shall expire at the end of six months, the term prescribed in its text to precede nullification by either signatory.

No matter what the fallacy under which its ratification was effected it was offensive to the people of the United States, who did not submit to it the more willingly because of an implied but improper and irrelevant argument of compensation for its ratification. We gained nothing at Paris by the treaty. We were not entitled to gain anything by it.

Why Few Murder Trials in Boston. Considerable curiosity has been aroused by the statement that the Corchidi case is the first murder trial in Suffolk county in 10 years. It seems that there have been many murders in the county within the period mentioned, but rather than go to the expense of a trial the government has seen fit to accept the plea of guilty of murder in the second degree and sentenced the accused on that, as it is believed that the ends of justice are as fully met in this way as in trying the man on a charge of murder in the first degree and running the risk of failing to convict.

Reasonable Doubt of Its Truth. A few days ago a dispatch was printed in the papers stating that William L. Guptill of Gouldsboro, Me., had been thrown from his carriage and killed, the details of the accident being also given. Thursday The Journal received this note written before the printed dispatch: "Mr. Editor—The above was clipped from a late paper. Yours truly, William L. Guptill." It is evident that County Commissioner Guptill is very much alive, and it is also evident that his bright wit sees the superfluity of more comment than the signature at the end of his laconic note.—Boston Journal.

The Victor Ate It. M. C. Albertson was recently elected mayor of Hannibal, Mo., over J. H. Dickason. Both men are warm personal friends, and when the result of the election was announced the defeated candidate sent Albertson a letter, accompanied by a cake, in which he stated that "the cake had been baked by my family for the mayor elect, and now that you have won the race you will please accept the cake with my compliments."

LIFE AND LOVE.

Let us live while the heart's lightest, Let us love while the heart's strongest, And laugh while the day is brightest, And quicken the morn with song.

The Photograph of the Future. "A photograph that flatters will soon be a thing of the past," said a photographer the other day. "It will be impossible to make our faces appear to the most advantage by a clever pose, for the latest innovation in photography, which is the photographing of the future, will reveal all our defects and crannies. The great study which young women give their faces, to find out in which position—side, three-quarter or full face—they look the best, will all be put to naught, for the multi-photograph will take them in all these positions and others as well."

"The operator photographs the subject and the reflections in the mirrors. The result is the multi-photograph. I think it is destined to become the photograph of the future, as it is the only thing that will give you a likeness of a person as seen from all sides. Art in this case must succumb to nature, and the instruction that is too frequently given the photographer, 'Make me as pretty as you can,' will have to be done away with."

SURROUNDED BY MYSTERY!

A Great Mistake.

A recent discovery is that headache, dizziness, dullness, confusion of the mind, etc., are due to derangement of the nerve centers which supply the brain with nerve force; that indigestion, dyspepsia, neuritis, wind in stomach, etc., arise from the derangement of the nerve centers supplying these organs with nerve fluid or force.

The Little White Lines are the nerves which convey the nerve force from the nerve centers to every part of the body, just as the telegraph wires convey the electric current to every station, large or small.

Ordinary physicians fail to regard the cause of the disease, but instead of treating the nerve centers for the cause of the disorder, they treat the part affected.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve is a reliable remedy for all nervous diseases, such as headache, nervous debility, prostration, weakness, dizziness, hysteria, sexual debility, etc.
