

THE WEST.

W. Young West Liberty, W. Va. The prompt relief it affords is alone worth many times the cost, 50 cents. It is continued use will effect a permanent cure. For sale by Druggist.

The Farmers' Cooperative Fire Insurance Association has been organized at Oregon City and will insure farm property and isolated dwellings in towns. The cost of the insurance is three tenths of the usual rate, and a premium rate for the other seven tenths, which will be subject to assessment if needed.

It is a pleasure to sell Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says Stoeney & Demler, druggists, Republic, Ohio, "because a customer after once using it, is almost certain to call for it when again in need of such a medicine. We sell more of it than any other cough medicine we handle, and it always gives satisfaction." For coughs, colds and croup, it is without an equal. For sale by Druggists.

The West has given to its readers and the public generally, better and cheaper periodicals than all others together in this part of the country. It has done this largely at its own expense, and now adds another point to its credit by giving the weekly Oregonian to all its subscribers. The opportunity will be limited to a certain period, the return parties must subscribe at once. THE WEST for $2 and the weekly Oregonian for free.

Mr. Ira P. Wetmore, a prominent real estate agent of San Angelo, Texas, has used Chamberlain's Cough, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in his family for several years as occasion required, and always with perfect success. He says: "I find it a perfect cure for our baby, when troubled with colic or dysentery. I now feel that my outfit is not complete without a bottle of this Remedy at home or on a trip away from home." For sale by Druggist.

One of the most enjoyable events of late was the ball in the State Salmon Hatchery at Mapleton, on Christmas night. At an early hour quite a large number of people assembled and danced till supper was served. Dancing was resumed and kept up until the sun peeped into the east with a gentle reminder of breakfast. The Goss arrived here at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning with a boat load of tired and sleepy people. Nevertheless the dance was voted by all to have been a successful affair, and thoroughly enjoyed.

The Presbyterian church of this city was abuzz with lights Monday night, and it is not necessary to explain the cause. The church was very prettily decorated within, and floating tinsel wings were two large trees, on which was hung every thing useful, ornamental and otherwise. At 7:30 o'clock there was standing room only. A short but interesting program was rendered, after which Santa Claus appeared and the trees were quickly relieved of their burdens. Christmas Eve had better than the day.

Any one who has children will rejoice with L. B. Mumford of Plainfield, N. J. His little boy, five years of age, was sick with colic. For two days and nights he tried various remedies recommended by friends and neighbors. He says: "I thought sure I would lose him. I had seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised and thought I would try it as a last hope and am happy to say that after two doses he slept until morning. I gave it to him next day and a cure was effected. I keep this remedy in the house now and as soon as any of my children show signs of colic I give it to them and that is the last of it." 50 cent bottles for sale by Florence Druggist.

The whist club met at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Alley on Thursday evening last. Owing to the absence of a portion of the club from the city, but two tables were laid. Those present were paired as follows: Mr. Christensen and Mrs. Burns; Mr. Broskie and Mrs. Christensen; Mr. Morris and Mrs. Hard; Mr. Severy and Mrs. Morris. After four games Mr. Christensen and Mrs. Burns had the highest number of points and Mr. Broskie and Mrs. Christensen the lowest. The first prize was a handsome silk handkerchief, a pair of gloves and a book of amusements and blank stationery presented over the faces of the unfortunate gentlemen when the hostess presented the booty winner with an elegant necktie. The regular order was somewhat reversed in the latter case, but the booty was satisfied. Refreshments were served and conversation was indulged in and the club adjourned after spending a most delightful evening.

A HAPPY TIME. By M.

On Christmas eve the people of Aeme gathered in M. E. Sauter's hall to witness the usual merry makings. After a short address by Rev. Mulard, they were entertained for a time with appropriate songs and recitations, all of which merited praise, especially those rendered by the public school children. Then old Santa Claus, whose merry face makes many a heart leap with joy, appeared, and when the curtains were drawn, we were astonished to behold a full rigged ship loaded with presents.

She was the Star of Bethlehem, anchored safe in harbor with her precious burden, and although there were many there none were allowed to depart without some pleasant gift.

It was a pleasant affair, and great praise is to be given to the good people who completed the arrangements.

May many another happy Christmas tide crown their future.

News From Eugene.

From the Eugene Guard.

Marshal Eastland in searching the city jail Sunday morning, found that was considered a dynamite bomb. This instrument was a piece of lead pipe about one inch in diameter and four inches long, both ends being securely pugged, and about the center of the pipe was a small hole about the size of a pin. After consulting with the city officials the marshal took the bomb, or whatever it may have been, and threw it into a deep hole in the river.

The drama "Lady of Lyons" which was to have been reproduced here by local talent, assisted by Miss Cogswell, has been given up on account of lack of time. Miss Cogswell leaves the first of the year to meet her engagement, which commences in San Francisco, July 4, 1895, thus making the time too short for the play to be staged. She may return to Eugene in the spring, and in that event it is probable several plays will be produced here under her supervision.

We learn that D. A. Paine, of this city, will be a candidate for appointment under the new administration to the position of superintendent of the Oregon Insane asylum located at Salem. This news will be heartily welcomed by the doctor's many friends over the state. During his residence in Eugene he has proven himself to be an able physician and an upright man, an excellent citizen and has built up a lucrative practice at his profession. His appointment would receive the hearty endorsement of all his friends regardless of their political opinions.

Mayor Friendly has been quite busy during the last twenty-four hours acknowledging from the citizens of Eugene and from many prominent personages throughout the state, over his appointment as Regent of the University of Oregon. The Guard is greatly pleased to see Mayor Friendly thus honored, and we predict he will make an excellent officer. For years he has always been in the lead advocating higher education, and he is now placed in a position where his work will be more effective.

At the assembly at the University this morning President Chapman made a short speech commending the appointment of the new regent of that institution, after whom Fred M. Key of the junior class, after a neat little speech, presented three cheers for Mr. Friendly, and the school gave it with a vigor and enthusiasm that was evidence of their hearty appreciation of Mayor Friendly's appointment, and of their assurance that their interests will be his.

From the Eugene Register.

Mr. Bowerman, of Waltherville, was in town Saturday. He is one of the industrious farmers of the county who makes butter making pay, and finds nothing in connection with farming that pays him better than the dairy. He has twelve cows, and during the past year they have paid him $21 each over and above all expenses of keeping, feeding, etc. A year or so ago he purchased a cream separator, and found by the use of that he obtained two pounds of butter at each churning, and he figures that the machine will pay for itself in two years. Besides the increase in volume, he is able to produce much better butter, and finds ready sale for his butter at five cents per pound more than he obtained when following the old process. Others can do as well as Mr. Bowerman if they give the same careful attention to their dairy.

WHY BUTTER HAS BAD FLAVOR. Editor West.—In all the papers that come my way all items and articles relating to dairy work are read with great interest. I was interested in Mrs. Weddle's letter regarding your request: "Will the ladies explain?" If you can give more space to the discussion of this subject I will air my opinions, if you please. But first I will say, that there is one woman at least, who is an exception to those mentioned in your article. I am not ashamed of a deal that I set before my guests or my family if I can place before them good bread and good butter, and nothing is so mortifying as a failure of either, and I think there is more excuse for poor bread than for poor butter.

The ladies, Mr. Editor, are not entirely responsible for the quality of butter made.

There are many steps on the road between milk and butter, and make but a single misstep and at the end of the road you will find—poor butter.

I will enumerate some of the missteps. On the ordinary farm, butter making is not the principal business engaged in. It is simply a side issue, engaged in along with the chicken business, that a few pounds of butter and a few dozen eggs, the hens may chance to lay each week, may pay the grocer's bill until the crops can be harvested and sold. The men folk usually attend to the milking and the farmer, in his haste to get at other and more important work, cannot take time to brush the cows, and get water and a cloth to wash the udder; he gives it a dash with his hand and milks away. Dirt or fifth once in the milk, no amount of straining can purify it, and so the first rule laid down for good butter making is violated. Instead of straining through a clean cloth the milk is poured through a questionable wire strainer.

The average farm-house does not contain a milk room, where the atmosphere can be kept pure and of the proper temperature, but the milk must be kept in a safe in the kitchen or on a shelf in the pantry, which is not much better, and the butter you eat is flavored with a conglomeration of cabbage, onions and what not.

The milk is skimmed into the cream jar until it is full, without the cream being stirred. The housewife has so many irons in the fire that she cannot always churn at the proper time. The water is so far from the house that she does not carry enough to thoroughly wash her butter, and the salt is thrown in "by guess." Worse than all the rest she washes her milk vessels, some of which are old and have the tin worn off, and her butter utensils in dirty, greasy dish-water, and wipes them without rinsing and scalding. She cannot afford to buy butter cloth or paper with which to wrap her butter, and so hunts up some worn out muslin clothing and tears it up for the purpose.

Let us not think with Mrs. Weddle that the merchant is to be blamed in the matter. If he refuses to buy Mrs. B's butter, or offers a lower price than that he is paying for all the butter offered by her neighbor, Mrs. C, Mrs. B. is insulted and not much of her money is expended at that store, and of course merchants, as well as others, must look out for No. 1.

But a chronic poor butter maker, after becoming known, will always find all the stores well supplied with butter when she takes her's to market.

After all is said, the true cause is, as Mrs. Weddle says, a lack of interest in the work, for where there is a will there is a way. There are women who, from the milk of one cow and the poorest facilities, make pure, sweet butter, and put it in daily sale to the market.

However, Mr. Editor, I incline to the opinion that good butter makers, like poets, are born not made.

GAIL MAKER.

THE NEW UMPQUA LIGHT.

One more first order light station is soon to be added to the nineteenth district. This is the new station at the mouth of the Umpqua River. Under a very recent date, Captain Farnout, light-house inspector of the district, has just received from the board at Washington an order, of which the following is a copy:

"Notice is given that on or about December 31, 1894, a light of the first order, flashing white and red, intervals between flashes, 5 seconds, every third flash red, will be exhibited from the structure recently completed on the south side of the mouth of the Umpqua river, Oregon. The light will illuminate 180 degrees of the horizon, and will be visible from all points along the coast within its geographical range. The focal plane is 165 feet above mean high water, and the light may be seen in clear weather, the observer's eye 15 feet above the sea, 19 miles.

The light will be shown from a black lantern, surmounting a light conical tower, about fifty feet high from base to focal plane, with a white workroom attached in the rear. Two dwellings, 240 feet apart and located about 123, respectively, to the northward and southward of the tower. A barn stands 280 feet to the northward of the tower. The dwellings and barn are white, with brown roofs, and only their roofs and upper stories can be seen from the sea. The tower is located on the sand dunes and is partly surrounded by a young growth of fir and spruce trees, forming a dark background for the tower.

The approximate geographical position of the light, as taken from chart No. 6333 of the United States coast geodetic survey, is:

Latitude, north 43° 32' 28"; longitude west 124° 12'.

Bearings and distances of prominent objects from the light, as taken from the above chart, are: Light, S. 50° E., 5000 feet; Cascade Head light station N. by W. 1/2 W., 29 1/2 miles.

Capo Arago light station, S. 1/4 W., 23 1/2 miles.

The keeper of the Umpqua light station will be Marquis A. Stearns; first assistant, Isaac L. Smith, second assistant Harry Bryant.—Cook Bly News.
