IN HONOR OF MRS. PHILLIPS.

Men, Women and Children Unite to Show Their Appreciation of the Friendship of Their Former Neighbor.

Since the arrival of Mrs. Phillips from Siletz on a visit to her old home and neighbors on the Siuslaw a few of her lady friends suggested and arranged for a picnic in her honor and to which all her friends that could come should be invited. It was given on Wednesday last and some eighty persons of different ages gathered at the grove above town to exchange greetings with their former neighbor and enjoy the grand feast which had been prepared by those who had the affair in charge.

On account of its being the busy season of the year there were not as many present from a distance as there would otherwise have been, but nevertheless the number and character of those who were there showed that Mrs. Phillips' friends were not few nor confined to any particular age, class or church. There were young and old, rich and poor, the commons and aristocrats and Christians and agnostics, all of which received the same friendly greeting from the hostesses.

The dinner which was spread before this varied gathering was simply grand, and the way it appealed to the inner man can be better felt than described. We could not find out where it all came from but know that there was clam chowder prepared by Mesdames Foster and Burns, coffee from the Morris hotel and sandwiches, boiled ham, pies, cakes, cheese, roast beef, eggs, pickles, apples, plums, nuts, candies, and a thousand other tempting eatables from everywhere. The children took no unimportant part in the enjoyment of the day. Masters Lisle and Kenneth Phillips accompanied their mother on her visit and were present at the picnic, and their former playmates were out in full force.

It was late in the afternoon before the party broke up and not until they had previously adopted resolutions thanking all for their assistance in making it an enjoyable occasion and Mrs. Phillips for the honor of her presence.

The road through Chickahominy bottom is navigable by other crafts than boats at this season. A two-horse sled and a one-horse buggy got through the other day. Since then a tree is reported across the road near the foot of Nelson mountain on that side.

Bear fever is not very prevalent but occasionally a fellow takes it.
