"Then I discovered that my gun had set fire to the hay, and I thought it was about time for me to escape. The horses were tearing along the road as hard as they could run, but I clambered for the side of the load and slid for the road. The tail of my stout hunting coat caught on the top of a sharp standard. and there I hung to the carcening wagon that threatened to upset and dump a load of burning hay on me at every turu of the road.

"The fire was crackling and burning flercely, and already I could feel the flames. Still the horses ran, and still my coat held me fast to that seething mass of flames. My trousers commenced getting hot, and then I found my coal was on fire. The next moment the loos cartridges in my pockets commenced ex-ploding from the heat, and then I muelled my doves broiling.

"I had just made up my mind that all was over, when the tail of my coat burned off and I was thrown into a ditch full of water beside the road. I did not stop to see what became of the hay and the horses, nor of the rancher, but cut straight across that field for
