SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
033 Market St.

Sally Mismated.
Mrs. Brimby—No, marriage is not what single persons think it is. I used to think that Brimby and I were made for one another, but we are sadly mismated.
Mrs. Ferson—Why, you surprise me. Mrs. Brimby—Alas, it is too true. He tells me I talk in my sleep, and I'm sure that he often sleeps while I talk.—Boston Transcript.

A Puzzled Parent.
"It is a difficult problem," said the conscientious man, "very difficult."
"What is worrying you?" asked his wife.
"If I use slang before our sons and daughters, it will encourage them in the practice, and if I don't they will say I am a back number."—Washington Star.

Recommenced.
"The Jimson girls were awfully cut up when their father married again, weren't they?"
"Yes, they were, until they found their new mother was just their size. Now they borrow her clothes."—Boston Traveler.

What Makes It Dear?
Professor of English Literature—You may define the elements of lasting popularity in "Young Lochinvar."
Precocious Student—Defiance of parental authority would appear to be the principal one.—Detroit News.

HOW TO FIND A WIFE.

The man of vast learning and the man of equally vast ignorance, the man of sterling integrity and the man who is utterly lacking in that most essential quality, the man who is worth a million and the man who couldn't raise 5 cents before sundown if his life depended on it—all these, together with their wives and children, are alike in one significant particular.

Each individual has a hobby or, if you please, some pet idea, which, in the case of many people, is brought forth by the slightest possible provocation.

Alexander Dollenning belongs to this class, and the happiest moment of his life is when he is given an unchallenged opportunity to talk in public or in private on his favorite theme.

Down in Gage county, several winters ago, the young people of four neighboring districts combined in conducting a debating society. There was considerable talent in each district, with a degree of pride by no means small back of it, and then rivalry between the districts was sufficiently sharp to fill the large schoolhouse in which the meetings were held to its utmost capacity every Friday evening.

The programme for the first meeting in December was of unusual interest, and the house was packed until there was not standing room for another person. Each district was represented by its best man in the debate which constituted the main feature of the entertainment, and the discussion was an exciting one.
