THE FLAG OF STARS.

Oh, not slone the carer south—
Alone the steadfast north—
Saw with wet eyes beneath spring skies
Our flag of stars go forth!
Oh, not alone the elder cast,
Nor the young hearted west,
Smiled high with pride where side by se
The nation's children pressed!

But north and south and cast and wes The mountain and the plain, The prairie and the desert, Yielded their flower again. East and west and south and north The flower of the land, Hearing the nother's call, went forth To stand at her right hand.

We be many hands in labor,
But one arm for the right;
One blood to shed, one heart till dead,
One good sword for the fight;
We be many tongued and minded,
But one mind and one tongue
When once wide sent through a continent
The nation's word has rung!

Then northern tongues sing "Dixio"
Beneath the ancient flag,
And the southerner dies to rebaptize
His own the "Yankee rag!"
Brothers—to keep for freedom's sake
The flag of stars unfurled
Beneath the stars of heaven—to make
The starlight of the world!

A LESSON IN COOKING.

How a Hobo Served Up a Dish of

'The first time I ran away from home I learned a trick or two that was worth the while," said a well known business man. "I started out on several unauthorized tours of adventure before I reached years of discretion, but the first is most vividly impressed upon my memory. Three of us kids caught a freight train and got some 60 or 70 miles away from home before the first nightfall. Then we didn't know where to spend the night. Several attempts to quarter ourselves in empty box cars on the side track of a little village only resulted in our being chased away and threatened with arrest, so we went to the outskirts of the place and built a fire on the bank of a little creek. Here we made ourselves as comfortable as possible and one or two of us had actually dozed off for short naps when a regular hobo, a good specimen of the real article, happened along and wanted to know if we had anything to eat. Of course we hadn't.

"'Well,' he said. 'if you fellers'll ketch a chicken I'll show you a trick that'll be useful to you.' "It didn't take us long to catch the chicken and bring it back. The veteran member of the nomedic fraternity wrung its neck, jerked off its head, cleaned it and going down to the creek wadded it up. feathers, feet and all. in a big ball of yellow clay. This he rolled into the fire and scraped the burning embers up around it. The clay scon hardened, and we could see it among the wood coals gradually becoming a bright cherry red. When it did so, the cook rolled it out again, let it cool a little and then broke it open with a stone. The feathers had stuck to the baked clay and a clean, inviting chicken was ready to be served. All the moisture that in ordinary baking is lost had been kept in by the bricklike inclosure, and the morsel that fell to my lot was the juiciest and sweetest I have ever eaten. '-- Cincipnati Enquirer.

Good dealers wanted in every town His Absent Companions. Write for prices and terms to San Fran At a banquet given in Rochester two of the expected guests were unable to be present. The order of seating hap-pened to be such that a particularly jovial and companionable gentleman sat with one of the vacant chairs on each side of him. The empty chairs and first course of oysters were left in place for some time in case the expected guests arrived. The solitary gentlemen therefore could move neither to the right nor to the left, but smiably beamed throughout the repast, seemingly none the worse for his enforced isolation. After the banquet some one innocently asked him:

"How did you enjoy yourself, old "First rate," he raplied briskly enough. "I sat next to a couple of fellows who weren't there." - Rochester

The Managed Husband Is Worthless. Helen Watterson Moody believes that the husband who can be managed is not worth managing. "and there is no better principle," she adds, in The Ladies' Home Journal. "for both hueband and wife to edopt in adjusting themselves to the new relation than that of trying to do each by the other what men are accustomed to call 'the square thing.' Many a woman understands 'managing' a busband better than she does doing the square thing by him. and many a man understands and practices doing the square thing by other men who would be affronted if he were to be told that, judged by his own business standards, he habitually dealt unfairly with his own wife.

The late Mr. Davis, the biggest booknaker of his time in England, probably laid the largest bet ever recorded when he wagered $500,000 to $5,000 against three horses owned by a Mr. Clark and entered in the Derby of 1896.

There is also a bet recorded of $450, 000 to $150,000, the big amount being laid by Lord Glasgow and the smaller by Lord George Bentinck, who lost. In 1885 a young lordling bet $15,000 to $150 that St. Simon, a very celebrated race horse, would win a race in which but one other animal was to St. Simon was so hot a favorite 100 to I was laid on his chance, such odds, of course, being very unusual and meaning that there is hardly any betting being done. That lord, however, actually bet his $15,000 against a bookmaker's $150 as coolly as if he had been accepting and not laying tre-

A Finished Rebuke Hon. George Russell, in his "Recolections and Collections, " tells the following story of Jewett, the famous master of Balliol college: "The scene was the master's own dining room, and the moment that the ladies had left the room one of the guests began a most outrageous conver-sation. Every one sat flabbergasted. The master winced with annoyance, and then, bending down the table toward the offender, said in his shrillest tono, Shall we continue this conversation in the drawing room?' and rose from his obair. It was really a stroke of genius thus both to terminate and to rebuke the impropriety without violating the decorum due from host to guest."

Gladstone and Ireland. Only a stern senso of duty induced Mr. Gladstone in his seventy-seventh year to endeavor to bring about the pa-offication of Ireland. "I shall win," be said when he appealed to the country, "or be hunted out of public life."
"What do you think of Mr Gladstone now?" asked a Liberal M P of Mr. Healy at the close of Mr. Gladstone's speech introducing home rule. "I think," replied Mr. Healy, "that be has elected to be crucified for Ireland." Birmingham (England) Post.

The Age of Miagara.

The truth of the adage about constant dripping wearing away a stone is strik-ingly illustrated in the fact that the Niagara river has been 86,000 years cutting its channel 200 feet deep, 2,000 feet wide and 7 miles long through solid rock. Evidence is conclusive that the falls were formerly at Queenstone, seven miles below the present situation. It has been proved that they have not receded more than one foot a year for the last half a century.
