THE HOME GOLD CURE

An Ingenious Treatment by Which Drunkards are Being Cured Daily in Spite of Themselves.

No Noxious Doses.—No Weakening of the Nervous System.—No Injurious Cure for the Liqueur Habit.

It is now generally known that drunkenness is a disease and not weakness. A body filled with poison, and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors, require an antidote capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober, industrious, and upright men.

WIVES, CURE YOUR HUSBANDS! CHILDREN, CURE YOUR FATHERS!

This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but it is a specific for this disease only, and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is thoroughly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so that it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy, and as many more have been cured and made temperate men by having the "CURE" administered by loving friends and relatives without their knowledge in coffee or tea, and believe today that they are disappointed in making of their own free will. DO NOT WAIT. Do not be deluded by apparent and misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The "HOME GOLD CURE" is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, this placing within the reach of every body a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 to $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address: DENY, J. ### MRS. GALLUP'S WOES.

WHILE WASHING DISHES SHE GETS ANOTHER SUMMONS.

On This Occasion She Has Only an Hour Longer to Live and Put in the Time Giving Mr. Gallup Pointers.

[Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.]

Mr. Gallup had lain down on the lounge after supper to smoke a pipe, and as Mrs. Gallup cleared off the table and washed the dishes she sang "Wendy Souls" at the top of her voice and in high spirits. It might possibly have been her singing which finally lulled Mr. Gallup to sleep and dropped the pipe from his mouth to the floor, although it had never done it before. He was gently snoring when Mrs. Gallup appeared with hands pressed to her heart and a wabble to her gait, and, sinking into a chair, she gasped: "Samuel Gallup, I shall be as dead as a crowbar in less'n an hour, and you'd better git up and give me a last embrace."

Mr. Gallup gurgled in his throat as he slept, and without seeming to notice his condition she continued: "Yes, Samuel, I've got my summons. I was puttin away the last dish when my heart give a sudden bob, my head begun to go round, and right before me I saw my coffin and an open grave. For a minute I thought I was a goner, but then a small voice whispered to me that I'd live an hour longer and that I'd better come in and talk to you. I'm here to say some last dyin' words to you, Samuel, and, though I don't expect to draw tears to your eyes, I do hope you'll listen and remember what I say."

At this juncture Mrs. Gallup's tears began to fall and her chin to quiver, and, being so busy with her emotions, she did not even look Mr. Gallup's way. Swallowing at the lump in her throat, she said:

"Samuel, I've allus kinder felt that in case of my death you'd marry ag'in, and it's allus made me feel a little edgewise, but a change has come over me. It come two weeks ago. I'm now resigned to your takin a second wife. In fact, I think it's better you should. Mrs. Trenchout was sayin to me the other day that if I dropped off you'd marry ag'in inside of four weeks, as you'd want somebody to comb your hair and cut your toe nails, but I don't think you'd be as mean as that. You'd wait at least three months, wouldn't you?"

Mr. Gallup snored in reply, and, taking this as an answer in the affirmative, Mrs. Gallup went on:

"The usual time is a year, but I ain't askin you to wait that long for me. I've bin a hardworkin wife, and I've allus saved every bit of the soap grease and made the tea last in a way to surprise you, but I ain't askin for any praise. I'm old and humbly and highlighted, and I can't blame you if you kick up your heels arter I'm gone. Shall you go on a bridal tower with your second wife, Samuel? I ain't askin 'cause I'm jealous, you know, but just out of curiosity. When we got married, all the bridal 'twer we had was to go to a circus and come home in a thunderstorm, but if you want to go to Niagara Falls with your new wife don't stop on my account."

As Mr. Gallup hadn't been asked a direct question there was no call for him to wake up, and as Mrs. Gallup felt like weeping she had a fairly good time at it before saying further:

"I did think at one time that if you married a chit of a girl I'd come back and sit on the footboard of the bed and haunt you, but I've changed my mind about it. It ain't in me to be mean. While it 'pears to me that you'd better marry a widdler woman about 40 years old, if you decide on a girl of 20 I ain't for me to raise no row. While a widdler woman would be at work sewin patches on your trousers and makin aply butter, a gal wife would want to be swingin in a hammock or playin the melodeon, but it's your own lookout. The papers are full of gal wives runnin away with tin peddlers, and you must hev read of 'em as well as me. Was you thinkin' of a gal wife or a widdler, Samuel?"

Mr. Gallup combined a sigh and a snore and stood mutal, and after hanging on to her chin to stop its shaking Mrs. Gallup continued:

"I was gon to ask you to think of me once in awhile when I was gone, but I don't want to give you trouble. You'll hev my'n to think of with your new wife, and as I shall be flyin round in heaven I'll be all right. Once in awhile, however—once in a while, when your new wife aplices the bread, kicks the cat out doors, breaks the nose off the teapot and kicks in the head of the vinegar barrel, I wish you'd just remember how patient and savin I was. Shall you hev a new pump put into the well for your second wife, Samuel? The old one has bin out of order for nine years, you know, and you've got to pumpy pump for ten minits to get any water. I'll be just like her to insist on a red pump with a blue handle."

There was no change in the situation

Wanted to Broaden Him.

Charles B. Hanford while playing in a Texas town was approached by a young man in typical cowboy fashion, who said:

"Are you the manager of this play that comes tonight?"

Mr. Hanford said he was.

"Do you want to hire a man to help act?"

"No. My company is complete."

"Want to hire a man to help count money?"

"No."

"Want to hire a man to get out in the back of the theater and holler and applaud?"

"Not this tour. The audiences are attending to that very satisfactorily."

"Want anybody for anything on earth?"

"Not that I think of at present."

"Well, that's just our luck. We've got a man here who recites pieces in consideration of being treated. If he doesn't get treated, he'll hang around and make the barroom unpleasant for hours. We don't want to hurt him, for he's a good sort in the main. But he only knows three pieces—Mark Antony's oration, Hamlet's soliloquy and Riem's address to the Romans. We thought that if you could flatter his mind into the belief that he's a great genius and haul him around the country two or three trips, so that he can learn a few new pieces from you, we'd be willing to make up a purse that would come mighty near making it worth while."—New York Telegram.

Emerson's Last Lecture.

In his "Eccentricities of Genius" Major Pond tells the pathetic story of Ralph Waldo Emerson's last lecture, delivered in the Old South church in Boston for the fund to save that building from demolition:

"As he began reading his lecture the audience was very attentive. After a few moments he lost his place, and his grandaughter, sitting in the front row of seats, gently stepped toward him and reminded him that he was lecturing. He saw at once that he was wandering and, with the most charming, characteristic, apologetic bow, he resumed his place, an incident that seemed to affect the audience more than anything else that could possibly have occurred. A few moments later he took a piece of manuscript in his hand and, turning around with it, laid it on a side table. Just then one of the audience said to me (I think it was Mrs. Livermore or Mr. Howe), 'Please have the audience pass right out,' and, rushing up to Mr. Emerson, said, 'Thank you so much for that delightful lecture; then, turning around, waved the audience to go out.'

"He probably had been speaking about 15 minutes. The audience passed out, many of them in tears. It was one of the most pathetic sights I ever witnessed."

His Exact Words.

Interviewer.—Alderman Swelhed, I have come to get your views on the proposed change in the curriculum of the grammar school.

Alderman Swelhed.—Curriculum! What's that? I'm ag'in it, whatever it is.

Alderman Swelhed, reading the report of the interviewer next morning: "Our distinguished townsman, Mr. M. T. Swelhed, was found at his charming home, surrounded by abundant indication of ripe scholarship and sturdy common sense. In reply to our reporter's question he said:

"I do not desire to force my opinions upon the public, but this I will say, that I have given to this question long and studious attention, incidentally examining into the curricula of institutions of learning both at home and abroad, and, although I find in the existing course of study not a few matters for condemnation, still, upon the whole, I cannot say that I should advise any radical change until I have further time to examine into the subject."

"By George, that feller's got my exact language, word for word! And he didn't take no notes neither! By George, what a memory that feller must have!"—Fit-Bits.

Small Change.

"You know, I feel just like a counterfeiter bill," observed a young man to a friend with whom he was walking, stopping in front of a barroom.

"Why?" queried his partner.

"I cannot pass," the other explained, waving his hand toward the entrance of the place.

"Oh," remarked his friend, "don't let that feeling worry you. You know, I'm somewhat accustomed to shoving the queer." And he took the man with a thirb by the arm and carried him on down the street.—Memphis Scimitar.

She Knew.

A clergyman while catechizing his Sunday school had occasion to ask the children the meaning of the word "epistle." A little girl in the youngest class was so certain that she knew that she did not hesitate a minute, but, with the greatest of confidence, answered, "An epistle is the wife of an apostle."—New York Sun.

The Star.

"Now," we asked him, "who should be considered the star of your company?"

"The bloodhound, me boy, the bloodhound," said the gentleman that played Legree. "He has something to eat every day, whether the rest do or not."—Indianapolis Press.

Some One Who Would Like It.

"I don't like Muggins' face," said Twyn to Triplett. "He hasn't a pleasing countenance."

"But an auctioneer would like it," suggested Triplett.

"How so?"

"It is a countenance forbidding."—Detroit Free Press.

I have used Ripans Tablets with so much satisfaction that I can cheerfully recommend them. I have been troubled for about three years with what is called bilious attacks coming on regularly once a week. Was told by different physicians that it was caused by bad teeth, which I had several. I had the teeth extracted, but the attacks continued. I had seen advertisements in them, but about six weeks since a friend inquired me to try Ripans Tablets, and he sent me a small box of the Tablets and have had no recurrence of the attacks. Have never given up anything, but I believe has been cured by Ripans Tablets. Induce me to add mine to the many testimonials you doubtless have at your disposal now.

A. T. DEWITT.

I want to inform you, in view of the praise of the benefits I have derived from Ripans Tablets. I am a professional nurse and in this profession clear head is always needed. Ripans Tablets does it. After one of my cases I found myself completely run down. Acting on the advice of Mr. Geo. Bowler, No. 4, Broadway, New York City, I took Ripans Tablets with gratifying results.

Mother was troubled with nervousness, sleeplessness, caused by indigestion, for a good many years. One day she saw a testimonial in the paper indicating Ripans Tablets. She determined to give them a trial, was greatly relieved by their use, and now takes the Tablets regularly. She keeps a few cartons Ripans Tablets in the house and says she will not be without them. The heartburn and sleeplessness have disappeared with the indigestion which was formerly so great a burden for her. Our whole family take the Tablets regularly, especially after a hearty meal. My mother is fifty years of age and is enjoying the best of health and spirits; also eats hearty meals, an impossibility before she took Ripans Tablets.
