THE OLD FASHIONED BOY.

Oh, for a glimpse of a natural boy— A boy with freckled face, and hair And limbs devoid of grace; Whose feet too in, while his elbows flare; Whose knees are patched all ways; Who turns as red as a lobster when You give him a word of praise;

A boy who's born with an appetite, Who seeks the pantry shelf To eat his "pieces" with resounding crack, Who isn't gone on himself;

A "Robinson Crusoe" reading boy, Whose pockets bulge with trash, Who knows the use of rod and gun And where the brook trout splash;

It's true he'll sit in the easiest chair With his hat on his tumbled head; That his hands and feet are everywhere, For youth must have room to spread;

But he doesn't dub his father "old man" Nor deny his mother's call Nor ridicule what his elders say Or think that he knows it all.

A rough and wholesome natural boy Of a good old fashioned clay— God bless him, if he's still on earth, For he'll make a man some day.

GOT THE POSITION.

She Successfully Played on the Weakness of the Statesman.

The New York Herald tells how a diplomatic young lady who understood the weakness of politicians secured some years ago a place in the state service.

The day before the opening of the session a shy girl knocked at the door of the attorney general's office.

"Is the attorney general in?" she asked timidly.

"Yes," said the clerk. "He will see you when he gets through with this long line of job hunters. Just have a seat."

In the numerous chairs, on the office lounge and standing were 20 more waiting for a turn to press some claim for a position.

The attorney general was rather a gruff looking man, and he dismissed each with the remark: "I can't do anything for you. Sorry, you know, but there are hundreds of applicants, and each officer, every legislator, has a dozen begging for each position."

When the timid girl's turn came, she handed the impatient looking officer a letter. She said nothing. She hardly looked into his face.

"I'm sorry, Miss C., that I can do nothing for you. It was foolish for you to come here expecting to get work. I'd be glad to help you if I could; but, you see, it's this way: I have no influence to get you a position. I am very—"

"We were speaking of that at home, but I thought it would do no harm to see you," she interrupted. "And we were saying what a pity it was that you had lost your influence."

The state official winked. He looked as if something hurt him.

"Brown," he said, turning to his deputy with unnecessary abruptness, "this young lady is to have a position in the corollary department. See that there is a place for her if you have to muzzle every legislator in the building."

DEVASTATING POWER OF LOCUSTS.

A swarm of these insects stopped the advance of a Russian army. They filled the air and blinded both officers and men, so that the former could give no orders, and even if they had done so the men could not have obeyed them. The horses would not face them, and they lay on the ground many inches thick. Every man and horse in the army was incumbered with the insects, and their clothing was literally eaten off the men as they stood helpless and blinded. The railways were useless, as the locusts covered the rails, and the oil which exuded from their bodies when crushed prevented the driving wheels from "biting." After they had settled down upon the ground they were the purpose of trampling them to death. Trenches were dug across their path and filled with burning coals, but the crawling swarms actually smothered the fire, so vast were their numbers.

Even in a little island like Cyprus in one year one-fifth of the entire revenue was spent in destroying the locusts, and especially their eggs. When these eggs are laid, they are enclosed in a horny envelope called a "pod," each pod containing 35 eggs. In seven months 1,320 tons of pods were destroyed. Now, a single ton of pods contains 60,000,000 eggs, and yet, in spite of this almost incredible destruction, the locusts are still a dreadful plague and show little if any symptoms of diminution in numbers.

Expenses of a Yacht Owner.

There is no question that modern luxury has reached its most extravagant pinnacle in yachting, which, in the elaborate profession of its expense, brings us very close to the latter days of the Roman empire. Take a single case. A boat like Colonel Payne's 650 ton yacht Aphrodite carries a company of 60 men—captain, first and second mates, carpenter, chief steward, assistant steward, 2 bedroom stewards, pantryman, chief cook, 2 assistant cooks, chief engineer, 3 assistant engineers, 3 others, 15 firemen and 10 men before the mast.—Leslie's Monthly.

Mental Queerness.

"Haven't you any positive opinions on any subject?"

"No. By not having positive opinions, you see, a man doesn't have to wear himself out lacking them up."—Detroit Free Press.

A Delusion.

Slimson—How do you know?

"Why, I took them out of the water, and they turned brown in 15 minutes."—Life.

It is a mistake to suppose that it is always the last straw which breaks the camel's back.—Chicago Herald.

WORKING IN PUBLIC.

Show Window Artisans Can Command Good Remuneration.

A Broadway shoe manufacturer was asked what method of advertising he found most profitable.

"Placing my men near the window," he said, "so they can work in view of the public. I don't know of anything that catches the attention of the passer-by more quickly than the sight of a demonstrator sitting close to the window running a machine for dear life."

"Manufacturers of all kinds of goods have adopted this plan. Watchmakers put their most skilled workers on exhibition to show how the finest garments are cut and sewed. Cigar manufacturers take the public into their confidence and let them see the process of rolling as performed by the cleverest hands. Men who deal in mechanical contrivances have found that it pays to have at least one machine set up near a window so the crowd outside may observe the intricacy of its parts and the rapidity of its action. Jewelers have stationed their most expert lapidaries within view of the street that possible customers may see how precious stones are cut and polished and set.

"It isn't everybody who can work in public. It takes a person with good strong nerves and concentration of thought to do difficult work in a show window. I have men in my employ who are excellent workers, but they get flustered when subjected to unusual surveillance and ruin everything they put their hands to. I have tried some of them as window operators, but they can't get used to it."

"A man who can run a machine at full tilt or paint a picture or fry pancakes or iron a shirt in the full gaze of the public eye and not lose his head is an artist and worth several dollars more a week to his employer than the most modest individual. And he gets it too."—New York Sun.

Taking Sunday Collections.

An old and not yet obsolete mode of taking a collection in a Scotch church by means of a ladle—a small wooden box at the end of a straight wooden shaft about four and a half feet long, the top of the box being sufficiently open to receive contributions of money.

For all special collections this was the usual mode in the chief churches of Edinburgh when I was a boy at school 50 years ago, but it has gradually gone out of fashion and is not often to be seen nowadays.

For ordinary Sunday collections the general custom has been to have a metal plate or basin on a small table at the church entrance superintended by an elder—a mode which was often called the brod. When ladies are used, they are handed round the congregation by elders after the sermon or after the last psalm, and the common Scotch phrase to "lift" the collection may have come from this custom.—Notes and Queries.
