FRANKLIN'S WIFE .-- To promote her hasband's interests, she attended in his little shop, where she bought rage, sewed pamphlets, folded news- Will consult their own Interests by examining papers, and sold the few articles in which he dealt, such as ink, papers, lamp-black, blanks and other stationery. At the same time she was an excellent housekeeper, and besides being economical herself, taught her somewhat careless, disorderly husband to be economical also. Fometimes Franklin was clothed from head to foot in garments which his wife had both woven and made, and for a long time she performed all the work of the house wihout the assistance of a servant.

Neverthaless, she knew how to be liberal at proper times. Franklin prospered in his business until he became the most flourishing printer in America, which gave him the pleasure of relieving his wife from the care of business, and enabled him to provide for her a spacious and well furnished abode. She adorned a high station as well as she had borne a lowly one, and presided at her husband's liberal table as gracefully as when he ate his breakfast of bread and milk from a two-penny bowl .- Parton's Life of
