WIT AND HUMOR.

A man with a cast in his eye—a trout fisherman.—Texas Siftings.

Earnest prayer is the disinfectant of the soul.—Arkansaw Traveler.

The earthquake caused quite a movement in real estate.—New York Dial.

The only bar that tramps are familiar with—Crowbar.—New York Telegram.

Practical jokes—Those that are published and paid for.—New York Mail and Express.

The less religion a story has about it the more religiously we are apt to listen to it.—New York Mail and Express.

It will be nip and tuck this fall between the campaign liar and the dramatic advance agent.—Baltimore Amreican.

The man who sent us that poem entitled, "Come and Drink," is requested to send his address or call in person.—Lowell Times.

"To be weak is to be miserable"—that's boarding-house coffee. To be strong is to be more miserable still—that's boarding-school butter.—Judge.

"Ma! why is that darky equivalent to a conundrum?" "I am sure I don't know, my son." "Because he's a-nig-ma. See."—Yonkers Gazette.

A fashion paper, in describing a watering place belle's attire recently, said she wore carbuncles, and now that poor girl gets 300 different recipes for the cure of boils in every mail.—Washington Hatchet.

"So, you have finally made up your mind you won't have me?" he asked. "Yes, firmly," she replied. "I suppose you take me for a fool for proposing to you so often." "No, sir; I don't take you for a fool. I wouldn't have you for a gift."—Detroit Free Press.

A distinguished, circus snake charmer says. "You cannot get a good snake for less than $100." Ha; that must be a prohibition State. Most places you can get both boots full of first-class serpents, land and marine, with a hatful of lizards thrown in, for $25.—Burlington Hawkeye.

"I hear that your wife creates quite a sensation," said one Burlington man to another who had recently been married. "Well, I guess she does," replied the other dubiously, feeling of the bumps on his head. "But the sensations are not altogether so pleasant as might be wished.—Burlington Free Press.

Mme. Bernhardt—"Oh, doctaire! A grand party I will give to-night. It will hurt me not to stand in the draught to receive my guests, will it, doctaire?" Physician—"Stand not in the hall, my dear madame." Mme. Bernhardt—"But why?" Physician—"The guests might mistake you for a hat-rack."—Philadelphia Call.

"How wet the poor dear boy's hair is!" exclaimed the loving mother, as she placed her hand tenderly upon her child's head. "Playing out in the hot sun makes the perspiration start from every pore." And little William Henry turned aside as he thought to himself that he would go in swimming again just as often as he could while the hot weather lasted.—Lowell Citizen.

So you are anxious to ascertain what a pine needle is, eh? That's right; whenever you are groping in the devious paths of golden doubt, alway come to us and we will try to clear up the mystery. Some people are afraid to ask questions, for fear of exposing their ignorance by so doing. But you, gentle Florence, come out with a sweet, sophomoric grace and ask: What is a pine needle? and we reply with great pleasure: One of those sticks which butchers thrust through beef, and which are vulgarly termed "skewers."—Puck.

Killing Women.

The country appears to be passing through an epidemic of woman-murder. Every day humanity is shocked by some startling crime in which female helplessness is sacrificed to the brutality and homicidal instincts of man. The telegraph brings accounts of these revolting episodes from all parts of the country, and our own city has been within the last few months singularly prolific in such crimes. Only a few days since a murderous wretch paid the penalty of one of these terrible crimes upon the scaffold. He seemed to have imagined himself a hero, and acted as if he had done a meritorious thing. Scarcely had the community recovered from the shock which this horror produced than it was again startled with the details of a double murder, wherein, the man, crazed, perhaps, by a mutual debauch, first killed his female companion and then took his own life. A few months ago two similar tragedies were enacted in the very heart of the city. But it is not alone in San Francisco that such crimes are perpetrated. That story published the other day, about an insane woman who fell into the hands of a gang of navvies working on a railroad in Pennsylvania, who, after being subjected to the most revolting indignities, was then cruelly put to death, was fully equaled in the case of Maggie Connors in New York, whose terrible treatment was so fiendish that the whole country read it with amazement. Nor was the crime perpetrated in Chattanooga a few days since, in which a poor widow and her daughter were savagely butchered, devoid of a single detail of horror which rendered the others so revolting. Almost coincident with these terrible crimes is the sickening tragedy in Cleveland, where a poor sewing girl was horribly put to death by a gang of ruffians.

One cannot read the constant recurrence of these fearful outrages without fealing that the boasted protection to women accorded by American civilization is a myth and delusion. They form a combination of the most diabolical instances of barbarism and inhumanity of which the crimes of the century furnish examples. The brute strength and savage passions of men are reviling in a saturnalia of license and death, and women helplessly appeal for succor and protection. Only one thing can arrest the evil, the swift and terrible retribution of the law, and it ought to be administered with an inflexibility as relentless as the crimes it punishes.—Examiner.

HEADQUARTERS G. A. R.,
Toledo, Ohio, Sept., 13, 1883.

The country at this time is being agitated by a great political contest; and while it must be conceded by all that no class of citizens have a higher right to freely express their political opinions and take part in the campaign as their convictions shall dictate, than those who through unselfish patriotism went forth to save the nation, yet the commander-in-chief deems it his duty to remind comrades that the Grand Army of the Republic is strictly non-partisan. Our law upon this subject is plain and emphatic, as follows:

"No officer or comrade of the Grand Army of the Republic shall in any manner use the organization for partisan purposes, and no discussion of partison questions shall be permitted at any of its meetings, nor shall any nomination for political office be made."—See Chap. 6, Art. XI, R. and R.

It is therefore earnestly hoped that no post will violate this fundamantal law of our association by participating in any political demonstration whatever.

The wearing of a Grand Army badge or uniform at a political meeting is in the highest degree improper, and comrades should refrain from so offending against the spirit of our rules and regulations.

By command of

JOHN S. KOUNTS,
Commander in chief.

W. W. Alcorn, Adjutant General.

The Model Farm Horse.

Ours is an age of intense progression, and that progression is particularly intensified in America. We are a nation of workers. Neither night nor day, neither youth or old age, neither poverty nor affluence circumscribes our unceasing energy to labor. It has been very well said that very few Americans know how to live, for they have only one portion in life, namely, all work and no play. We are always in a hurry—hurry to eat, in order that we may hurry again to our never finished work. Work robs us of digestion and deprives us of recuperative sleep. The old-fashioned methods of farming were too slow, so that we have called into requisition the combined energies of steam and machinery to hasten the labors of seed time and harvest. When, therefore, intelligent attention is paid to the breeding of the model American farm horse, two elements will be absolutely prerequisites. We mean speed and power. He must be able to haul enormous burdens, and he must be ambitious to walk off with them at a brisk pace that would astonish the old-time farmers, whose horses imitate, in their movements, the pausing motion of yoked oxen. If the horse is a fast walker he will necessarily prove to be a brisk trotter, that is, he will move with energy and eagerness up to the limit of his trotting speed. In order to possess power, it is unnecessary to encumber him with the unwieldy frame and the tremendous weight of the heavy draft horse. Seventeen or eighteen hands in height, and two thousand pounds in weight, means a slow, heavy, elephantine tread, not in harmony with the rush and push of American civilization. All these classes of ponderous horses, like the Norman, the Clydesdale, and the English draft-horse, that have been so numerously imported into this country will answer valuable purposes by judicious crossing. They will become necessary factors in the evolution of the American farm horse. They will contribute height and weight, and the inherited ambition to overcome great burdens. But, unassisted by our own stains of blood, they could never produce the model farm horse. Their weight and slowness of motion would never bring them into general use for long journeys or transportation, where quick transit is a desideratum.—National Live-Stock Journal, Chicago.

Lady Millionaires.

Much has been written of the vast wealth of Vanderbilt and Gould. The possessions and treasure boxes of the Astors, the Stuyvesants and a dozen other millionaire families have all been dwelt upon, but the history of the millionaires of New York would be incomplete without the name of Miss Catharine Wolfe. Born in the humble walks of life, Miss Wolfe, through inheritance and her judicious management of the property left her, has become the richest lady in this country. She to-day has an income of $500,000 a year, and the vast tracts of real estate standing in her name at the present time are valued at between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000. Her property is also daily growing in value, and in a few years her annual income will be in the neighborhood of 1,000,000. Miss Wolfe is the daughter of the late Peter Wolfe, who, under the firm name of Wolfe & Bishop, did a wholesale business in hardware, tinware and general notions in a small shop in Chambers street many years ago.—New York Star.
