WIT AND HUMOR.

"Thank heaven," exclaimed a father, as he paced the floor at midnight with his howling heir, "thank heaven, you are not twins!"

There are "singing-fish" in the Indian ocean. They may be able to run over the scales, but it is not often they reach the "high sea."—Norristown Herald.

After all there is a vast deal of common sense in the remark of the deserter when he said, I'd rather be a coward all my life than be a corpse fifteen minutes.

A member of the Massachusetts Board of Education made the remark the other day that "pupils nowadays study so much that they dont know any thing.

"My watch is gone," exclaimed Toddelskins, emerging from a crowd. "Well, it's been going for a good while, hasn,t it?" was the unfeeling remark of his chum.

A young lady recently went to a fancy-dress ball as a champagne-bottle, cork and all complete. A gentleman was so ungallant as to say that she might have omitted the cork; her own head would have done very well.—Burlington Free Press.

"Mr. Simpkins," said Johnny to his sister's beau, "please open your mouth." "Why do you want me to open my mouth, my little man?" "'Cause I heard sister say you had a mouth like a whale, and I wanted to see what a whale's mouth looks like." Tableu.—Bohemian.

The other day a clerk in the Customhouse pointed to another employed and said to a friend: "He is a great artist." "Indeed I never knew he used his pencil at all." "Oh,yes,he's fine. Come down some day and see him draw his salary. It's the best thing he does."—N. Y. Times.

The tact with which Gladstone has carried through his franchise bill and redistribution scheme should commend it to all statesmen as a model for them to follow. The old man has not lost any of his astuteness as the years go over his head. He is one of England's ablest public men.

It is said that the sanitary condition of Toulon is so bad that it catches all the infectious diseases going. Up to the hour of going to press it had not caught the base-ball fever, and the European papers, therefore, are a little premature in demanding that the town be torn down and rebuilt.—Norristown Herald.

"Little boy," said a gentleman, "why do you carry that umbrella over your head? I'ts not raining." "Nop." "And the sun is not shining." "Nop." "Then why do you carry it?" "Cause when it rains pa wants it and when, the sun shines ma wants it, an' only when its this kinder wedder that I kin git ter use it at all."—N. Y. Mail.

When the late Bishop of London revisited the University Chapel at Cambridge, after long absence, he found the same verger there whom he remembered in his college days, and said to him, "You have much to be grateful for." "I have indeed, my lord," replied the old man, "for I have heard every sermon that has been preached in the chapel for fifty years, and, bless the Lord, I am a Christian still.

An Arizona editor was recently accused by a rival editor of seeking the office of postmaster under the Democratic Government. His indignant reply was as follows:—"The miserable scarecrow who tries to edit our disesteemed contemporary is lying, as usual. We don't want the postoffice; but we are in the hands of our friends; and by the Eternal, they'll see that we get it, whether we want it or not."

Feeding Grain to Horses.

The capacity of the horse's stomach is about sixteen quarts. The fact should be borne in mind by those who have charge of horses. In feeding grain to horses it is important that it should be fed at such a time that it may remain in the stomach as long as need be to secure its complete digestion. The nitrogenous elements, in which grain is richer than other foods, are better digested in the stomach than in the intestines. The grain should be fed after the hay has been eaten, and no other food or drink should be given for some time after, so that the grain may remain in the stomach until it is fully digested. If the grain is fed first, and then a ration, is for instance, of seven pounds of hay, the grain will speedily be forced from the stomach by the hay. In eating the hay, it will be mixed with four times its weight of saliva, and an hour and a half will be required for masticating it. In order to have the stomach digest well it should not contain more than ten quarts at a time, and, in eating seven pounds of hay, the animal swallows at least two stomachfulls of hay and saliva, one of those having passed on into the intestines. If the grain had been fed first before the hay, the grain would have speedily passed out of the stomach into the intestines, where it will digest less completely than if allowed to remain in the stomach. It is the office of the stomach to digest the nitrogenous parts of the food, and as the oats or corn contain four or five times as much of these as the same amount of hay, it is obviously more important to have the grain subjected to the full action of the gastric juices then to have the hay retained there. Hence in feeding grain it should be fed after the hay ration has been eaten. This is a matter well worth remembering in feeding horses.—Farmer.

Any one of a logical turn of mind who had been present upon the seawall yesterday afternoon would most surely have been convinced of the fact that the dog is the smartest animal of the brute creation. A small terrier dog fell from the stringer of the wharf into the bay. He swam around for some time in a circle, and many plans were suggested for his rescue by witnesses to the misfortune, but none of them proved practicable. The little creature seemed doomed, for it was apparent that he was fast becoming exhausted. Just at the moment that hopes of saving the terrier were given up, the bark of a dog in the crowd attracted attention, and there appeared a large Newfoundland. He saw the dog in the water, and with a low wail he ran to and fro along the wharf for a moment or two, and then sprang into the water and swam to the terrier, seized him by the back with his teeth, and after swimming around for some time sighted the new sea-wall extension about a hundred yards distant, for which he headed. He was eagerly watched by the admiring crowd until he reached his destination, when everybody started on a simultaneous run toward the rescuer. Upon landing his burden the Newfoundland gave two or three sharp barks, and seemed to be proud of what he had done. It was some time before the terrier was able to gain strength to walk away.—San Francisco Alta.

In summer, when the ground is dry,
Our wayward minds impressing
With what is meet—what we should buy—
Light calf skin is a blessing.
But, when the rain descends, and mud
Impedes perambulation,
We need a boot both strong and good
To reach our destination.
Go to Dean & Huntington's—
They will fit and please you;
They keep every thing,
From stout boots for winter,
To light ones for spring.
