North Fork and Norway Items.

Ed. Herald:—Seeing this part rather neglected, I will give you a few items.

Crops and gardens are looking fine. The weather has been very dry for some time past, but we had a nice and refreshing shower last night.

Ella Hodson and her sister, Mrs. Dillon, have been visiting their brother, Byron Hodson, at this place.

Mrs. Ohman, of Marshfield, has been visiting friends and relatives in this place the past week.

Mrs. Capt. Reed and Miss Minnie McClosky have returned from Marshfield where they have been visiting friends and relatives.

Master George Carl had the misfortune while working in the Norway mill, to get all the flesh torn off his finger. It seems as if he got it caught in the rope while drawing up a log—be careful next time, George.

Mr. Sam Barklow, wife, son and three daughters, of this place, started this week on a visit to friends in the Willamette valley. We wish them a pleasant visit.

Mr. Halter has a large crew of men at work on his tramway and it will soon be ready for use.

The new bridge at Mr. Fox's place is now being built and it will soon be up and ready for use. Mr. F. had the misfortune to have one of his oxen crippled the other day, but he has got a new teamster now. Sam is a good ox driver and things will be all right again.

A sociable spelling match was had at the Norway school house the other night. Miss Ella Belieu was found to be the best speller and Nathan Barklow second. All enjoyed themselves splendidly. After spelling, they all with Nathan, who took the Blues, went home with light hearts. These spelling schools are of interest to the parents, but more especially to the scholars, and we hope they will be successfully carried on through the summer.

On Sunday last, while Mr. Sam Belieu was down at Parkersburg on business, and his family were all gone from home, some persons, tramps or mischievous boys entered the house, broke and destroyed dishes, windows, helped themselves to all the dinner they wanted to eat, searched the house all through, misplacing everything as if they were searching for money. They even took some of Mr. Belieu's clothing and stuffed them with rags and other clothing, and piled them on the bed and covered them with a white sheet so as to imitate a man in bed. This was evidently done to scare Mrs. B. and her children. On looking around they found that one window was gone and no trace of it could be found for several days, when a terrible roaring was heard in the chimney, and soon pieces of glass and sticks came tumbling down and they soon ascertained that the window was up in the chimney, and from the fire it made Mr. B. says he thinks that there were sticks up the chimney, too, and that it was undoubtedly done to set the house on fire. Whoever these persons are, they had better go careful, for if any more devilment is done, the best effort will be made to ascertain who they are. Ned Ray.
