COOS BAY

A Fine Harbor. A Rich country of flattering Promise.

ITS FUTURE PROPHESIED AND Portrayed by a HERALD Reporter.

Few places, if indeed there are any, on the Pacific coast, that at once present the inducements for the investment of capital that are offered at Coos bay. The harbor is second to none in the state in point of depth and safety of entrance now, and with the completion of the government improvement on the bar, it will not have an equal. Already there are several fine sawmills whose daily capacity is nearing the half million point, but that only points to what will yet be done there. When we get back into an era of ship-building, the bay will present a busy appearance. Our timber for this purpose is so vastly superior to that of the east—which is evident by the fact that demands from Maine have been made on us—that the great desideratum will be our capacity, rather than the place and the lucky person who gets the job of building. It may be presumed that this is over-drawn in the light of the fact that the whole Oregon coast is fairly supplied with the same kind of timber, which is in a measure true, but where are the harbors? Ship-building cannot be carried on in the ocean beyond or in creeks. Shipbuilding is not the only resource of this favored port. The time is coming when the lumber will not be shipped away wholly in its rough state, but it will be manufactured into finished material of the several kinds needed.

The immense rich coal deposits will become a prime factor in this wonderful development. Our near proximity to the San Francisco market will ever give us prestige in this trade. The fact of Southern railroads pushing lines into Washington Territory for coal must impress our people with the importance of our position, and this particular resource. We have everything to expect from it. The past judgment in the premises furnishes no adequate conception of the future. The population of the coast will soon be quadrupled, thus increasing demand greatly, while in the past timber, now gone, was a large help. Advanced modes of transportation will inure largely to our advantage also, and these are forth coming.

The dairy interest, as the rich, loamy lands are denuded of their timber, must be manifest to the most obtuse. Our climate is peculiarly adapted to cheese and butter making, as well as stock-raising; and the fine lands on the various rivers, creeks and sloughs emptying into Coos bay, with the aid of the hill pastures, will raise food for a world of stock. The production of wool will also be looked after, since the first known is the product raised here.

The varied industries mentioned will always create a fine home market, and already this has developed an industry—as it will many others—that will in itself prove of very great importance, namely: fishing, and when we speak of this, we include all that can be and is being done in that line. It is well known that most excellent and extensive fishing banks exist just off the coast, where the Nichols Bros. fished the last season. The time is coming when fishermen can be seen by the hundreds on these banks, not only supplying local, but foreign markets as well. Herring fishing on the bay is one of the ranches of this industry that will come to the fore in the future, the fish becoming more numerous every season. Clams and crabs could be profitably canned, but we see no prospect of its being done. Both are plentiful and of excellent quality. Salmon fishing at the present time constitutes a large and profitable industry and we have no doubt but that it is a profitable there will see to it—as it can be done with comparatively small outlay—that the business is not allowed to wane, but that its every interest be promoted. Upon the whole, it is safe to say that Coos bay will always be a large gainer by the fishing business.

In the way of fruit, back from the coasts a few miles all the land is good—in fact no better can be found any where. A sufficiency for the whole coast can be grown on the hills of Coos county. Indeed there is no good reason why the fruit business should not prosper in point of importance that of any other on the bay, or in the county. Every acre of the many thousands of Isthmus slough burnt hills is good for two to three hundred dollars per annum in fruit, and much more if put in prunes and the product dried. It may be urged that these lands are not adapted to fruit, and we have heard such, but it is a mistake and we know whereof we speak. There is no better land, but it requires cultivation. Otherwise the fruit will be small. Fruit canneries should, and will some time adorn the hills of the bay, and the shipping of green fruit could be made an inexhaustible source of income, to hundreds—yes thousands—of people.

One of these industries will bring about another until all will be in full operation, and we can see the beginning now. The lumbering is the opening wedge and in the past year there has been a big and forward move that bids fair to increase with time. The old and oft repeated story of Coos bay's timber being worked out is a misrepresentation. By the use of railroads, we find the best timber belts are just now being tapped. Besides, there will be a great demand for small and second growth timber for spars, piling etc., which has not been touched in the past. Thus we see prosperity in the future, and a most profitable field for investment now, at our neighboring port.

Iowa Slough Items.

Sunshine after showers.
Mrs. Cavette, of Fishtrap, is visiting her mother Mrs. Kight this week.

Alce Noster starts for Sumner Saturday morning at 4 o'clock. We don't blame you Abe; a month at a time is long enough away.

It is hoped that Iowa slough will have a new school house soon. Mr. Omer Marsh, who is visiting at his aunt, Mrs. Noster, will soon return to his home at Portland.

Wonder who goes a piece bit out of his Sunday-go-to-meeting hat.

Mr. W. T. Kight is fixing to build himself a new residence.

Several of Iowa slough's young folks attended church at Beaver slough last Sunday.

Iowa slough is to have 2 or 3 new houses soon.

Lodi is felling logs, cutting brush, and burning stumps. He says he is going to have a new house. Now Lodi, that looks suspicious.

Little Melvie Cavette is quite sick at the present writing.

CAPITOLA.

Miss Georgina Cammann, of Empire City, starts soon to Europe where she will reside with her aunt. A correspondent of the News speaking of a farewell party given here, says: To show the high esteem in which she is held, her friends determined to make her farewell party an occasion long to be remembered. The Cosmopolitan hall was secured, which afforded sufficient room for all to attend. Flowers were artistically arranged in beautiful wreaths and bouquets for decorating purposes. Two tables extending the length of the hall were abundantly supplied with the choicest of viands. The fore part of the evening was spent in social chats, games, music, etc. Supper was served at 10:30, after which the floor was cleared for dancing. This was continued till a late hour, when all adjourned with a regret that this would probably be the last time they could be privileged to enjoy Miss Cammann's society, but nevertheless wishing her a pleasant journey.

San Francisco commercial men are carried away with Coquille apples. We heard a number of them speaking on the subject the other day and they declared that such apples as they saw in this place would bring fabulous prices in the city. A couple of them bought some and sent them down as a sample of Coos county product.

Local and General.

New goods at Lorenz's, and the prices the very lowest.

Curry county gave Harrison about 80 majority.

A terrible blizzard visited Illinois Iowa and Missouri on the 10th inst.

Snow fell to the depth of 2½ feet along the St Lawrence river last week.

The Occident water company has been extending its branch pipes.

Fifty-two men were killed in a mine explosion at Pittsburg, Kansas, a few days ago.

John Walstrom's babe, at Parkersburg, was very sick and a doctor from this place called on Thursday.

Rochester, N. Y., had a $250,000 fire ten days ago in which more than a dozen persons lost their lives.

The biggest and best stock of stoves ever received on the river are just being invoiced at Kronenberg & Yager's hardware store. Go see, buy and be happy.

FOUND.—A pair of spectacles was found a few days since near Myrtle Point which the owner can have by proving and paying for this notice. Apply to J. J. Wilson, this place.

FINE GRASS.—We have noticed the ranges of late and find the grass never was better at this season of the year. New comers say it reminds them of the spring season. Stock is doing nicely on the hills.

HIGH BOAT.—Sovereign Peterson and Henry Rhoner had high boat this season salmon fishing on this river, and caught 1400 fish. Considering the poor run, and the great number of boats fishing, they did right well.

Mr. G. W. Wimer received an important business letter from Grants Pass a few days since mailed Oct. 9th—something over a month en route. What is the matter with our mail service? Some postmaster needs ousting.

We are asked to give the political complexion of our congress of three months ago, to settle a bet. We have not the time to look the matter up to give exact figures, but it is safe to say that it was democratic by several majority on joint ballot. The bet(ter) way is hard on some people.

The quartz mill of the Salmon Mountain Mining company is idle for want of water. With more rain, work will begin on the rock already taken out. Coos county people look with much anxiety to the success of this company, as it means the development of the rich quartz veins underlying the Southern part of this county and the northern part of Curry county.

SECOND CROPS.—Elder G. R. Edmunds of Fishtrap has harvested a second crop of each peas and potatoes that were fully as good in every respect as the first. The potatoes were of an early variety and digging the first crop thoroughly cultivated the stray seed left in the ground, and they came forth matured and made a fine yield. The Coquille valley is truly a productive one.

A fine farm is being made by C. H. Merchant, the Marshfield merchant and saw-mill man, between the towns of Marshfield and Newport. The land is overflowed marsh, and a dike some four feet high is being thrown up around it on the bay and Coal Bank slough side, to prevent the incursions of tides. There must be some hundreds of acres of the land, which is level almost as still water, and exceedingly rich. The dike consists of square blocks of sod set one upon another like brick, and forms a good fence. The land is covered with a kind of coarse marsh grass, but which affords fair range.

(Gold Beach Gazette.)
There are but two political parties in Curry county—Republicans and Democrats.

The fishing season is reported almost a failure at Chetco. It is said the entire catch will not exceed 300 barrels.

The fishing season closed last Saturday, and the lands were paid off. The catch has been rather lighter than usual.

The steamer Thistle returned from the Klamath Sunday, bringing up some of the boys who have been fishing at that place, the season having closed there. The steamer returned to the Klamath Monday for the purpose of bringing up the schooner Merriam, which is filled with salt salmon.
