Oakland Letter.

Editor HERALD.—Since my last to your paper many things have occurred in this portion of the world to show us that the wheel of time and progress is still in motion. The motors and other steam car lines go right on killing "the lame, the halt and blind" (to say nothing of the deaf ones who never escape) as though it were done by city ordinance. In a former letter I promised to give you an outline of the places of interest and amusement in San Francisco. I will only mention the leading ones. First, most prominent and popular of them all is the Golden Gate Park, which is free to all, be they rich or poor. The park tract is one-half mile wide and commencing at a point three miles from the new city hall (formerly Dennis Kearney's sand lot) and extends to the ocean. The park is being improved more than ever with promises of some great strides in the near future, and as it belongs to the city we may realize some of the many promises. The seal rocks and Cliff house are as usual attracting large crowds. Sutro gardens at the cliff are becoming more and more attractive; these are the private property of Adolph Sutro. They are free, however, and upon which money has been lavishly expended. The cliffs are black with great roaring seals from morning until night; the impression the sight of a few hundreds of them makes on the mind is sufficient to remain during one's lifetime. "Ben Butler," the huge seal whose presence there has been noted ever since the early settlement of California does not appear of late, and it is claimed by the wise ones that he is dead. I have seen him years ago, and noticed that he was much larger than his associates. The "Presidio" or government headquarters is a nice place, and under Gen. Nelson A Miles' strict discipline, is sought after as a place of amusement, and especially on occasions of sham battles or during parades. The 22nd day of February is a gala day there. It is reached by Union St. cars. Woodward's gardens, owing to the death of its former proprietor, has depreciated both in patronage and appearance, but is trying to get on its pegs again. It is now the property of heirs who have resorted to litigation, hence the decline. The Examiner's "monarch" grizzly figures quite conspicuously in the gate receipts now a days, but no old hunter goes to see him more than once, for he knows at a glance that he is nothing more than an over-grown "he old" black bear such as robs the bee gums and hog pens in your country, and knocks over the slop barrel in the rear of the HERALD office every other night. The Examiner deserves great praise all the same for its enterprise, not alone in its bear capturing question, but for its out-spoken attitude for the public good, and now that it has again taken up the fight against the Chinese, we may hope to turn another cog in the direction of getting rid of them. China town is also a place of interest since the whole question of the prudence of having them among us may be settled forever in one's mind by remaining in that ghoulsome pandemonium but a single hour. The gardener and lawn mower of these two cities who has a family to support must charge $2.50 and $3 per diem for his services—the Chinese gardener who wears a two-dollar suit of clothes and has no family gets the work to do because he can do that same job for a dollar to a dollar and a half a day. The fruit and vegetable peddler must keep a horse and wagon, hence must have regular prices for his stuff to enable him to keep up the expense of a team—the Chinese peddler takes two baskets and with a pole over his shoulder can sell a third lower and clear more money. You see them in business everywhere; they make boots and shoes and clothing; they wash, garden and even build our railroads; they take preference as servants, though they steal from every house in which they work. The day is coming when they must be put out of the country, for the hundreds they are starving now will have increased to thousands for an inch one once gained by them is never lost and the end will come. Poor and destitute women and children crying for bread will be heard when the right time comes—woe then to the pig-tails. The United States mint is another interesting place to go, and may be seen for nothing by applying at the proper hours. A director or usher shows visitors through in classes. Every stage of making the precious metal is exhibited.

I fear I am taking up too much of your space. The weather here since the big storm is all that could be desired, and Oakland is a bed of roses. Health is good here though in San Francisco there is an over-dose of typhoid fever. The market is full of Oregon apples, and I long for the day when Oregon potatoes may take the place of California's bonsted irrigated (watery) product.

More anon, W.

Drowned on the Bar.

A sad accident occurred at the entrance to the bay last Thursday, by which B. Petersen and Samuel Jagny lost their lives. It seems that the two unfortunate men, in company with Lyman Nutter and Will Smith, had been prospecting the fishing grounds off Cape Arago, and landed their boats at the Big creek fishing station Wednesday, where the party stopped over night. On Thursday forenoon Petersen and Jagny in one boat, and Nutter and Smith in the other, put to sea and made sail for the bay, intending to cross in on the first of the flood. When they arrived at the bar a strong ebb tide was running, and Nutter stood off shore, and was surprised to see Petersen's boat standing in for the bar, which was breaking heavily. The boat, which was a Columbia river fishing boat, road the first breaker all right, but was caught by the next roller and capsized. Mr. Westdahl, of the coast survey, was on the bluff with his crew at the time, and saw the accident occur. One of the men climbed on to the bottom of the upturned boat, but was soon washed off and drowned. The other was seen holding on to the rudder iron for a few moments, but the heavy surf soon wore out his strength, and he disappeared from view beneath the angry breakers. The other boat tacked up and down by the bay, so as to render assistance if an opportunity presented itself. It would have been sheer madness to have attempted to cross in to where the accident happened and would undoubtedly have resulted in adding two more names to the death list.

J. J. Galvin, of the life-saving station, accompanied by Carl Goodman, assistant lighthouse keeper, went to South slough, and got out their best boats, and started immediately for the scene, but were too late to render help to the unfortunate men. They picked up the boat near the South spit, and also a sack of clothing and bedding.

Petersen was a Norwegian, about 35 years old, and came to the bay from Astoria about four or five months ago. Jagny was a Frenchman, and also came here from Astoria. They were good, square, honest fellows, who bore the respect of those who knew them. They were also competent boatmen and good sailors, and Lyman Nutter is of the opinion that their time piece must have been wrong otherwise, he says, Petersen was too experienced a bar man to attempt crossing in against a strong ebb and a heavy surf.—News.

One must be deficient in even the commonest senses of justice to advocate the "single tax theory." It is a pity that so long as we have any of these fools, we did not have enough of them to justify the employment of a fool killer. The poor farmer in this country pays the taxes now, or at least an unjust proportion of them, but to make a law that his land must bear the whole burden, leaving the banker and money lender go free, would be the disgrace in name that it is really in fact.

Fearless Wrecked.

All Hands Lost on the Umpqua Bar.

The tug Fearless, James Hill, master, Henry Grow engineer, went to pieces on the Umpqua bar early Tuesday night, and all hands consisting of 8 persons were drowned. The following from Gardiner was the first word to arrive.

"The tug Fearless of North Bend went to pieces on this bar about 7 p. m. yesterday, all hands drowned. The wreckage has been passing up by here all the forenoon flood. Will Merchant picked up her name, and part of her stern lays on the spit opposite town. The other part lays below the mill bottom up. The boat when found had the oars in and well lashed. We heard her whistle for about two minutes, steadily, but not a sound after that. This was just at 7 p. m. A crowd went down this morning on the Juno and have just returned. They could find no trace of bodies. The Fearless was seen ten miles north of the bar at 3 p. m. It is the opinion of those above here that she was in trouble and the fact that she was four hours in reaching the bar, proves it. Although it was fearful rough they were trying to get inside, dark as it was. The machinery and boiler have not been seen. They are likely on the bar where the boat struck. The wreckage shows that she must have had an awful thresh-ing, for the greater part was reduced to kindling wood, passing here continually for four hours. A party of men will go from here to-morrow. Persons at Winchester bay at the mouth of the river say that there was no possible show for any one to be saved in such a fearful sea in the dark."

Capt. Hill just lost on the Fearless was a brave and fearless master and one of the best men in the world. He come near losing his life and all hands in the wreck of the old tug Fearless many years ago, and was driven to the strats of swimmingshore through the surf with a rope in his teeth—which act saved the others on board. He also came near losing his life when the Sol Thomas blew up. He was at the wheel and was blown high in air and dropped in the bay, while all hands were torn into shreads.

He was well fixed in this world's goods, and leaves upwards of $50,000 for his bereaved wife and children.

Henry Grow was a son of Mr. Grow of Coaledo, a noble young man beloved by all who knew him.

In a recent article in the Youth's Companion, on "How to cure a cold," the writer advises a lemonade to be taken at bed time. It is a dangerous treatment, especially during the severe cold weather of the winter months, as it opens the pores of the skin and leaves the system in such condition that another and much more severe cold is almost certain to be contracted. Many years constant use and the experience of thousands of persons of all ages, has fully demonstrated that there is nothing better for a severe cold than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It acts in perfect harmony with nature, relieves the lungs, liquefies the tough tenacious mucus, making it easier to expectorate, and restores the system to a strong and healthy condition. Fifty-cent bottles for sale by J. H. Nosler, Coquille City, and W. L. Dixon, Myrtle Point.

The rapid development of these United States is truly wonderful. A little over 50 years ago we did not have a mile of railroad, and now we have 167,000 miles. A kick was made against the acquirement of Oregon as a territory of the Union in that it would require a representative from it a year to reach the national capital. Now a fortnight is a long trip and the trip can be made in half the time.

James Wimer returned from Dillards on Wednesday where he had gone to receive a young thoroughbred Polled bull. The youngster is but six months old but weighs 475 lbs. James is determined to keep the best stock to be had at any cost. He got this animal from L. F. Ross, Esq., president of the Red Pole society of America, Mount Prospect farm, Iowa city.
