TUESDAY, DEC. 10 1889.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Charley Dye is building a dwelling out on Beech street. We are glad to welcome him as a townsman for he is a good fellow.

Duck shooting has been better so far this winter than for two or three years. Yet it lacks much of being what it was many years ago.

Upwards of 500 men are engaged in sturgeon fishing on the Columbia, and they are doing better than when fishing for salmon.

Died.—At Crescent City, Cal.,on Nov. 18, Mary Driscoll, mother of Mrs. N. McNamara, Mrs. Joseph Younker, and Mrs. Haynes, aged 82 years.

Johnny Lehnherr has fetched up at Nordhoff, Cal. the climate of San Diego not agreeing with him. He is much improved since going to the former place.

BOSTON'S FIRE.—The Hub city had an awful fire on Thanksgiving day destroying twenty acres of the heart of the city and entailing a loss of $7,000,000. Upwards of one hundred of the largest wholesale stores in the city were burned.

The local correspondent of the News should post himself, as many of his items are wrong. The Dutch boy shoemaker was the man Lars Samuelson, a scandinavian, and it was the Rebekah's and not the O. E. S. that was to have given a dance here Saturday night.

Eugene O Connel recieved a letter from H. P. Whitney, San Deigo, which states that the writer is again a happy father this time of a daughter; also that the prospects of San Diego are brightening after the collapse of the boom, and that correspondence is in progress which may result in the opening of important relations with Coos bay. —Mail.

A writer says the framer of the Chinese lumber tariff seems to have built it with one eye on the big fir trees of this coast and the other on the Chinese lumber importer, as it costs as much to get a picket through a Chinese custom house as it does to get a timber two feet square and one hundred feet long. It were a pity if Uncle Sam was the only one of the many countries to get up an unequal and unjust tariff.

Miss Mollie Lehman, formerly of this place, has purchased a lot of land in eastern Oregon and become a full fledged granger. She is one of the best teachers in the state as we know, she having served as principal of Coquille City's public schools for a long time. By judicious investments and her good sense she has accumulated quite a little fortune, and not content with that she now proposes to bring the good lands of eastern Oregon to account in enhancing her property interests. She is studying medicine and proposes going to one of the eastern medical colleges next season. Her many friends wish her worlds of success.

Capital is needed on this coast to develop our mines. There are many lodes that will ran up from $20 to $100 per ton but most of it less than $50. That less than $75 is wholly worthless, though it should be found right by a railroad depot as $20 per ton is the cheapest for which roads will carry it to the smelters. It is well known that $12 will amply pay, so while we are rich in valuable mines, they are of no utility whatever. They are making mints of money up in Alaska crushing $10 and $12 rock and ours ten times as rich, altogether worthless. We must have smelters. Coos Co. is abundantly able to supply one with worlds of material as soon as roads could be built.

Killed For His Money.

ROSEBURG, Nov. 28.—Finis Cain, an employe of the Southern pacific Railroad, near Riddle, was murdered last night for the purpose of robbery. His watch and some change was taken. Two tramps were arrested on suspicion of being the murderers, but were released, there not being sufficent evidence to bind them over.

A Fine Collection.

Uncle Henry Camman at his home in Empire has the finest collection of curios from the ocean to be found on the Pacific coast without doubt. It has taken several years of arduous toil, energy and a deal of good judgement and rare taste to get the collection. His taste to learn in nature's great school has led him on till his collection can not only be counted by the thousands of pieces, but by the hundreds of thousands. It would take many wagons and teams to draw it, and would be worth many thousand dollars in some of the middle states. His heaviest specimens consist of petrified sections of whales some of them weighing near two hundred pounds. The collection of vertebrae is most complete, embracing hundreds ranging from those as large as a man can lift down to the size of a person's thumb. They are especially interesting to a student of natural history. To the owner all is plain, and his explanations are very interesting. He will show you all the different mollusks that have ever inhabited this part of our coast, and they are many and often very rare. Many of these as well as of nearly all other specimens, are extinct, and he determines the age in which they lived by the state in which they are found. For instance some are only found in the crystalized state while others are agatized, etc. His specimens of toredo and their work are simply perfect. Of petrified woods, there is no end to quantity or variety. In the way of star fish, crabs, barnacles, etc., his collection is especially interesting and to none more so than the less observant person who has lived along our coast. Who has seen star fish with four points? He has them with from four to eighteen points. The average coaster will tell you that we have but one or two kinds of crabs but here you will find scores of them as well as a variety of barnacles. One of the latter, now extinct, was very pretty, resembling a rosebud with its leaves commencing to unfold. The prettiest and most valuable of all is the collection of mosses, for specimens of which the owner has been repeatedly offered ten dollars. There are thousands of pieces and they have been pressed between folds of paper, being kept in their original and natural state. Many small pieces he has beautifully arranged and varnished over in large and finely polished clam shells. They are very pretty and by lots of coaxing some have been purchased of the owner at five dollars each, but ordinarily he refuses to sell anything. The editor of this paper was shown the whole collection and is the only person that has been so favored. He feels amply paid for the four days that he was hustled through this great museum, and returns his sincere thanks to Mr. Camman for kindnesses shown him.

Letter From Rev. Swafford.

On leaving Coos county so many asked us to write to them that I fear I cannot comply except in a kind of wholesale way. I shall ever retain most grateful recollections of your people as being about the best hearted people I most ever fell in with. It was hard to break loose from them. Well, after a thirteen day's trip by steamer, hack, wagon, railroad then wagon again, we arrived upon our new charge, and had a hearty welcome. That scenery by the way! There was the wild, dreamy bewildering east Coquille canyon; then the enchanting Umpqua valley with its ten thousand oak-crowned hills and unrivaled wealth of varied beauty and loveliness; the Sierra's vast roll of mountains on mountains piled; next, the blue, dizzy heights along the Applegate and Rogue river valleys: and last, but not least, the old snow-capped Siskiyous, lying in awful grandeur against the southern sky. Some compensation, all this, for the toils of journey. Coos county is without doubt, in a more prosperous condition than any part I have seen. One reason I think is, there are too many towns out here. They absorb rather than give life. I hope Coos will not make a like mistake. In the very nature of things, there can never—in our day—be more than three real good towns on the Coquille. But these three, Coquille City, Myrtle Point and Bandon are bound to succeed because the very necessities of the county make these towns a necessity. Concentrate on these, build them up, and when a railroad is projected into that county they will have a power that the railroad company can't safely ignore. Jacksonville cut her own throat by being penurious and contrary with the railroad company—a lack of public spirit.

We do not often find a man with soul big enough to take in a whole town, or one of whom nearly every man in the town and surrounding country can truly say: "He has been a true friend to me," but, my mind is now on just such a man in one of your towns.

Times are very dull out here. Crops very short the past season. We have been having snow and winter in general.

Few people here seem to realize that there is such a difference in this climate and that of Coos. Your Bandon correspondent is doing that country a great service by publishing to the world the climatic facts of that part. I should not be surprised if you zhould soon get a great many more of the good people of Josephine county. Coos is sure to win.

H. B. SWAFFORD.

In the snow storms in New Mexico some weeks ago 35 perished in the cold.

[Gold Beech Gazette.]

The schooner Chetco left San Francisco on the 20th, for this place,but has not put in an appearance yet. She will be the last vessel to arrive until toward spring,though the Thistle will make several trips to Crescent City.

Johnny Culver, who has been clerking in Mr. Hume's store for some time, is confined to his room with a badly swollen and very painful leg, resulting from a hurt received while attending school a few years ago. He is in a serious condition, although Dr Tyler, who is attending him, has hopes of bringing him out all right.

The Road Commissioners were up examining the roadjust completed by D. L. Moore, but for some reason,good and sufficient,no doubt, the road was not accepted.
