The laborers and wealth produeers want money plentifully and interest low

The money gamblers want money scarce and interest high.

These two classes are now at issue and the test for the mastership is now pending.

If the class who thrive by the spoliation of thrift are victorious, then devastation, poverty and ruin will sweep over the land. If the class whose interests are best subserved by universal prosperity should dominate, then gen-

A SPEECH BY INGALLS.

The ex-Republican Senator Opens the Cam-paign in Kansas, and Becomes Quite Populistic—to Catch Suckers. DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF THE LABORER

At the Labor Day celebration in campaign. The ex-senator openly says he is a candidate for his old seat. He is taking a friendly stand in favor of silver in his speeches. After speaking in a general way on labor topics, Senator Ingalls turned his attention to the last congress: "If this were a congress inadequate, incompetent, insincere, hostile it was not the constituents that sent them here."

Turning to the charges that seats were bought in the United States senate, he laid the blame at the same door, those who elected senators. He said:

"There is one remedy; abolish the present antiquated, clumsy, superand let them be elected by a direct vote of the people of the state as they ought to be elected."

This statement was loudly cheered. Ingalls went a step further and said that the only way to purify the government was to trust the people, and he even favored the election of rect vote. He roundly scored the Standard Oil company and various against indiscriminate immigration. He closed by urging the working-man to remember that the redress of his wrongs is in his own hands.

New Neighbors and How to Treat

No one in Greyville seemed to know anything about the family that had just moved into the At the Labor Day celebration in brick house. Whence came they? Topeka, Kansas, ex-Senator Ingalls spoke from the same platform with name? Nobody knew. It was J. R. Burton, who is looked upon as known only that the strange family Ingalls' principal opponent in the consisted of a man and his wife, race for the United States senator-ship. Their apperance was regarded ship. Their apperance was regarded neighbors. Mr. Dike, on passing as the opening of the senatorial the house and seeing the man at work in the garden, said: "Good morning, neighbor!"

The man smiled, bowed, but said nothing.

"My wife," continued Mr. Dike, will soon call on your wife."

The man shook his head, then resumed work without a word.

"Lots o'manners you've got, haint you!" shouted Mr. Dike, and he walked off with a scowl. By night to the best interest of this country, all the neighbors knew that callers were not wanted at the brick house. But why this fear of callers?

The neighbors watched the house. The man, while in the garden, called his dog, but did not say "Come, Fido," nor did he whistle. He called with low, discreet sounds, evidently in a voice disguised. Soon he looked toward the house, making with his hands queer gestures.

His wife ran out at once and fed fluous and detrimental method of the chickens. And she, too, in choosing senators by legislatures calling the chickens, said not a word. She just stood there, her blue dress bathed in sanshine, and threw from her white apron the handfuls of corn silently. "They are afraid their voices may be recognized," whispered a neigh-bor; and Mr. Dike hastened downtown to investigate further. He saw in the railway station a printed notice offering five hundred dollars president and vice-president by di- reward for information that would lead to the arrest of a band of counterfeiters, one woman and two men.

knocked on the door. No answer. He knocked again loud and long. No answer. Then he shouted: "Open the door. You can no longer deceive me!" A fearfol barking was then heard within, as if the dog was running from room to room to give the alarm. A light soon gleamed through the windows, the door opened and the procession marched in. The man and woman bowed politely, but did not betray themselves by speaking. Not a single word did they say.

"Who on earth are you?" demanded Mr. Dike. The woman smiled, bowed, seemed alarmed, but said nothing. The man, as silent as she and blushing deeply, went quickly into the next room, but ten men followed him. He went to a table and wrote on a slate which he then appurtenances and implements of banded to Mr. Dike, who read: "My poor little wife and I are Reader, did you ever take SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR, the "KING OF LIVER MEDICINES?" Everybody needs take a liver remedy. It is a singgish or diseased liver that impairs digestion and causes constipation, when the waste that should be carried off remains in the body and poisons the whole system. That dull, heavy feeling is due to a torpid liver. Biliousness, Headache, Malaria and Indigestion are all liver diseases. Keep the liver active by an occasional dose of Simmons Liver Regulator and you'll get rid of these troubles, and give tone to the whole system. For a laxative Simmons Liver Regulator is BETTER THAN PILIS. It does not gripe, nor weaken, but greatly refreshes and strengthens.
