TRIBUTE TO AMERICAN WOMANHOOD.

Extract from the Speech of Mr. Colvig at Salem, Or., October 27, 1896.

"Our friends, the enemy, have descended to the lowest grade of guerilla warfare in this campaign. They respect no code of honor, but attack the weak and helpless, as well as those who dare to meet them on an open field.

"Since the pioneer days of old, the daily Oregonian has been the great lever of public opinion. The great educator of Republican political thought on this northwest coast. Its editor, Harvey Scott, has been the leader—the general, who has shaped the destiny of that party in this state. He is a writer of great force and ability. When he writes of those who oppose him, his pen is dipped in gall and guided by the spirit of a demon. Neither youth, age nor sex, is spared the venom of his nature. In this campaign he has exceeded all former efforts in his chosen field of abuse and epithet.

"But a few weeks since, in an editorial—Bismarck, the leading statesman of Europe—was characterized as a 'bunco-steerer,' and a 'humbug.' Hon. William J. Bryan, the fearless champion of the people, was styled by this conceited egotist, Scott, by the blackguard term of 'Bunco Bill,' and Mrs. Bryan, his wife, as a 'country-bred wife.' Pardon me, ladies and gentlemen, if for a few moments I hold this slanderer of American womanhood up to the public gaze.

"In 1872 I was teaching school in Tremont, Tazewell county, Illinois—some of Mr. Scott's people lived there, and his relatives attended my school. I think he was born in that town. I know from whence comes the 'blue,' aristocratic blood that flows in his veins? God never made people more country-bred than the scion of a noble line of country people. Yes, the little brown-eyed woman, who as a girl stood by the side of Wm. J. Bryan during the days of his school life, that graduated with him in the university and the law school, who stood by him at the marriage altar, and in the days that have followed has been the queen of his heart and his home, and the mother of his children, is 'country-bred.' Aye! as country-bred as the old wrinkled mother of Garfield whom he stooped and kissed as soon as he had taken the oath of office as president of this great country; as country-bred as the mother who gave a Lincoln to the world. As 'country-bred' as old Abe himself, who makes the homeliest picture on the page of American history. Let us resent this insult to American womanhood and do our best towards making her the queen of the White House for the next four years. I would a thousand times rather that this little 'country-bred wife' would be the counselor of our next president than have him guided by all the Carnegies, Rockefellers, Morgans, Belmonts, Hannans or Huntington in America.

Robt. Ingersoll, before Mark Hanna's sack struck him: "For my part I do not ask any interference on the part of the government except to undo the wrong it has done. I do not ask that money be made out of nothing. I do not ask for the prosperity born on paper. But I do ask for the remonetization of silver. Silver was demonetized by fraud. It was an imposition upon every solvent man, a fraud upon every honest debtor in the United States. It assassinates labor. The farmers should vote only for such men as are able and willing to guide and advance the interests of labor."

Lieutenant Binns Resigns.

Washington, Oct. 26.—The resignation of Second Lieutenant Joseph R. Binns, of the Second Infantry, has been accepted, to take effect immediately. This officer tendered his resignation in a long letter, setting out his belief that a collision between the people and the United States army will follow the election, and saying that he cannot conscientiously serve against the people.

THE FARMER AND SILVER.

The Only Means of Getting His Indebtedness Paid Off.

The American farmer is at last beginning to understand something of the relationship of the free coinage of silver to wheat. This explains in part the large number of farmers who through the meetings of upper New York and Ohio to hear Bryan. They are reminded that when silver bullion was worth $1.32 an ounce, as in 1872, it made the bushel of India wheat cost in Liverpool at about $1.45. Wheat from this country was worth the Liverpool price less transportation, or about $1.15 in Chicago. When the Englishmen can buy our silver at sixty cents the bushel of wheat can be bought in India or the same basis as formerly, but at a cost when measured in gold or only just one-half as much, and it can be landed in Liverpool at about eighty-five cents.

It follows that the American must accept for his wheat the Liverpool prices as before, less the cost of transportation. The United States is holding silver on a parity with gold, while we are selling our bullion as a commodity at half price. The illustration as to wheat is equally applicable as to all those which can be bought on a silver basis in silver-using countries, that are sold in gold-using markets of Europe in competition with ours.

When the price of wheat depreciates, of course flour, oats and provisions in every form are effected in proportion. When silver was demonetized in 1873 the chief competitor to the United States in exporting wheat was India, and the bushel of wheat was about equal in value to an ounce of silver. India was on a silver basis then, and is yet, that is, the products were measured by a silver standard.

When silver was demonetized, and silver and gold were at a parity. When silver was made a commodity, our silver bullion, being denied coinage, fell rapidly in price, relative to gold, leaving gold the single standard. This has practically driven our American farmer out of the European market, and the condition of the American farmer today is deplorable. It is said that manufacturers, jobbers and dealers in agricultural appliances hold as much as $60,000,000 worth of past due notes from farmers who are unable to pay. Farmers have been put into this condition financially by the fast falling of prices during the past few years, and it is a self-evident fact that if present conditions are to prevail this indebtedness can never be paid off, because the farmer is obliged now to put his product on the market at less than it cost him. It is gratifying to know that the farmers are almost unanimously embracing the free coinage idea.—Denver Times-Sun.

AN HONEST JUDGE.

How He Harmonized Both Justice and Law and Foiled Perjured Witnesses.

"One of the most honest men who ever lived was Judge Arthur Shields," said C. R. Markham, of Cheyenne. "He was on the bench in the early days of Kansas, and I was one of the lawyers who practiced in his court. Upon one occasion I was conducting a case in which I had perfect confidence when the train began, but before it had progressed far the evidence against my client's side of the conveyance was so strong and so unexpected that I saw the case was hopeless. I fully believed the witnesses lied, but could not shake them by cross-examination and it looked as though my client would lose his property. Judge Shields had decided every question with perfect fairness, and it could not be seen that he was in any way interested until suddenly he called to an attorney: 'Mr. Black, take the bench for the rest of this case'; then turning to me he said: 'Have me sworn as a witness. I will not see a man robbed in this court in matters of which I am personally cognizant.' He took the stand, and his testimony saved the case for me. The other side appealed, but the judge was sustained, the only case of the kind in the books."

WILL TRY TO RAISE PRICES ON LUMBER.

Local Lumbermen Combine With Their British Enemies to Curb Our American Consumers.

San Francisco, Oct. 21.—It is now certain that the lumber combine known as the Central Lumber Company of California will have a new lease of life January 1, 1897, and that it will early in the spring attempt to hold prices at a higher figure than they have been for years. So far as the foreign lumber business is concerned the matter has been settled beyond the question of a doubt, and as 80 per cent of the firms interested in the domestic trade are also interested in the foreign business, the most conservative opinion expressed is that the local lumbermen will patch up their differences and sign an agreement for another year.

The "foreign pool," as it is known in contradiction to the "domestic pool," was arranged yesterday after a series of conferences extending over a period of three weeks. The British Columbia Mills, Timber & Trading Company, after standing out for a year, entered the combination, necessitating a readjustment of stock. It required five days of committee conferences, to settle the matter, but the details were finally arranged and last night all the big lumber concerns on the coast signed a compact to keep up the present schedule of prices for another year. This having been accomplished, the lumbermen from the north, who have no interest whatever in the foreign trade, packed their grips and started for home.

Whether or not prices will be raised will depend very much upon the outcome of the terms on which the domestic pool is renewed. If the middlemen persist in breaking up the combine, it is probable that the prices of domestic lumber will be forced down to a lower point than they have ever been, but the foreign prices will not be disturbed.

If the renewal of the pool is determined upon an effort will surely be made in the spring to raise prices, both domestic and foreign.

Dear Sir: In your paper of Oct. 27, 1896, in an article commencing upon my speech lately delivered in your city in favor of Bryan and the Chicago platform, is the following: "Until recently Mr. H. was a monometalist, but received the light and is now doing yeoman service for the cause."

Allow me to say that it is a mistake in saying that until recently I was a monometalist. I never was a monometalist but have been a bimetalist since the question was first agitated in the country. The views I held during the June election, and for some time afterward, were that the United States could not act alone without the aid of the European nations who demonetized silver soon after we did, restore silver to the position and value it was before it was demonetized. I was also of the opinion that if we attempted to do so, that it would drive gold out of circulation and put us upon a silver basis. In short, I was one of the class of bimetalists who held that we could only hope to re-establish bimetalism through international agreement.

After careful thought and study I completely changed my views, and became satisfied that the financial plank of the Chicago platform announced the true policy that should be pursued by this great nation. I became satisfied that the makers of the Republican platform, and the Indianapolis platform, were not for gold monometalism, and would not favor bimetalism, even if the leading commercial nations of Europe should offer to join us in its re-establishment.

I also became satisfied that the United States could, by joining those nations which already had the old bimetallic standard of money, prevent the world from being brought to gold monometalism, and restore bimetalism eventually, as the money system of the world. S. H. HAZARD.

A 4-year-old child of George Hester, living near Forest Center, Wash., wandered alone into a field where some logs were burning on Thursday, and going too close to the blaze, the child's clothes became ignited, and it was burned to death. The child was soon missed, and a search being instituted, its body was found lying near the fire.

About 20 large whales were observed dispersing themselves in Puget sound lately by the officers of the steamer Flyer. Their presence in the sound thus early in the season is taken as an indication of heavy weather outside.

CAREER OF A MISSING BANKER.

An "Honest Money Man" Robs, Swindles and Forges as a Business, Then Suicide.

Juneau, Wis., Oct. 18.—No trace of W. T. Rambusch, the defaulting banker and real estate man who has been missing for ten days, beyond the intelligence conveyed in a letter from the east that he was in Philadelphia, has reached this city.

Inquiring investors who trusted him implicitly have crowded the town during the week; but only additional proofs of Rambusch's rascality have rewarded their search for available assets. Yesterday a small bottle of a clear fluid in which rested a little sponge was found. This, on being submitted to a chemist's test, proves to be an erasing fluid, and by its use Rambusch had manipulated deeds and records at will.

The defalcations already brought to light reach the sum of $250,000 and those engaged in the work of straightening the books claim the end is not yet. The only assets thus far discovered amount to $25,000 and consist of the records of Mr. Rambusch's office, worth about $10,000, stock in the Citizens' Bank to the value of $75,000, a few notes of doubtful value and a piece of mortgaged real estate.

HIS CAREER IS ENDED.

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 21.—W. T. Rambusch, the defaulting banker of Juneau, Wis., shot himself in the right temple last night in this city, dying instantly. His body was found on a bench in the National cemetery, his head still in a hotel as C. T. Anderson, since which time he has been visiting battle-fields in the vicinity of Fredericksburg. About $100 was found on his person. His friends at Juneau have telegraphed for the body to be forwarded there.

A Minister's Farewell.

A country minister in a certain locality took permanent leave of the congregation in the following pathetic manner: "Brothers and sisters, I come to say good-bye. I don't think God loves this church very much because none of you ever die. I don't think you love each other, because I never marry any of you. I don't think you love me, because you have not paid my salary. Your donations are mouldy fruit, and wormy apples, and 'by their fruits ye shall know them.' Brethren, I am going away from you to a better place. I have been called to be the chaplain of a penitentiary. 'Where I go ye cannot come, but I go to prepare a place for you, and may the Lord have mercy on your souls. Good-bye.'

(COOS BAY NEWS.)

Thomas Hall, deputy collector of customs, returned Monday from Prosper, where he had gone to measure the new steamer Coquille River.

The last trip of the Homer was a remarkably quick one. She left here on Thursday last, discharged her cargo of coal in the city, took on freight, and again arrived in the bay on Monday afternoon. We believe that this is the quickest round-trip ever made between the two ports.

The four-masted barkentine Echo sailed from this port for Adelaide, Australia, on Thursday last. Her cargo consisted of 855,000 feet of merchantable lumber and 30,000 of dunnage, making drawing 17 feet 10 inches, and crossed the bar in tow of the tug Columbia. Her cargo was from the North Bend mill.

The case of Dr. O. H. Estes, of Astoria, whose license was recently revoked by the state medical board for alleged malpractice, will be carried into the civil courts where it is expected that a bitter legal fight will be made.

Mrs. Robert Walker, who sued the O. R. & N. Co. for damages on account of the death of her husband, which was caused by an accident to the train upon which he was serving as engineer, has been awarded $40,000 damages by the court at Dayton, Washington.

Nightmare.

BY W. H. WADDINGTON.

Upon an evening dreary, as I rested, weak and weary,
Pondering o'er the campaign and the problems that it bore,
Wondering if 'twas all delusion, and the party of the fusion
Would bring order from confusion as they ne'er had done before,
Or whether might and mammon would prevail as heretofore
Evermore.

Now, a word I had not spoken; the silence was unbroken
As I looked upon the token of the party that I wore,
Yet believe me all around, in the air and on the ground,
Came the weird and awful sound, both behind me and around,
Evermore.

Oh, I own my nerves were shaken, but I thought I was mistaken
That the moon like one forsaken was my fancy, nothing more,
And was just about concluding that my lonely mood had brooding
Had induced this sound, intruding evermore,
My wearied senses all deluding
Evermore.

But a weird, uneasy feeling, over all my sea-stealing
A spectral form revealing in the gloom beside the door;
An awful thing of evil, an elfish goblin Devil,
Grinned and gibed and muttered the sound I heard before,
Moped and mowed and moaned and stammered
Evermore.

And I gazed in awe and wonder at his eyes,
Which shone from under
Where erst the e, elbows had grown and curled of yore,
At the look of fiendish malice gleam within the caverned chalice
As his jawbone gibed and muttered yet once more,
As his jawbone wagged and spluttered
Evermore.

"Fiend!" I cried; "thou thing of evil, be thou goblin, ghost or devil,
What is it makes thee revel and repeat so o'er and o'er
That one word?" The spectre shifted and with boy arm uplifted
Points to where the gloom was rifted by the door
With the fiery writing rifted, and the word was,
Evermore.

Then I saw, as in a vision, all the masses in division,
Each one fighting for position and th' ennoblements it bore;
Nearly everyone was trying, by chicanery and lying,
His less cunning friend was buying as of yore,
Yet they were fraud and wrong decrying,
Evermore.

And I saw the fiend was grinning when the losing and the winning before
Fiend! falsehood still is beating
Evermore.

"Fiend," I cried, "these very masses, those overlaid asses,
Will resist the moneyed classes and their ungodly rights restore,
Their enemies belie them; Boss Hanna cannot buy them;
November 3d shall try them, and bribery shall destroy them nevermore,"
But the goblin grinned and muttered
Evermore.

And this ghastly, graping ghost still pointed to the loot
Of Mammon - worshippers all lost for evermore;
He faded and was gone. I was once again alone,
But still I hear the moans that rise from shore to shore,
Of the millions that are slaves for evermore.
Evermore.

Florida's Latest Disaster.

D. G. Amble, who has been over the storm-devastated section of Florida, and has seen the people and heard full accounts of the havoc wrought, says that 5000 square miles, or 3,200,000 acres, of timber are ruined completely.

"There are," says he, "1000 board feet to the acre at 50 cents per foot. Deduct about 30 per cent for overestimate, and you find that the monetary loss to Florida represented by timber is $1,500,000. It is no exaggeration to say that it will reach that figure."

"No one who has been over the path of the storm can conceive any idea of the disaster, nor of the pitiful condition of the people in that section, whose homes, crops, barns, live stock and occupation has been swept away in a day. There are thousands of families who are homeless and penniless."

"Is Miss Cahoots in?" inquired the caller. "That depends on you. Are yez Mr. Jones?" said "Bridget." "Yes." "She's gone out."

"What does it mean, pop, when the papers say a person died a natural death?" "When a man dies a natural death, Bobbie, it means that he died without medical assistance."

"That's a brilliant son of yours," remarked the visitor. "He's been in congress, hasn't he?" "Yes, I believe he was an inmate for a couple of years," replied old Moss back, dryly.
