Tuesday of last week Will Cox, who works in the mines at Beaver Hill, met with quite a painful accident and almost a fatal one. Three cars jumped the track and jammed him against the wall, crushing his shoulder quite badly and bruising his body considerably. Luckily no bones were broken. He came up to Coquille Friday and looked as if he had had a month's sickness, but was doing well. He visited friends here for several days, with a view to change of scenery and surroundings and for the benefit of his condition. Many friends greeted him, and rejoiced at his escape from more serious results.

We have had many greetings of the past week from comrades returning from the encampment of the G. A. R. at Myrtle Point, and all bear testimony as to the pleasantness of the meeting, and the kindness and hospitality of the good citizens of Myrtle Point and surrounding country. It was a most enjoyable meeting to the old boys. We thank them for expressions of friendship to ourselves personally, and regret that we were hindered from participating with them. We regret it also, but business affairs interposed and we could not possibly attend, though we had prepared to do so.

The afternoon was spent laying around in the shade and occasionally expressing a regret that we could not hold more.

The writer was too full—of baked clams for atterance, and was taken to Empire City by Wilmot Getty in his thorough-brace and laid out so that he might recover in time to take in the dance in the evening.

The dance was a very pleasant affair. At midnight the fair ladies of Empire City again tempted us to fill up on the good things they had prepared.

We would like to write more, but must quit, our pants hurt around the waist. They were four sizes too large when we left home.

Seventh Annual Reunion of the Coos County Pioneers.

The 15th day of August is Pioneer day in Coos county. It falling on Sunday this year, the meeting was postponed until Monday the 16th, out of respect for those who had conscientious scruples in participating on that day.

All day Sunday and Monday morning was spent in visiting and short calls.

At 2 o'clock Monday afternoon the Pioneers held their business meeting at the S. O. Co's hall, President John Flanagan presiding.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: J. Henry Schroeder, president; W. D. L. F. Smith, vice-president; Daniel Giles, vice-president; Orvil Doogie, secretary and historian; B. F. Ross, treasurer; W. P. Heimann, marshal.

After transacting other business the meeting adjourned until next day at 9 o'clock a. m.

In the evening the citizens of Empire City entertained the Pioneers with an entertainment, consisting of recitations, and vocal and instrumental music. The entertainment was excellent, all participants doing their allotted parts well.

J. F. Hall delivered an address of welcome to the Pioneers. Just before the entertainment many of the Pioneers availed themselves of the invitation of Capt. Richardson, a congenial skipper to visit and inspect the U. S. steamer Columbine which was moored at the S. O. Co's wharf.

At 9 o'clock on the morning of the 17th, Wilmot and Fritz Getty, J. T. Holms, S. H. Hazard and Mrs. Florence Sheridan were on hand with teams and carriages to take the visitors to the picnic grounds, to enjoy a clam-bake and dinner.

The picnic ground is a delightful spot, a shaded grove with the placid waters of Coos bay in the foreground and a stream of cool sparkling water near by.

Empire City, the pioneer town of Coos county, is in plain view about a mile distant, with the U. S. steamer Columbine, light-house and engineers' tender moored to one of its wharves. The U. S. jetty improvement works and U. S. life-saving station nearly opposite on the west shore of Coos bay. The passing steamers and other shipping, and the traditions and early history connected with the vicinity, makes this one of the most delightful and appropriate spots in Coos county for a Pioneers' reunion. Then the older Pioneers stretched on the sward with this view before them could realize the advancement which had been made since their advent into the county and contrast the past with the present.

We found George Jackson near by, with the perspiration from his brow and other portions of his anatomy pouring out at the lower end of his breeches, superintending the clam-bake. George proved himself an expert at baking clams and crabs. His anxiety to cater to the taste of the visitors and the consequent devotion to his task undoubtedly resulted in his losing about 15 pounds in weight.

The Pioneers talked over the Auld Lang Syne until dinner was called. The spread before us will long be remembered. The tables were tastefully decorated with flowers and loaded down with all the good things imaginable. There were frosted cakes as big as a wagon wheel, lettered "C. C. P. & H. S." in honor of our society.

Baked clams, crabs (baked) deviled fried-cream and a-la-mode, and lots of other good things too numerous to mention. We did our very best, but could not take it all in. There was enough left to feed a multitude.

One feature of this reunion was the honor bestowed on us by the presence of a number of real, genuine, bonafide "Hy yas cros" pioneers, who enjoyed themselves hugely. They returned to their wigwags loaded down with grab of the good things left over. This is as it should be. We have dispossessed them of their heritage, and we should occasionally brighten their last days. There are but few left, and it is a small recompense for what they have lost.

The afternoon was spent laying around in the shade and occasionally expressing a regret that we could not hold more.

The funeral of Miss Laura Quick took place last Sunday at 2 o'clock p. m., at the Masonic cemetery. Elder D. P. Strang conducted services. Miss Laura May Quick, daughter of Jonathan Quick, was born on Lampey creek, Coos county, Oregon, May 23, 1875, and was therefore, at the time of her demise, aged 22 years, 2 months and 28 days. Her death occurred Saturday, August 21, at 11 o'clock a. m., after an illness of about 5 months. She contracted the fatal disease, first, typhoid fever, in the Rogue River valley last spring, while visiting. Later she returned home, but with all of the tender nursing and expenditure of medical skill she lingered and wasted away, at times suffering much, till the summons came, and her sweet spirit was wafted to that brighter shore, "where chilling wind nor poisonous breath are felt and feared no more."

A large concourse of friends and neighbors followed the remains of deceased, to their quiet resting place last Sunday, and there bade farewell to the mortality of one who was widely loved and esteemed for her many virtues and amiable character. Just bloomed into perfect womanhood, the fell destroyer, Death, claimed her as his victim and robbed the hearth parterre of one of its sweetest blooms, thus leaving many to mourn their loss and meditate upon the uncertainty of life. Not alone the aged die, but the young and the strong are also called hence. May her rest be sweet.

Nine of "the boys" who were connected with that charivari party at Fairview some two weeks since, three of whom were brought to this place, tried before Justice Harlocker and discharged, were arrested and taken to Marshfield last Friday. The parties who claim to have suffered at their hands by acts of malicious mischief and disturbance of their peace refuse to be comforted by Justice Harlocker's decision, and will prosecute further.

B. B. Teters returned this morning from the bay, and he tells us the case against the Fairview boys for rioting and disturbing the peace at a serenading party was dismissed, as it was here by our justice. Two young ladies came over with Mr. Teters, Miss Bessie Howard and Miss Stella Elrod, on a short visit.

Comrade W. M. Stewart, of Myrtle Point, brought down some friends from the encampment last Friday, and made the HERALD a pleasant call while in town. He was much pleased at the way the reunion of the old comrades and friends passed off.

Mrs. Sheppard and daughter Ora went to Bandon last Saturday, the former on a protracted visit and the latter to greet her father and remain only a few days.
