OUR PUBLIC SCHOOL.

Report for the Quarter of the Principal's Grade, and Last Month of the Intermediate and Primary Grades.

The close of the first quarter of our public school occurred Friday, the 17th ult., with results such as should attract all interested in the future of our town as well as our community at large.

Through the untiring efforts of desasters and teachers, assisted by interested parents, the standard of our school work has again been raised to a degree that its advancement encourages every possible effort to better our present facilities. Already an order for single desks, with which to seat the primary department, is made, which will enable the work of that room to be more efficiently carried out than present conditions afford. At present the intermediate department has enrolled a sufficient number for one teacher to handle successfully; while the principal's department had 77 enrolled, with an average attendance for the past three months of 66. It will be readily seen that this department is full to overflowing, and others would have attended had there been a possible chance for further seating.

Our work has been so much assisted by the pupils' prompt and regular attendance that we call attention of parents to the following report and ask them to see that their children miss nothing in the future:

Monthly Pains cured by Dr. Miles' Pain Pills.

Capital Journal, of 4th inst.: The state board of equalization practically completed its labors today and will have been in session 30 days tomorrow. Their 30-day session will cost the state between $3000 and $4000 in salaries to the members and will cause the county clerks of the several counties no end of labor in changing the rolls on file in their respective offices to correspond with the values as equalized by the state board. As soon as the board adjourns tomorrow the secretary of state will prepare certified copies of the work and changes made by the board and forward these to the different county clerks. It is understood that the total value of all property to be used by the state tax board in making its next state tax will be less equalized this year than it was last year.

DURRANT HANGED PROTESTING HIS INNOCENCE.

Was Baptised by a Priest Before Execution—The Crowd Cheered Lustily When He Died.

San Francisco, Jan. 7.—At exactly 10:30 o'clock this forenoon W. H. Theodore Durrant, the murderer of Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams, was executed.

He was baptized earlier in the day by Father Lagan, a Catholic priest. He made a brief speech, and emphatically asserted his innocence, and forgiving those who have been persecuting him. His last words were: "I am innocent."

The death was painless. The executed mandid not struggle, and was cut downin fifteen minutes.

United Stats supreme court refused a writ of habeas corpus at the last minut.

He maintained to the end his coolness and eemed less affected than many pople witnessing the death. The ather alone of the family witnessd the execution.

HI SPEECH.

was as follows "I desire to say that although am an innocent man, innocent of very crime that has been urged aginst me, I bear no animosity towrd those who have persecuted me, not even the press of San Francisc, which has hounded me to the grave If any man thinks I am going to oring a sensation, I am not, except t is a sensation that I am an innocent man, brought to the grave by my persecutors, but I forgive them all They will get their justice from the Great God who is Master of us al, and there I also expect to get justice, that is the justice of an innocent man. Whether or not the perpetrators of the crime of which I am charged are discovered, it will make no difference to me now, but I say this day will be a day of shame to the great state of California."

There was great excitement in this city. Thousands watched the bulletins at the newspaper offices and cheered when news was received from Washington that the application for a writ of habeas corpus had been denied, and when a dispatch from San Quentin was posted reciting the last brief chapter of the three years' sensation, there were prolonged cheers.

This morning his attorneys were still confident that they could save him from the hangman's noose, but after Governor Budd had announced his refusal to interfere and the news flashed over the wires from Washington that Allen Boardman had failed in his mission to the supreme court of the United States, they were compelled to acknowledge themselves nonplussed. Attorney Duprey, as a forlorn hope, resorted to the expedient of applying to the judges of the federal court for a bill of exceptions to their ruling denying his petition for a writ of habeas corpus yesterday. Judges DeHaven and Morrow decided that the allowance of the bill of exceptions would not act in the nature of a permission for an appeal to the supreme court and, after examining the documents, affixed their signatures to the bill of exceptions as requested. Immediately thereafter Attorney Duprey secured from the clerk of the circuit court a certified copy of said bill of exceptions and called upon United States Marshal Baldwin to serve it and the notice of appeal upon Warden Hale at San Quentin. It was claimed by Attorney Duprey that this notice acted as a stay of proceedings, and that the federal judges having signed his bill of exceptions nothing could prevent him from perfecting his appeal thereon.

Marshal Balwin, acting upon the advice of the United States attorney, accompaied Attorney Duprey to San Quentin and served the documents upon Warden Hale. That official at once referred the matter to the state attorney-general, who advised him that the acceptance of service of such documents as had been submitted to him does not act as a stay of execution, and there was no legal reason why he should not proceed with the execution.

Returning to this city Attorney Duprey at once repaired to the United States circuit court in order, if possible, to perfect his appeal, but, acting under instructions issued by both federal judges yesterday, deciding upon the question of Durrant's alleged right to appeal, the clerk refused to accept the neccessary notices of appeal, and the attorney was compelled to retire without having gained the point for which he had been striving all day.

Durrant's parents announced their determination to call upon the governor for the purpose of making a final appeal for their son's life, but the governor absolutely refused to see them and they left the city for San Quentin, in order that they might spend the night with their son and bid him farewell.

Durrant is breaking down raplidly enough now. He seems to have put all hope out of his thoughts. It hardly seems that he will make a brave show on the scaffold or that he will be in any condition in the last moments of carrying out his intention of making a farewell speech.

Durrant's father has confessed to Warden Hale that he has given up hope, and enters into the minutest details of the hanging with pitiable despondency. The warden promises that no vulgar curiosity on the part of medical men or anybody else will be gratified after the body has been cut down, and says also that the corpse will be delivered to Durrant's parents immediately after the execution for whatever disposition they choose to make of it.

Nearly 200 invitations had been issued for the hanging, and fully 175 people were present. The warden had been notified that bogus invitations had been printed and sold in San Francisco, and every card presented at the prison gates were rigidly inspected before its owner was allowed to pass through. Every visitor was compelled to leave tobacco, firearms and all other forbidden articles at the gates before passing through.

General Dickinson, of Durrant's counsel, said: "No one will have permission to interview the condemned man before he is hanged, as I have authority in the matter and have given strict orders that no one shall see him."

Durrant's father had not decided what disposition he would make of the body. Owing to the fact that some of the cemetery associations refused to receive it, on account of the notoriety that would result, the elder Durrant threatened to bury the body under the broad waters of the Pacific. Friends are trying to induce the stricken parents to have the remains cremated.

A late arrival from Dawson reports that Jas. Callahan, formerly of this place, is working in an hospital, and that he is very home sick and anxious to get out.

No paper mail on Thursday evening. The citizens of Marshfield should get in and petition the department to have the mail come by the Coos bay wagon road, so that the delay at Myrtle Point and Coquille would be avoided.
