OF INTEREST TO THE PEOPLE.

What Constitutes a State?

BY SIR WILLIAM JONES.

What constitutes a state?
Not high-raised battlement or laboured mound,
Thick wall or moated gate;
Not cities proud with spires and turrets crowned;
Not bays and broad-armed ports,
Where, laughing at the storm, rich navies ride;
Not starred and spangled courts,
Where low-browed baseness wafts perfume to pride.

No!—men, high-minded men,
With powers as far above dull brutes endued
In forest, brake, or den,
As beasts excel cold rocks and brambles rude—
Men who their duties know,
But know their rights, and, knowing, dare maintain,
Prevent the long-aimed blow,
And crush the tyrant while they rend the chain;

These constitute a state;
And sovereign law, that state's collected will,
O'er thrones and globes elate
Sits empress, crowning good, repressing ill;
Smit by her sacred frown
The fiend, Dissension, like a vapor sinks;
And o'en the all-dazzling crown
Hides his faint rays, and at her bidding shrinks.

ROTTENNESS OF LONDON FINANCIERING.

Revelations Like Unto Our "Credit Mobilier" and Government Railroad Legislation. Speculating on Titles.

London, Aug. 1.—The examination of Ernest Terah Hooley, the bankrupt company promoter, was resumed here today. A number of lawyers were present in behalf of the distinguished clients who denied Mr. Hooley's charges in connection with the payment of large sums of money for the use of their names, or for introductions to people of prominence. Mr. Hooley, upon examination, insisted with few exceptions, upon the truth of the statements he had made. He said in regard to the Earl of Winchelsea that the latter himself suggested he ought to be given £10,000 for joining the directorate of the Cycle Tube Company. The earl, witness added, said he could not take the money personally, but remarked that it would be given to his brother, Mr. Fitch-Hatton. Continuing, Mr. Hooley asserted that the Earl of Winchelsea also received £2000 for joining the directorate of a horseless carriage company.

As to the Earl of Albermarle, Mr. Hooley said that his "Silly disclaimer" did not need any explanation. Mr. Hooley testified that Earl de la Warr offered him £1000 to say that the $25,000 paid him by the witness was a gift made after the flotation of the company in which the earl figured.

Mr. Hooley further testified that certain directors of the Humber Company offered him £1000 and £2000 to commit perjury and say that the £50,000 which he had paid them was profit from other business.

Mr. Hooley said that while out driving yesterday a little man in a handsome cab stopped him and said: "There are a thousand sovereigns in the handsome for you."

Mr. Hooley said that he replied, "What have I to do for that?"

Thereupon the little man is alleged to have answered: "If you will say the money you gave Lord Albermarle was a present made after the company was floated, I am to leave you the sovereigns and take your word of honor."

Mr. Hooley replied, "I told him I would punch his head if he did not go away."

Mr. Hooley then told of the payments which he claims to have made to the financial editors of the Pall Mall Gazette and the Westminster Gazette, alleging that he paid the former in order to keep him quiet.

In another point of his testimony, Mr. Hooley said he promised Lord March £1000 and £1000 yearly for joining the Schweppes Board; that he paid Mr. Adolphus Drucker, the Conservative member of Parliament for Northampton, £2500, and Sir Blundel Maple £1800, by repurchasing their shares at enhanced prices.

The witness afterwards said he paid Lord Walter Lennox for introducing Lord March and Lord Templeton and promised him $500 and $500 yearly for serving on the board of directors, who, however, refused to sanction it, so he paid Lord Templeton £700 for withdrawing.

Incidentally Mr. Hooley mentioned having purchased the Prince of Wales' racing cutter Brittania for Mr. Larson Johnstone and said he had to keep the yatcht because she had not met his expectations.

Counsel for Lords De La Warr and Albemarle denied the imputations made against their clients. The legal representative of Lord Albemarle also said that his client, without admitting that the £9000 were received for a corrupt consideration, was willing to return the money to whoever is entitled to receive it.

As Lord De La Warr's counsel had finished his denial, Mr. Hooley shouted: "Then I will show you what I have in my pocket; a telegram from Lord De La Warr and the draft of a document setting forth what I was to say today."

Mr. Hooley flourished some papers towards Lord De La Warr, who was present, and an exciting scene was ended abruptly by the adjournment of the court.

Mr. Hooley's revelations of the rottenness of London financiering have thrown into a panic millions of Englishmen who have invested their savings in stocks of companies. It was a matter of common notoriety that the small promoting journalistic parasites fattened on company operations, but the gigantic fabric of bribery and blackmailing, by which boards of directors are organized of purchased names and backed by a subsidized press, some lords being paid even to quit the companies when no longer needed, was unsuspected.

The only question asked is, who will be the next, and the chorus of denials, some merely technical, is received with cynical skepticism.

An exodus of aristocrats on foreign tours is expected; and a crop of investigations is the result. Proposals of legislation to regulate and purify companies are already broached. In the meantime the promoting Napoleon, turned informer, mounts the pedestal as a popular hero.

People are forgetting his share of the responsibility of the system he exposes and the crowd in court applauds every time he scores off a nobleman.

Today's proceedings were filled with dramatic episodes, especially in the revelations of attempts to bribe Mr. Hooley to perjure himself by withdrawing the statements he made at the last examination. These efforts drew from the registrar the the remark: "It is the most scandalous thing."

The testimony given today implicated many well-known Londoners, whose names would not be recognized in America, smirching some in the business world hitherto untarnished by suspicion. One of the gravest charges was the story of the dealings with Lloyd's Bank, where were deposited 85,000 shares of the Singer Company. The day Hooley went bankrupt, these shares were transferred. He swore this afternoon that he never transferred them and that the certificates used were signed in blank for another transaction.

Among his alleged dealings with the Earl De la Warr, Mr. Hooley asserted that the earl tried to sell him an estate at Haslington, representing that it contained 4000 acres.

Mr. Hooley said: "I promised to take it, but when I sent my agent to see the property he found there were only 1700 acres. I had to pay De la Warr 10,000 shares of the Trent Cycle Company to get him to let me off the bargain."

When replying to an interruption, he denounced the speaker, exclaiming: "Dean, Harrison Davis and Beall are three of the greatest blackmailers in London." He was tremendously applauded for this retort.

Long Lost Letters.

Yesterday, while several members of the First Christian church were at work in the auditorium of the church building, removing some of the cushions on the seats, which had become badly worn, three letters dropped out of a rent in the covering of one of the cushions. They were addressed to Miss Stella Coats, Patricksburg, Indiana; Miss Elsie Radabaugh, Roseburg, Oregon, and Miss Amanda Griffin, Independence, Oregon, respectively, and one of them bore the return address of the writer, Miss Josie Williams. The letter was evidently written by the same young lady. Each letter bore a Columbian postage stamp, of the issue of 1892. Members of the church remember Miss Williams as having been in this city in 1892 and 1893, and that she was an attendant at the Christian church. She had evidently carried her letters to church with her, or by design slipped them through a rent in a cushion, and later forgotten them. The most peculiar part of the story is that the cushion in which the letters rested so long was overhauled and repaired about two years ago, and it is strange that the letters did not come to light at that time. The letters were taken to the postoffice last night and forwarded to their respective addresses.—Salem Statesman.

LAST OF JEFFERSON'S SLAVES.

Rev. Fossett the Sole Survivor of the Monticello Plantation.

Rev. Peter F. ossett of Cincinnati is probably he last surviving slave of Thomas efferson. He is 93 years old, an is held in great regard by colod people, and is loved by all the white ministers of Cincinnati, who now him well and esteem him higy.

Recently Mr. ossett was invited to deliver an address before the Cincinnati Baast Ministers' association, and in his speech he told the story of hearly days, giving many reminiscaces of Jefferson.

"I was born he said, "at Monticello, Jefferon's beautiful Virginia home, on June, 1815, just before Waterloo. Jerson was an ideal master. He as opposed to the slave trade, tid to keep it out of the territorie beyond the Ohio river, and wan favor of freeing the slaves i Virginia. He had made all arrgements to free his slaves in Virgia at his death by making threerizes of his property.

"I well member the visit of General Lavette to Monticello. The whole ce was in a gala array in his honor He was met at Red Gate and eated by the Jefferson guards and the Virginia militia. The latter consisted of all the school boys in the country, who had been drilled for the occasion, armed with sharp-pointed sticks tipped with spikes. The meeting between Jefferson and Lafayette was most affectionate. They fell into each others arms with these words: 'My dear Lafayette,' 'My dear Jefferson,' and wept.

"Mrs. Patsy Randolph, who had been Martha Ann Jefferson, received Lafayette with grace and dignity befitting a queen, welcoming him to the hospitalities of the home of her father. They all listened to the addresses that followed. Even the slaves wept. A youth of 18 made an address on behalf of the juvinile soldiers, and, I think, General Chestin Cox in behalf of the citizens.

The next day occurred the visit to the university, which had just been finished, except the dome. There was a grand procession that day, and the slaves had a holiday. First came the Jefferson guards, then the carriage bearing Mr. Jefferson, with General Lafayette on his right, with ex-President Monroe and Mr. Madison sitting opposite them. In the second carriage was General Chestin Cox, president of the university faculty. On his right hand sat George Washington Lafayette, son of the general, and opposite them were Thomas Jefferson Randolph, the grandson of Mr. Jefferson, and General Lavassor. Surrounding these two carriages were the Virginia militia.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Young Belt was standing on a log with a double-barreled shotgun, the butt resting on the log. The gun fell and was discharged. One-half of his arm was shot away. Amputation will probably be necessary. [Since the above was put in type the amputation has taken place and the boy's life is despaired of.]

THE MAJOR'S EXPERIENCE.

How He Spent the Greater Part of His Life—A Time When His Life was in Danger.

From the Free Press, Detroit, Mich.

One of the staunchest supporters of the deep-water way from the Great Lakes to the ocean is Maj. A. C. Bishop, of 715 Third Ave., Detroit, Mich.

MAJOR A. C. BISHOP.

Maj. Bishop has had unusual experience in that line of work and probably few are so well qualified to speak intelligently of it as he. For the greater part of his life he has been engaged in water ways, and is one of the oldest and best known civil engineers north of the Ohio river.

Commencing in 1850, he was for a number of years an assistant engineer for the Hudson River Railroad, and later held like positions with the Genesee Valley Canal, New York, and als the Des Moines River improvement and Railroad Co.

He has been superintendent of large mining operations and when the State Reformatory at Elmira, N. Y., was built, he was superintendent and engineer in charge of the construction.

Major Bishop was attached to the staff of Brigadier General Chamberlin, of the National Guard of New York, with the rank of Major from 1857 to 1865.

He has been located in Detroit since 1885, and has a large acquaintance among the business men and citizens of this city.

Two years ago, for the first time, Major Bishop was in the hospital. For two months he had the best of medical attendance but when he was discharged he was not like the Major Bishop of old.

When asked regarding his health, he said: "When I had my last spell of sickness and came out of the hospital I was a sorry sight, I could not gain my strength, and could not walk over a block for several weeks.

"I noticed some articles in the newspapers regarding Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which convinced me that they were worth trying and bought two boxes. I did not take them for my complexion but for strength. After using them I felt better, and know they did me worlds of good. I am pleased to recommend them to invalids who need a tonic or to build up a shattered constitution. "A. C. BISHOP."

Subscribed and sworn to before me this eighth day of January, 1898.

ROBERT E. HULL, JR., Notary Public.

The pure, powerful vegetable ingredients in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People supply the antidote for poisonous matter in the blood and add those elements needed to build up body and brains. Many diseases long supposed by the medical profession to be incurable have succumbed to the potent influence of these pills. They can be taken by young or old, being harmless in their nature, but powerful in eliminating disease.
