James T. Green is the new editor in charge of the Bandon Recorder, and addresses himself in a salutatory in Saturday's issue to his patrons and the people.

This reporter had the pleasure of making the acquaintance yesterday of E. Rose, representing The D. E. Allison & Co., general commission merchants at San Francisco, and H. L. Barleson, with Wolf & Sons, a business firm of the same city. The former is mostly in the interest of soliciting for his firm, is a pleasant elderly gentleman, and will doubtless succeed in making a successful business visit. We were especially pleased, however, to find Mr. Barleson was investigating the prospects for establishing a fruit and vegetable cannery and dryer here, and also a starch factory. The HERALD has, for several years back, urged such enterprises, for we were well satisfied that could the "quantity" be guaranteed and supplied for either of these industries, the quality, climatic and shipping advantages were ours to a high degree. The HERALD hopes that Mr. Barleson may meet with such encouragement that he will see his way clear to carry out his project.
