Song At Santiago.

Statehouse, Salem, Oct. 10.—Both houses of the legislature reconvened promptly at 2 o'clock this afternoon.
The roll-calls showed most of the members to have returned from their Sunday vacations.

Beneath the gathering shades of night a dying soldier lay, while still on Santingo's height the storm of death held sway.

'Is that a song of home?' he said, "or sound of angel throng," I hear their crash of guns? Oh listen! Hear that song:

Passed by house alone:

By Curtis—To create the office of

The Star-Spangled Banner, oh, long may O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!"

Then all along the line there rang the answering cheer on cheer.

And many a soldier joined the song he never more should hear;

The boys in bine, who bore the brunt of battle all day long.

Had won the height, and through the night went back the victor's song:

The Star-Spangled Banner, oh, long may

No regal despot ever wore a diadem like thine.

Its jewels are thy children's, hearts, the love of all the free;

The living and the dying join in love and praise to thee:

"Oh, thus be it eyer when freeman shall stand

Between their loved land and war's desolation;

Blest with victory and peace, may the heaven-resued land

Praise the power that hath made and preserved us a nation!

Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just, is just, And this be our motto, 'In God is our And the Star-Spangled Banner forever shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave."

Is the Bane of Many a Woman's Life-How the Disease may be Cured. A Case Cited.

Mrs. Fannie B. Stoffle, of Martinsville, Mo, was lately rescued from a fate which nearly wrecked her hife.

It seems she has for many years been severely afflicted with a complication of diseases gad frequently would have fearful attacks in which she would become unconscious for nours.

In one of these, she was unconscious for many hours. Her condition became nlarming: the usual restoratives failed to bring relief, the physician's aid proved unavailing and death seemed imminent. She recovered, however, and that she lives to-day is wonderful.

A reporter who was sent to investigate, when he met Mrs. Stoffle could not help but remark. how well she was looking" and could searcely realize that she had pased through such a trying ordeal as had been represented. In speaking of her experience, Mrs. Stoffle said:

"I used to have terrible sick headaches, which I had as far back as I can remember. In recent years they were getting worse. It would suffer so that I would become unconscious, and the last one I had I was unconscious, and the last one I had I was unconscious, and the last one I had I was unconscious, and the last one I had I was unconscious, and the last one I had I was unconscious, and the last one I had I was unconscious, and the last one I had I was unconscious, and the last one I had I was unconscious, and the last one I had I was unconscious, and the last one I had I was unconscious, and the last one I had I was unconscious, and the last one I had I was unconscious, and the last one I had I was unconscious from sever inc. the evening until after midnight. I was so bad that the doctor sould I was likely to die in one of those spells."
