AS TO FINANCIAL LEGISLATION.

President McKinley's Weakness and His Reported Change of Front.

Washington telegram (Nov. 14) to Brooklyn Eagle:

A few days ago it was positively stated in administration circles here that President McKinley in his message to congress would not only recommend legislation to strengthen the treasury and make it more certain that the present gold standard shall be maintained, but that he would directly recommend gold standard legislation. The friends of the gold standard and those who have been interested in what is known as the Indianapolis movement, have claimed all along that the president would adopt this course, and they have predicted that his message would ring in no uncertain sound in regard to this important matter. It is now stated, however, and the Eagle correspondent gets this from the highest source, that the president has practically decided not to refer to the gold standard in his message, except to call attention to the fact that the law of 1873 placed the country on a gold basis, and that that standard was now maintained.

The fact of the matter is, there are a number of eastern and western Republicans high in the councils of the party who are opposed to any gold standard legislation at the approaching session of congress. These men, it is stated, believe that we had better let well enough alone; that the country is now enjoying an extraordinary degree of prosperity and that it would be unwise to take any chances in the way of disturbing this prosperity, the belief being that the enactment of financial legislation of a radical character by congress would tend to upset business. These politicians have frequently of late impressed upon the president, both by letter and in interviews, their views and have strongly urged him not to make any radical recommendations in his forthcoming message. As one of these politicians said: "It is one thing to talk about financial legislation and its political necessity, but it is quite another thing to legislate on it. The latter course is always a dangerous expedient."

Legislation on Finances.

New York, Nov. 20.—A special to the Herald from Washington says:

Adoption of the old Reed rules, immediate passage of the caucus committee's financial reform bill, and reorganization of committees along old lines as far as possible, with the Republican membership of the committee on rules consisting of Messrs. Henderson, Dalzell and Babcock, is the program which Mr. Henderson, who is to be speaker, has marked out for the house of representatives as a result of his conference with the president, the leading members of the house and with other prominent Republicans since his arrival in Washington.

Herbert George says—and it is our platform too: "We lean toward genuine old-fashioned 1776 Americanism. As an American citizen we esteem the English more highly than any foreigner that seeks the folds of the stars and stripes for freedom, but, the best class of Englishmen abroad do not favor England's course toward the weak nations of the earth. Even Andrew Carnegie reflects our views upon the Oom Paul outrage. We do not hate Englishmen. We hate English institutions. We despise wars of conquest. The fight in the Transvaal today has been caused by one ambitious man, Cecil Rhodes, whose ambition demanded the right for Uitlanders to vote and control the South African Republic without becoming naturalized citizens. Englishmen hide behind the pretext that Oom Paul demanded a seven years' residence. Boers who are born on Boer soil have to wait twenty-one years. There is a very strong opinion prevailing among Americans today, that the mistake of the American republic is to allow foreigners to vote before they have been among us long enough to realize what our sort of a government means."

Republic—Cecil Rhodes is said to be showing his fearlessness of Boer capture by giving daily dinner parties. Perhaps it has never occurred to him that Belshazzar was giving a dinner party when trouble appeared.

In England savings banks never suspend. Wouldn't it be a good idea for the Amaricans to copy the English plan? Over there it's postal savings banks, don't you know.

Direct legislation is the shortest way out of all our difficulties. There would be no need for the existence of political parties then.

"My party, right or wrong," is a sentiment that brands the man who expresses it an idiot.

"Anglomania"—Hon. J. H. Upton in Port Orford Tribune.

EDITOR TRIBUNE: For many years we have had an increasing number of what we derisively termed Anglomaniacs. These have mostly been composed of rich American snobs and toadies.

Of course the rank and file of our people can never be caught by the claptrap now being resorted to looking to an alliance with England, the traditional and wily foe of the United States. Yet it cannot be blinked out that the tribe of un-American admirers of monarchy has been perceptibly reinforced upon the shallow plea that Great Britain was our friend during our late little brush with Spain, and the fact that we could stand in no possible need of her aid in that matter sufficiently accounts for her tacit tender of it to us. These converts to monarchy and imperialism must needs renounce our great Declaration of Independence, and some of them even stigmatise it as "Flapdoodle."

The leading imperialist organ at the National Capital, the Washington Daily Star, has this to say:

"One would think there had been enough nonsensical harping on the "consent of the governed." The Declaration of Independence was never construed literally by its author or anybody else. It was not built with the Constitution, and our government has paid no attention to its glittering generalities."

That paper's excuse is that the Declaration of Independence was not included in the Constitution. It did not need to be. That great charter of our liberties was prior and superior to the Constitution; in fact in the absence of success of the doctrines laid down in that immortal document we never could have had a Constitution.

Professor Woodburn, of Indiana University, boldly advocates the reformation of our school histories by eliminating therefrom the popular version of our Revolutionary war and of the causes leading up thereto, and the substitution therefor of the versions of the English historian Yecky. He says: "Our American school books in the past have contained false and exaggerated despotism and tyranny."

I have been led into the above reflection by reading in your paper the statement of Clifton R. Breckenridge, attorney of the spoilsmen, to the effect that this government ought to aid Great Britain in its war on the two republics of South Africa. It is now perfectly evident that England, the brutal, barbarous bully among the weak nations, and the cringing, truckling coward in the face of strong ones, had South African chestnuts in mind when she pretended to be our friend against poor, decrepit old "Colonial Spain." And she had not counted without her host, for our administration at Washington is at this moment bending its moral support to the crushing of the Orange Free State and the Transvaal Republic.

It has been the uniform habit of this country to send words of sympathy and cheer to all weak governments in their struggle to escape or throw off the yoke of alien masters. Poland, Hungary, Armenia, Crete, Mexico, all of the South and Central American States, and finally Cuba have been the objects of our sympathy and good offices.

That England has no stomach for facing a strong power, was abundantly illustrated in the indecorous precipitancy with which she ran to cover chased by the shadow of Cleveland's course, undiplomatic bluff in the Venezuela matter.

In conclusion it may be well to recite for the benefit of Mr. Breckenridge and any others who may be anxious to see the two model republics in South Africa crushed by Great Britain, a little bit of not very ancient history.

In 1861 our government was engaged in a stupendous war with the southern confederacy, and for several years thereafter. During that war England did her level best to embarrass us. In November, 1861, Mason and Slidell, commissioners for the confederacy to London, escaped on a confederate cruiser to Havana, and was there taken on board the British steamship Trent. Captain Wilkes, commanding the federal warship, San Jacinto, was ordered from Washington to run down the Trent and take the said commissioners off. This he did, and immediately received a vote of thanks by congress therefor.

Upon the news of the affair reaching England, hurried preparations for war upon us were made. The British cabinet drew up its ultimatum and sent it to our cabinet at Washington requiring our government to make an abject apology, to disavow the action of Captain Wilkes and to state that that officer had boarded the Trent without the authority of the government. In addition to the above we were required to surrender up Mason and Slidell and their secretaries and send them on their way to England. We were in a hole. We had all the war on our hands that we could safely handle. It was the part of prudence, therefore, to accede to the terms demanded. Let snobs and toads and imperialists fall down and worship Great Britain if they will, but the great body of the American people will remain true to the Declaration of Independence, true to themselves and true to this mighty country, "The land of the free and the home of the brave."

J. H. UPTON.

Langlois, Nov. 10, 1899.

Courage Wins.

The number of men who fail on account of lack of courage is enormous, says Shoe and Leather Facts. The number who would refuse to let go of a dollar if they knew positively that it was going to bring back two is astonishing. Such men merely exist. They don't live. They really don't amount to anything. The men who win are the men who pick out the right course to pursue, and then back their convictions with their last penny and their last ounce of energy. The first goods that John Wannamaker ever sold brought him $35. He delivered his goods on a wheelbarrow. He collected the $35 and went directly to a newspaper office and planked it down for advertising space.

The Ghristmas Telegram.

The forthcoming Christmas number of The Evening Telegram will be a handsome and valuable edition, and will contain much of interest, not only to Portlanders, but to all the people of Oregon and the Northwest. In addition to many splendidly illustrated articles on Portland and Portland industries, it will contain an extensive illustrated write-up of the mines and mining resources of the state. It is intended to make this both a handsome souvenir edition and a valuable advertisement of the resources of the state. Thousands of copies of this edition will be sent to the financial centers of the east. One man has placed an advance order for 1000 copies to go to Europe and many other large orders are being booked.

The Oregon Native Son is becoming a genuine immigration bureau within itself of late. Not only does it give more Oregon history than any publication ever issued, but attractions and advantages of the Pacific Northwest are admirably set forth each month. The October number is at hand, and among other meritorious contributions are the following: "Oregon," a poem, by Maj. T. J. Ackerson; "The Willamette Valley," by J. C. Leasure; "Beauty, Beeswax and Rum," a legend, by Thos. A. Wood; "Poisoned Arrows," by G. M. Carver; "The Building of a State," by F. Hampton; "A Pioneer Patriot," by S. H. Frederick; "A Legend of Tahoma," and "An Episode of Road Location," by F. H. Saylor; "Robbery of the Great Alaskan Express Company," by C. H. Sholes; "A Mazama Song," poem, by H. S. Lyman; "Early Days in Linn," by W. G. Steel; "The Cabin of the Oregon Pioneer," by Sam Simpson and "Indian War Recollections," as related by A. H. Sale.

"I Am on Fire."

Cape Henry, Va., Nov. 20.—The German steamer Olinda passed in for Norfolk at 7:50 a. m., flying the signal, "I am on fire." The Olinda, under the command of Captain Hansen, sailed from New York late Saturday night for Matanzas, Cardenas, etc.

Emperor William is in England.

Portsmouth, England, Nov. 20.—The German imperial yacht Hohenzollern entered the harbor at 10:05 today, and was welcomed with salutes from the guns of warships and forts. The emporer and empress and their two sons landed at 10:30 and were welcomed by the Duke of Connaught, who wore the uniform of the German Hussar regiment, of which he is an honorary colonel, and by various court dignitaries. Emperor William wore the uniform of a British admiral.

Bunting and German and British flags were displayed everywhere. The imperial party took the train for Windsor at 11:30 amid the salutes of warships, bands playing national anthems and cheers from crowds.

RECEPTION AT WINDSOR.

Windsor, Nov. 20.—The emperor and empress of Germany and their party arrived here at 10:45. They were received by the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge and the Duke of York, all wearing German uniforms. There was tremendous cheering in the streets as the imperial party drove to the castle, where they were received by Queen Victoria at 2 p. m. The waiting-room and platform at the station were lavishly decorated with flowers.

The town is filled with excursionists and decorated with flags. On the town hall the British and German royal standards and the Stars and Stripes float side by side.

A Sure Sign of Croup.

Hoarseness in a child that is subject to croup is a indication of the approach of the disease. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough has appeared, it will prevent the attack. Many mothers who have croupy children always keep this remedy at hand and find that it saves them much trouble and worry. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant to take. For sale by R. S. Knowlton.

About 2500 Chicago members of the Knights and the Ladies of Honor have seceded from the organization because of dissatisfaction with the management of the affairs of the body by the supreme lodge. Fourteen lodges in Chicago have withdrawn and have set up a rival concern, which is styled the German-American Federation of Illinois. The members of the 14 lodges say they seceded because they thought the assessments which the supreme lodge levied each month upon the members were too high.

Evening Telegram (Rep.): The Boer government manifests signs, in its treatment of the American consul at Pretoria, of displeasure with the Amerian government, which under the circumstances is natural and not to be too severely censured. The Boers expected the sympathy of the Americans, who are made to appear, on the contrary, as especially friendly to Great Britain.

"But why," asked the shade of Patrick Henry, "did you have Anne Boleyn's head cut off?" "Well," answered Henry VIII, "she really did not need it. I was head of the house, you know."

New York World
(Thrice-a-Week Edition)

ALMOST A DAILY—AT THE PRICE OF A WEEKLY.

The most widely circulated "weekly" newspaper in America is the Thrice-a-Week edition of The New York World, and with the presidential campaign now at hand you cannot do without it. Here are some of the reasons why it is easily the leader in a dollar a year journalism:

It is issued every other day, and is to all purposes a daily.

Every week each subscriber receives 18 pages and often during the "busy" season 24 pages each week.

The price is only $1 per year.

It is virtually a daily at the price of a weekly.

Its news covers every known part of the world. No weekly newspaper could stand alone and furnish such service.

The Thrice-a-Week World has at its disposal all of the resources of the greatest newspaper in existence—the wonder of modern journalism—"America's Greatest Newspaper," as it has been justly termed—The New York World.

Its political news is absolutely impartial. This fact will be of especial value in the Presidential campaign coming on.

The best of current fiction is found in its columns.

These are only some of the reasons; there are others. Read it and see them all.

We offer this unequaled newspaper and the Coquille City HERALD together one year for $1.90.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.50.

How One Mother Saved Her Daughter

The first critical period in a woman's life comes at the passing of her girlhood. How to preserve the daughter's health at this crisis is the problem that confronts every mother of girls. Mrs. J. M. Riggs, of Carterville, Mo., solved the problem. She says:

"My daughter Josie during the winter of 1897-98, suffered a complete breakdown in health. She was thin and pale, had no appetite, and was so weak that she was unable to walk to school. Those who knew her condition said that she was in the first stages of consumption. Shortly after school closed, on the advice of a neighbor, we began giving her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. The effect on her condition was marvelous. Before she had taken half a box her condition was improved, and she kept on gaining appetite, strength and flesh until she was entirely well.

"She took three bottles of the pills and to-day there is not a healthier, more robust looking girl in Carterville. She is fleshier and healthier than ever before in her life." MRS. J. M. RIGGS.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, a Notary Public, this 15th day of October, 1898. WM. WOLCOTT, Notary Public.

From the Journal, Carterville, Mo.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia rheumatism, nervous headache, the after-effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are never sold by the dozen or hundred, but always in packages. At all druggists, or direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., 50 cents per box, 6 boxes $2.50.

10 years' written warranty with each machine.

A strictly high-grade Sewing Machine, finished throughout in the best possible manner. It possesses all modern improvements, and its mechanical construction is such that in it are combined simplicity with great strength, thus insuring ease of running, durability, and making it impossible for the machine to be put out of order. It sews fast and makes a perfect stitch with all kinds of thread and all classes of material. Always ready for use and unrivalled for speed, durability and quality of work. Notice the following points of superiority:

$19.50 AND Coupon, if sent C. O. D. or on trial

The Head of the "Arlington" swings on patent socket hinges, firmly held down by a thumb screw. Strong, substantial, neat and handsome in design, and beautifully ornamented in gold. Bed plate has rounded corners and is inlaid or countersunk, making it flush with top of table. Highest Arm—Space under the arm is 5½ inches high and 9 inches long. This will admit the largest skirts, and even quilts. It is Self-Threading—Absolutely no holes to put thread through except eye of needle. Shuttle is cylinder, open on end, entirely self threading, easy to put in or take out; bobbin holds a large amount of thread. Stitch Regulator is on the bed of the machine, beneath the bobbin winder, and has a scale showing the number of stitches to the inch, and can be changed from 8 to 32 stitches to the inch. Feed is double and extends on both sides of needle; never fails to take goods through; never stops at seams; movement is positive; no springs to break and get out of order; can be raised and lowered at will. Automatic Bobbin Winder—Positive, filling the bobbin automatically and perfectly smooth without holding the thread. Machine does not run while winding bobbin. Light Running—Machine is easy to run, does not fatigue the operator, makes little noise and sews rapidly. Stitch is a double lock stitch, the same on both sides, will not ravel, and can be changed without stopping the machine. Tension is a flat spring tension, and will admit thread from 8 to 150 spool cotton without changing. Never gets out of order. The Needle is a straight, self-setting needle, flat on one side, and cannot be put in wrong. Needle Bar is round, made of case-hardened steel, with oil cup at the bottom to prevent oil from getting on the goods. Adjustable Bearings—All bearings are case-hardened steel and easily adjusted with a screw driver. All lost motion can be taken up, and the machine will last a lifetime. Attachments—Each machine is furnished with necessary tools and accessories, and in addition we furnish an extra set of attachments in a velvet lined metal box, free of charge, as follows: One ruffler and gatherer, one binder, one shirring plate, one set of four hemmers, different widths up to ¾ of an inch, one tucker, one under braider, one short or attachment foot, and one thread cutter. Woodwork of finest quality oak or walnut, gothic cover and drawers, nickel-plated rings to drawers, dress guards to wheel, and device for replacing belt.
