By way of apology to the readers of the HERALD, we will say that our issue of last week was duly printed and started for distribution through the postoffice, but was held up by the postal authorities as having something therein in violation of the law against "lotteries" and "prize drawings." This was corrected, but still delayed our mail. Similar advertisements have passed through the mails daily in other newspapers, and have become so familiar to our view that we formed no impression that an advertisement offering patrons, on purchase of a certain quantity of goods, a free coupon entitling them to a chance for a prize on a certain day set, was unlawful. We greet you this week all right, and may give some "particulars" later.

Rev. J. L. Futrell made a visit to Myrtle Point last week and canvassed that community in the interest of a furniture manufacturing company in California, who desire to establish a plant in Coos county, conditioned that they will be received in a spirit of reciprocity. The citizens there are moving in the matter and propose to act as a community, not leaving it in the hands of two, or three, or a few, whose personal interests may not alone be subserved and they strangle the project, but the whole people moving in the general interest. It would be a grand thing for Myrtle Point.
