The Boy that Plays For Keeps.

BY MRS. EVA W. MALONE
In the rush of the quiet country. "Mid the din of the crowded street. On the boulevard, in the alley, Vast hordes of boys I meet. Their faces are set and eager, And a fire to each young eye leaps As they talk off their hand-won "keeps." In the time-stealing game of "keeps," Young gamblers with baits to fortune, Young jockeys to win in the ring; Their souls on fire with the chances, The throw of a marble might bring; And sometimes the air is darkened, To a holder game he sweeps. While the lucky champion reaps A harvest of blows and curses. When he wins in the game of "keeps." Then I think of the waiting sheriff, And the galloos with ready rope; Of the hungry, yawning prison That entombs full many a hope. And I picture a wan-faced mother That sits all alone and weeps To see the hardened outcast Her boy that played "for keeps." Just an innocent(?) game of marbles For the test of his boyish skill, But the spirit of chance allures him, And maddly his pulses thrill. Till soon from the boyish circle To a holder game he sweeps, And one day pawns his honor In the soul-tempting game of "keeps." He pawns his honor and—loses! O black is the darkness then! When the gentleman's son in fetters Is led to the noisome "pen." Like a cry from the "outer darkness" His voice through the bars is heard, As he waits ere the dungeon closes: "O boys, don't play for keeps!"

A Gruesome Echo from a Political Tomb.

EDITOR HERALD: I submit the following characteristic reply of Grover Cleveland to a polite request of the Omaha World-Herald for a sentiment appropriate to be read on the occasion of the banquet at Omaha in commemoration of Jackson Day, on Jan. 8. He says: "I am only able, on account of illness, to sit up occasionally for a short time, and must forego a contribution to your supplement commemorative of the splendid career of Andrew Jackson. I wish it was to be published at a time when sauer counsels prevailed in the party he did so much to strengthen and place upon firmer foundations. It seems to me that the inconsistency of unreasoning and false party leadership is impressively exhibited, when the claim is made that Jacksonian Democracy sanctions the degradation of the people's currency."

Mr. Cleveland was unfortunate in some of his conclusions above, for they suggest comparisons which do no credit to the writer. For instance, he states that President Jackson's administration strengthened the Democratic party. This is true. He left it strong, vigorous and hopeful at the end of his second term and retired to private life loved and venerated by every Democrat in the land and respected by the opposition. He did not retire a millionaire, but comparatively poor. Mr. Cleveland retired from office at the end of his second term worth six million dollars, the price of his betrayal of the great party that had elevated him to the great office which he disgraced by treachery and sordid venality. In his retirement he carried with him the maledictions of six million stalwart, honest, intelligent Democrats.

Again, the disgruntled says that Jacksonian Democracy never sanctioned the "degradation of the people's currency." Neither does any other sort of Democracy, except Cleveland Democracy, sanction such degradation; and Cleveland Democracy was reduced to 129,000 members when they stood up to be counted for Palmer and Buckner. The kind of Democracy that Cleveland says "would degrade the people's currency," polled, when last heard from, six million five hundred thousand votes for William J. Bryan.

The great and honored Jackson was an uncompromising champion of the standard silver dollar as the monetary unit of the United States. When, during his second administration, a readjustment of the ratio between gold and silver was thought to be expedient he distinctly protested against any interference with the silver in the dollar, whereupon a reduction in the quantity of gold in the gold dollar was made to meet the exigency. It has resulted, therefore, that the amount of pure silver in the standard dollar has never been changed since the law authorizing its coinage in 1792. In another respect there is absolutely nothing in common between Jacksonian Democracy and Cleveland Democracy.

The national banks in Jackson's time showed signs of a purpose to get vigorously into the governing business, which, he said would result in the robbing of the great mass of the people for the enrichment of the few engaged in the manipulation of the money of the United States. He made relentless war upon the national banks and procured their abolition by law. Cleveland found such banks in existence again and lent the whole power of his administration to their fostering and perpetuity; and that they are getting in their work in grand shape we have the evidence of Gage's infamous conspiracy in their behalf, in loaning hundreds of millions of dollars of the people's taxes to favored ones among them without interest. J. H. Urrus.

STILL THE BRITISH HALT.

British Nerves Sorely Tried by South African Events.
London, Jan. 30.—(Tuesday, 4:30 a. m.)—History pauses for a time in South Africa. It is one of those unsatisfactory pauses that are nearly as trying to the British nerves as the sequence of reverses, and apparently it will terminate only when Lord Roberts gives the word for the forward movement into the Free State, which, according to the most cheerful view, he will not be able to do for a fortnight. Whether he will permit General Buller to make another attempt to relieve Ladysmith is quite outside the knowledge of those even closely connected with the war office. With the troops due to arrive during the next month, he may think himself strong enough to try two large operations. Combining the forces under Generals Methuen, French and Gatacre, and adding to this the arriving troops, Lord Roberts would have 70,000 for the invasion of the Free State, with 40,000 to 50,000 guard, in communications, and 40,000 trying to rescue Ladysmith.

The public burms with impatience that something should be done, but there is nothing to do but wait on the preparations. Oceans of ink are poured out in advice. Orators are at work in the provinces, telling the people that "England has set her teeth in grim determination to see it through."

The government's declarations in parliament, the counter declarations of those outside the government, and the consequent discussion in the press and on the platform, will immediately enthrall the public interest. The thing on which everybody seems agreed is that more men must go.

Twenty thousand two hundred and twenty-two men, and 155 guns are at sea. Eleven thousand infantry and 9000 cavalry, including 500 yeomen, are practically ready to embark. Therefore the government, without doing more, can place at the disposal of Lord Roberts 40,000 additional men and 155 guns. The further purposes of the war officials are supposed to embrace in the neighborhood of 50,000 men. As the indication is that candidates will be rather scarce, the war office will issue orders for these recruits, who were found unfit at the previous mobilizations, to report for further examination. Applicants for the cavalry service are still freely offering as yeomanry.

General Buller's operations have cost 912 men, so far, officially reported within ten days. Applying to the 206 Spionkop casualties, reported today, the rule of the proportion of losses of officers indicated, there are 500 casualties yet to come. The total casualties of the war, compiled from official reports, are 9523—nearly a division. Of these 2486 are killed; 4811 wounded, and the rest are prisoners. The aggregate British home troops in South Africa number 116,000; the Natalian forces 7158, and the Cape Colonial 24,000.

A Russo-Japan Alliance Discussed by Russian Papers.
St. Petersburg, Jan. 29.—The newspapers here are paying considerable attention to events in China. The Novosti expresses the opinion that the dynasty will last for a long time to come, but adds that "China will never be restored to her former condition, and the unavoidable work of partition will be accomplished peacefully, though perhaps in the distant future."

The Russia asserts that it was not necessary for Russia to take a hand in the coup d'etat, and adds: "A Russo-Japanese alliance is inevitable. It is only a question of time. In the meanwhile it is important that control of the naval and military forces of China does not fall into the hands of Americans, British or Germans."

The paper concludes: "We must keep on the alert and see how the new situation affects the interests of western Europe, above all, those of England."
1900 is not a leap year, though divisible by 4. The rule is to call every year divisible by 4 a leap year, except when the year ends with two ciphers, which must be omitted in making the division. The year 4000 and its multiples 8000, 12,000, 16,000, are to be treated as exceptions and are to be treated as leap years. Our forefathers had to jump 12 days in 1752 and call the third of that year the 14th. The calendar would go wrong without the leap year device. It will be noticed that none of the calendars published this year note 29 days for February, as in other years divisible by 4.
J. B. Montgomery, the energetic railroad builder and contractor, died at his home in Portland Wednesday night, aged 65 years.

"It was in the beautiful bar-room of the Tabar Grand in Denver," said Eli Perkins. "A group of handsome young men were laughing and drinking, when a poor, tottering tramp pushed open the swinging door, and with sad eyes looked at them appealingly."
"Come in, senator, and drown your cares in the flowing bowl!" they said jeeringly.

"I will come in, thank you, he said, for I am cold and hungry."
"Take this brandy, senator," they said mockingly, "and drink our health."
After swallowing the liquor, the tramp gazed at them for an instant and then, with a dignity and eloquence that showed how far he had fallen in the social scale, he began to speak:

"Gentlemen," he said sadly, "I wish you well. You stand where I stood a few years ago. You and I complete the picture of my life. I was, alas, a senator! My bloated face was once as young and handsome as yours. This shambling figure once walked as proudly as yours. I, too, once had a home and friends and position. I had a wife as beautiful as an artist's dream, and I dropped the priceless pearl of her honor and respect in the wine cup, and Cleopatra-like, saw it dissolve, and quaffed it down. I had children as sweet and lovely as the flowers of spring, and I saw them fade and die under the curse of a drunken father. I had a home where love lit the flame upon the altar and ministered before it, and I put out the holy fire, and darkness and desolation reigned in its stead. I had aspirations and ambitions that soared as high as the morning star, and I broke and bruised their beautiful wings, and at last strangled them, that I might be tortured with their cries no more. Today I am a husband without a wife, a father without a child, a tramp without a home to call my own, a man in whom every good impulse is dead. All, all swallowed up in the maelstrom of drink."

"Young gentlemen," he said, as he passed out into the darkness, "whichever way you go, whether you follow your father's example and end up as I do, or whether you become a saddened soul, forever lost, like me, I—I wish you well."
"I shall never forget that sad picture," continued the humorist. "It was wit and humor ending in pathos. Tears dimmed the eyes of youths as they watched a despairing soul disappearing in the darkness."

Democratic State Convention.

The Democratic state convention is called to meet at Portland, Oregon, on Tuesday, April 12, 1900, at 10 o'clock a. m., for the purpose of electing delegates to the National Democratic convention, and nominating candidates for presidential electors, justice of the supreme court, congressmen, dairy and food commissioner, circuit judges and district attorneys and various joint senators and representatives, and for such other business as may come before it.

The representation to which the various counties are entitled, being one delegate at large for each county, and one delegate for every 150 voters or fraction of 75 or over cast for Hon. W. M. Ramsey for supreme judge in 1898, is as follows, for Coos and Curry counties: Coos, 8 delegates; Curry, 3 delegates. There will be a total of 267 delegates.

The county central committee of each county is requested to fix the time for holding their primaries and county convention to suit their own convenience, and it is earnestly urged that all those selected as delegates to the state convention attend in person.
By order of the Democratic State Central Committee.

Metal Trading Checks.

The use of metal trading checks has become so general in some of the country districts in Minnesota as almost to supplant the use of government coin, and a suit has been instituted against the stamping concern making the checks to determine whether the production of them is in violation of the federal coinage laws. These checks, says the Chicago Tribune, are about the size of a silver quarter. They are stamped with the name of the firm for whom they are made, and bear a statement that they will be received for a certain amount in trade, the amounts ranging from five cents to one dollar. Country merchants use them in exchange for produce. They are good for trade only at the store issuing them. But from the fact that the stores refuse to pay for produce in any other currency, they soon come to be accepted by all other stores, as the farmers selling produce have no other coin to spend. In this way their circulation becomes general in certain localities. The storekeepers maintain that as they have an unquestionable right to give receipts good in trade, it is immaterial whether they are written on paper or stamped on metal. The practice is a profitable one for the merchants, and it enables them to do business on borrowed capital on which they do not pay interest.

California Legislature Meets to Elect a Senator.

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 29.—The senate and assembly of California today perfected its organization to meet in extraordinary session. The assembly proceeded immediately to business. It was conceded, however, that the vote for United States senator shall not be taken until the second Tuesday after reorganization, a week from tomorrow.

Governor Gage read his message to the joint assembly, a very unusual proceeding. The message contained some 7000 words. Those who were responsible for the failure to elect a United States senator at the regular session were severely denounced, and the Republican party, as a whole, was severely censured. The whole proceedings were of so unusual a nature that it created an interest bordering on the sensational.

United States Supreme Court Decides for Open Rivers.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Justice Peckham, in the United States supreme court, today, announced the opinion of the court in case of the United States vs. the Bellingham Bay Boom Company, on appeal from the United States circuit court of appeals from the ninth district. The suit was brought originally by the government to secure the removal of the boom across the Nook-sack river in the state of Washington. The decision of the circuit court of appeals was favorable to the boom company, but Justice Peckham's opinion reverses that decision. He says the boom does not allow a free passage of boats between the boom and the opposite shore, as provided in the state law. The case is considered important as a precedent.

A Story With a Moral.

An old sailor once appeared to give evidence in a case of assault, when he was asked the following questions:
The Judge—"Where was plaintiff standing when defendant struck him?"
Witness—"Who are they?"
The Judge—"Don't you know the difference between plaintiff and defendant?"
Witness—"No."
The Judge—"Well, you are a nice chap to come here and give evidence! And you don't know the plaintiff from the defendant? Where was he when the man struck him?"
Witness—"Abaft the binnacle?"
The Judge—"Abaft the binnacle? Where is that?"
Witness—"You are a fine chap to sit as a judge! And you don't know where 'abaft the binnacle' is!"

An Editor's Life Saved by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

During the early part of October, 1896, I contracted a bad cold which settled on my lungs and was neglected until I feared that consumption had appeared in an incipient state. I was constantly coughing and trying to expel something which I could not. I became alarmed and after giving the local doctor a trial bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the result was immediate improvement, and after I had used three bottles my lungs were restored to their healthy state.—B. The Improved "Arlington" Self-Threading Sewing Machine

NEW HOME STYLE LATEST CHEAPEST

Shipped to you, anywhere, on 10 days' free trial, in your own home, without asking one cent in advance.

10 years' written warranty with each machine.

A strictly high-grade Sewing Machine, finished throughout in the most possible manner. It possesses all modern improvements, and is mechanical perfection. As such that in it are combined simplicity and ease of running, durability, and making possible for the machine to be put out of order. It sews fast and makes a perfect stitch with all kinds of thread and all classes of material. Always ready for use and unrivaled for speed, durability and quality of work. Notice the following points of superiority:

The Head of the "Arlington" swings on patent socket hinges, firmly held down by a thumb screw, strong, substantial, neat and handsome in design, and beautifully ornamented in gold. Highest Arm—Space under the arm is 5 1/2 inches high and 9 inches long. This will admit the largest skirts, and even quilts. It is Self-Threading—Absolutely no holes to put thread through, except eye of needle. Shuttle (cylinder, open on end, entirely self-threading, easy to put in or beneath the bobbin winder, and has a scale showing the number of stitches to the inch, and can be changed from 8 to 32 stitches to the inch. Feed is double and extends on both sides of needle, never fails to take goods through, never stops. Reverse movement is positive, no spring to break and get out of order; can be raised and lowered at will. Automatic Bobbin Winder—Feeds the bobbins automatically and perfectly smooth without holding the thread. Machine does not run while winding bobbin. Light Running—Machine is easy to run, does not fatigue the operator, makes little noise and sews rapidly. Stitch is a double lock stitch, the same on both sides, will not unravel, and can be changed without stopping the machine. Tension is on a spring tension, and will admit thread from 8 to 1500 speed cotton without changing. Never gets out of order. The Needle is a straight, self-cutting needle, flat on one side, and cannot be put in incorrectly. Foot is round, made of case-hardened steel, with cup at the bottom to prevent oil from getting on the goods. Adjustable Berings—All bearings are case-hardened steel and last a lifetime. Attachments—Each machine is furnished with necessary tools and accessories, and in addition we furnish an extra set of attachments in a velvet lined metal box, free of charge, as follows: One roller and gatherer, one binder, one shirring plate, one set of four hemmers, three sets wide up cutter.
