They are looking for a place to locate, having become tired of too much dry weather. If this part is not too far to the other extreme, they will doubtless settle down. They are intelligent and industrious people and will doubtless make good citizens whose the community in which they see fit to locate may well feel proud.

The enterprising people of that section of the North Fork have the abutments completed and will place the stringers across the neighborhood bridge which will span that stream between the places of I. T. Weekly and J. E. Crosby. The bridge will be a strong and substantial structure, six feet above high water. This will be a great convenience to these people and they deserve much credit for their harmony and working in union on such valuable public improvements. Now, that light rains are falling, and that there is no danger of fires spreading as they have previously done, it would be a good idea for the people in the outskirts of town, particularly on the north side, to clear up and burn trash as it may cause more fire than would be comfortable or profitable during dry weather with a heavy north wind prevailing.
