The Apple.

The apple is destined in the future as in the past, to lead in variety and value and quantity, as compared with the other fruit industries of the world. In the United States we find a climate and soil peculiarly adapted to the successful cultivation of this admirable fruit. As compared with the orange the apple flourishes in the snow belt as well as beneath the genial clime of the Sunny South. Among the distinguishing characteristics of the apple is the abundance of its yield, its cheapness; its enduring qualities, and its numerous dispositions to which it can be utilized. The yield of this fruit in the United States is said to be 210,000,000 barrels per annum. In the natural state the apple is at its best. In this condition apples can be easily stored away, to be easily brought forth in suitable quantities in the winter months, when the flavor of the fruit is improved by having been stored away. Dried, they can be readily converted into toothsome pies, the delight of the schoolboy; canned, they have a delicious taste of their own; made into apple pies or dumplings, we have a feast fit for a king; roasted or baked the apple is still supreme; made into cider, it becomes a brew fit for the gods. The countless other dishes to which the fruit can be utilized lead us to conclude that no other fruit can approach its excellence.

Competent analysts claim that the apple contains a greater percentage of phosphorus than any other fruit. It is claimed that the apple is admirably adapted for people of sedentary habits, whose livers are sluggish in action, as the acid of this fruit serves to eliminate from the body noxious elements, which retained would be injurious and retard good health, as the malic acid in ripe apples neutralizes the evil effect of eating too much meats and other greasy foods.

In color the apple has borrowed the brightest colors of the rainbow. Some varieties of this species have the blush of the morning sunrise, some the green of the ocean waves, others the globes of gold, while still others are crimson globes that swing to and fro like spheres of fire in forests of green leaves. In flavor the apple is more or less aromatic, sweet or sub acid, adapting itself to the tastes of people in general. In this particular it differs from other fruit materially, thereby largely enhancing its commercial possibilities.

In the realm of literature the apple is frequently referred to. The Bible employed the apple as a figure of speech on several occasions to illustrate great problems and conditions. Mythology has also some interesting stories wherein the apple figures conspicuously. Perhaps the most notable event was the golden apple of the Hesperides, which caused Hercules no little trouble in securing. Eurytheus directed Hercules to secure the Golden Apple of the Hesperides as one of the most difficult feats of his twelve great labors. Upon inquiry Hercules found that the coveted apples were in the interior of Africa, and immediately went in search of them. In this eventful journey this all-powerful giant met with numerous strange adventures. In his journey he found Atlas supporting the Heavens upon his broad shoulders. Inquiring about the apples, Atlas declared that he knew where they could be found and promised to get them if Hercules would kindly hold the globe on his shoulders for a few moments.

Approaching the apples, Atlas found them guarded by a dragon whom he slew, secured the apples and returned to Hercules. Atlas found that freedom was sweet and coolly announced that he would carry the apples to Eurytheus and let Hercules hold the heavens instead. Hercules apparently acquiesced to this program, but asked him to hold the heavens until he could place a cushion on his shoulders. This seemed reasonable enough to the unsuspecting Atlas, who threw the treasures on the ground grasped the globe and then Hercules gathered up the golden apples, leaving Atlas in the same position he found him, which has moved the great poet Hesiod to remark: "There Atlas, son of the great Iapetus. With head inclined and ever enduring arm Sustains the spacious heavens."

Another story in mythology is of interest. Atlanta, a fair princess, was entreated by many suitors who came to woo her but refrained when they learned the conditions that were imposed upon all to secure her hand. The fair princess, anxious to keep her freedom, decreed that she would marry upon one condition only, that being that her suitor would beat her in a foot race, losing he should forfeit his life. A bold youth—Milanion—accepted the condition. Previously he had gained the protection of Venus and concealed in his garments three golden apples which Venus gave him. These our hero at different times threw in front of Atlanta, who, stopping to secure them, lost the race, and mythology state that Atlanta became the wife of the gallant youth.—S. F. Gillespie, in Coleman's Rural World.

Notable Purchases of Stock For Oregon

Dr. James F. Withycombe reached Portland December 7. He was at the opening of the great livestock show at Chicago, the most important event of the kind ever held and one which drew together a truly wonderful collection of the choicest stock of all kinds. Although the show was but fairly opened, a number of notable purchases were made for Oregon before he left. Dr. Withycombe bought for the Oregon Agricultural College the best Cotswold ram lamb and the best Shropshire ram lamb at the show. The Cotswold lamb is an imported prize-winner at the Royal show. The Shropshire is from the noted Altamont stock farm in New York, and is regarded as the best Shropshire ram lamb in America this year. Thomas W. Brunk bought the champion yearling Cotswold ram of the season—winner at the Royal in England and everywhere in America where exhibited.

Mr. Stump bought 50 Cotswold ewes which were destined to take practically all the premiums awarded on Cotswold ewes at the Chicago show. Ten of these are imported prize-winners from England, and the remainder were selected from the best flocks of America. Mr. Stump also had his eyes on three magnificent Percheron mares, but had not decided to buy them when Dr. Withycombe left.

Manager Brown, of Oak Hill Stock Farm, Mr. Maris, representing W. O. Miner, and C. B. Wade were carefully looking over the stock, but had made no purchases while Dr. Withycombe was there.

Wild With Eczema

Fire Could Not Have Been More Painful.
"After spending two years in taking all kinds of medicines that were suggested for eczema, but without avail, my mother was induced to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. The result was wonderfully gratifying. Her limbs had been terribly lacerated by the disease, and there were times when fire could not have been more painful. She was, in fact, almost wild. Two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla completely cured her, and not a trace of eczema was left." E. W. DECKER, Gardner, N. Y.

Eat Well, Sleep Well.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla has been a great blessing to me. I was weak, irritable, tired and nervous; had no appetite and was always sad and despondent. One day I got hold of a little book about Hood's Sarsaparilla. I looked it over and resolved to try a bottle. I was better before it was gone, so I kept on until I had taken five bottles. I can now sleep well, feel cheerful and can do all my work, including plain sewing, and I can walk two or three miles a day. I am 55 years old and now feel that life is worth living." Mrs. EMMA SMITH, 65 E. Mitchell St., Oswego, N. Y.

Critical Period of Life.

"I took Hood's Sarsaparilla during the critical period of my life, and now, at the age of 60 years, I am strong and healthy. It is a great medicine for the blood. I find Hood's to be the best." Mrs. H. POMROY, 22 Lansing Street, Auburn, N. Y.
You can buy Hood's Sarsaparilla at any druggist. Be sure to ask for Hood's and do not accept any substitute.

others, Dr. Withycombe, without hesitation pronounces the most notable event in the livestock line for Oregon since the great importations by Ladd & Reed in 1871. At that time the firm named purchased and brought to Oregon a collection of livestock of extraordinary merit which made their farm at Reedville the most remarkable stock farm in America, in the fact that it contained the champion prize-winners of so many kinds of stock, including Cotswold sheep, Clydesdale horses, Shorthorn cattle, Ayrshire cattle and, shortly after, standard-bred horses, etc. These great importations dominated the character of Oregon stock and resulted in the remarkably high character of Oregon pure-bred stock at the present time. The great opportunities which Dr. Withycombe has enjoyed during the past four months of seeing the best stock of other states leads him to the conclusion that the character of Oregon's pure-bred stock is much above the average even in states in which the pure-bred stock industry is of far greater magnitude than in Oregon. Familiarity with blooded stock of high merit enables our Oregon breeders to exercise rare judgment in the selection of the animals they purchase to strengthen their herds. The fact Oregon carried off the best of the Cotswold sheep at the Chicago show will help to call attention to the merit of our breeders and the high character of the flocks they already have.

Oregon Agriculturist—The farmers' short course at the Oregon agricultural college this winter opens January 8th and closes February 2nd 1901. This course is open to everybody who wishes to attend. No entrance examination is required, and no tuition fees are charged. Those who attend can obtain board and lodging in Corvallis at from $2.50 to $4.00 per week. The instruction is given in the form of lectures, supplemented by laboratory work, and the lectures will be of a practical nature. There are a great many who are situated that they are not able to take a regular course in the agricultural college, but who can go there for a few weeks, and this course is intended for such persons. There are very few farmers who would not find this short course both interesting and valuable, and to the young man who intends to keep abreast of the progress of agriculture it is invaluable.

The commissioner of the general land office held that a person who has resided upon land prior to the location of railroad scrip thereon, and has continued to live upon and improve the land until such is surveyed, will have his claim recognized when he goes to the land office and makes affidavit showing settlement. His filing will be received and the railroad company will have to contest his right to the land in order to hold it, thus throwing the burden of proof upon the railroad company. Under the law prior to October 1, 1900, whenever a person holding this scrip presents it at any land office and offers to file it upon any land, the local officers are compelled to accept it if the land is unsurveyed, but when the survey is made and the occupier of the land offers his filing within ninety days, and proves by affidavit his prior settlement, he is given a right title to the land, no matter how many scrip filings there may be upon it, and the scrip holder, in order to establish his claim, will have to initiate a contest.—Oregon Timberman

To Drop the Name Sing Sing.

Sing Sing, N. Y., Dec. 18.—This place cannot stand any longer the ignominy of being the place where the chief prison of the state of New York is located. A public meeting will be held here tonight to discuss the proposition to change the name to that of Ossining, which is the name of the township and is the old Indian name. The Higgins carpet works, of New York, wants to go there and will employ 2500 to 3000 persons, but the name of Sing Sing on their goods would give the impression that they were made in the prison. A stove foundry makes the same objection. Half the townspeople disown the place when they are away from it. The business men also desire a change. As a name for the convicts here it is not appropriate, as a convict does not sing when he comes here, nor while he stays, and seldom elsewhere, after being here.

Biggle Poultry Book is the most comprehensive and helpful poultry book ever gotten out. In addition to the vast amount of valuable information covered in its seventeen chapters, there are sixteen beautiful colored plates, showing, true to color and shape, twenty-three varieties of poultry. Chickens, ducks, turkeys and geese are all shown in their proper plumage, and with combs, beak and shanks as true to nature as possible to produce. Also, forty-two handsome engravings in half-tone and sixty-one other helpful illustrations of houses, nests, drinking vessels, etc. The price is 50 cents, by mail; address the publishers, Wilmer Atkinson Co., Philadelphia.

Oregon pays annually $350,000 for eastern eggs and the demand increases yearly. Not because Oregon is unadapted to successful poultry raising, but because producers have not been compelled to engage in the business in a systematic and practical way. Oregon needs more experienced poultrymen who will engage in the poultry industry, raising fowls and more of them. The demand for good eggs and poultry has always been beyond the supply, and the present stimulation in the mining industry and increasing immigration must create a greater future market.—The Dallas Chronicle.

The Improved "Arlington" Sewing Machine
NEW HOME STYLE
LATEST BEST CHEAPEST
Shipped to anyone, anywhere, on 10 days' free trial, in your own wrapper, with no obligation, unless you return it, making one cent in advance.
10 years' written warranty with each machine.
A strictly high-grade Sewing Machine, finished through the most reliable manner. It possesses all modern improvements, and its mechanism is such that it is combined with simplicity with great strength, thus insuring ease of running, durability, and making it possible for the machine to be put out of order. It sews fast and makes a beautiful stitch with all kinds of thread and all classes of material, and is especially adapted for speed, durability and quality of work. Notice the following points of superiority:
The Head of the "Arlington" swings on patent socket hinges, firmly held down by a thumb screw. Strong, substantial, neat and handsome in design, and beautifully ornamented in gold. Bed plate has rounded corners and is lathed or counter-lathed, making it flush with top of table. Biggest Arm—Space under the arm is 16 inches high and 9 inches long. This will admit the largest size and even coils. It is 50° Threading—Immediately available to put thread through except eye of needle. Shuttle is cylinder, open end, and entirely self-threading, may be put in or taken out, holding in a large amount of thread. Stitch Regulator is on the bed of the machine, beneath the table, and has a scale showing the number of stitches to the inch, and can be changed from 8 to 32 stitches to the inch. Feed is double and extends on both sides of needle, and will take work through; never stops at seams; movement is positive; no springs to break and get out of order; can be raised and lowered at will. Automatic Bow-Winder—No filling the bobbin manually and perfectly smooth without holding the thread. Machine does not run while winding bobbin. Light Running—Machine is easy to run, does not start jerking, makes little noise and sews rapidly. Stitch is a double lock stitch, the same on both sides, will not unravel, and can be changed without stopping the machine. Needle Bar is mounted on a self-adjusting needle, with oil cup at the bottom to prevent oil from getting on the goods. Adjustable Bearings—All bearings are case-hardened steel and easily adjusted with a screw driver. All foot motion can be taken up, and the machine will sew with any size of needle. Attachments—Each machine is furnished with necessary tools and accessories, and in addition we furnish an extra set of attachments in a velvet lined metal box, free of charge, as follows: One rubber and gather, one tucker, one shirring plate, one set of four buttons, one set of up to 2 1/2 of an inch, one under-trailer, one short or attachment foot, and one thread cutter. Woodwork of first quality oak or walnut, girth cover and drawers, nickel-plated rings to take up extra threads to select, and device for replacing rings.
