COUNTY RICH IN PROMISE.

Undeveloped Resources of the Coquille District Are Great.

Coquille, March 30.—(Special correspondence.)—"All aboard! Coquille, Myrtle Point!" shouts the lusty-throated hostler. Entering the hotel bus we rumble along over the planked streets and bridges of Marshfield toward the depot. This, while not an elegant affair, answers all practical purposes. For this 26 miles of railroad is an evidence of San Francisco's enterprise and confidence in the present and future of this part of Oregon, and is owned and operated by J. D. Spreckles & Co. of San Francisco. The fare from Marshfield to Coquille, 18 miles, is 75 cents. Trains composed of two passenger and freight cars, leave Marshfield Monday, Wednesday and Friday for Coquille and Myrtle Point, returning following days. Twelve miles out from Marshfield a branch is run to Beaver Hill coal mines, six miles, from whence the product of these mines can be hauled either to Marshfield or Coquille for reshipment by water down Coquille River or Coos Bay.

The road runs through a good deal of broken country, hilly, and principally covered with timber. The bottom lands, however, attest the natural fertility of soil and are being used for dairy and stock ranches.

A ride of little over two hours has brought us, to Coquille, county seat of Coos County. This pretty town is the center of a rich dairy section, situated on gently sloping ground, green as the emerald hills of Ireland, on the right bank of the Coquille river; it is the head of navigation of that stream, which flows in a sinuous course, 26 miles, into the sea at Bandon. The last school census gives its population at 1000. The courthouse built in '97 cost $14,000 and the new public school building, $5000. In addition to its graded school it has an academy—three teachers. Two steam sawmills with a daily capacity of 25 to 30 thousand feet per day. A furniture factory and marble yard, three hotels, eight general stores, two blacksmith shops, two hardware, three candy and cigars, one jewelry store, one bank, two livery stables and two newspapers. The town owns water works, gravity system. An electric light plant, private enterprise, is in contemplation. Five churches: Presbyterian, Christian, Methodist Episcopal, Methodist South and the St. James.

Aside from the large saw mills, there are three creameries tributary to the town, distributing ready cash among the people from the product sold in San Francisco market. The country is as yet undeveloped save what nature so bountifully supplies. Land suitable for stock and dairying can be bought from $10 to $30 per acre. Improved ranches, 160, usually sell for $10,000. But choice land along river bottom, improved, sells as high as $100 per acre. Available timber lands, $12.50 per acre.

Apples, pears and prunes can be cultivated here to perfection; apples are free from pests and fetch high prices in San Francisco market. Here are opportunities on every side for men with energy, with or without capital. Every one willing to work can make money here. People that came in here poor, have as a result of their labor become well to do. This vast region abounding in timber, coal and lands, where the grass is green the year around, and where, owing to the mild climate, but little winter feeding is necessary offers yet opportunities to the man willing to work such as may not be found in any other part of the country.

For instance, about a year ago, four men, ordinary miners, from the Newport coal mines prospected for coal not far from Marshfield, took up a homestead claim, on which they found and developed a coal mine and which they recently sold for $20,000 to San Francisco parties. Further developments since made increased the value of this property to at least $50,000. The Government laws give the prospector a year to prove up on coal land mines.

This is but one instance, other opportunities in timber, coal and dairy lines await to reward men of energy and perseverance.

As stated, Coquille is at the head of navigation on Coquille river, but two small steamers besides the railroad, make connection with Myrtle Point, 10 miles distant. The steamer Mandalay, a handsome, large boat, plying between Coquille and San Francisco direct, makes a trip every ten days, besides several schooners carrying lumber and freight. Thus affording this rich section direct and frequent communication with San Francisco.

California vs. Oregon is once more illustrated in this section. When the people talk of the "city," they mean San Francisco. San Francisco commercial men have things their own way, and Portland is a back number. To get freight in here from Portland one will have to ship on Alliance to Marshfield and ship by rail to Coquille, and the rate on latter is as much as from Portland to Marshfield, whereas San Francisco has direct steamer communication with the Coquille river country.

What Portland needs and needs badly is a number of small craft to make regular trips into these sections if she would win a portion of the constantly growing trade in this modern land of Canaan. It may be of interest to furniture men to know that along the Coquille the Myrtle tree grows quite abundantly and frequently to a thickness of 30 inches through. The writer has seen a cabinet made of this wood and it is a beauty.

The richness and beauty of its grain, hardness and high polish, resembling a deep bronze, makes it superior to either oak or walnut. How extensively these larger specimens grow, I am unable to say, but trees of smaller growth are very abundant all over this section.

A tour of investigation on the part of Portland merchants into these regions might be productive of mutual benefit.—C. G. in Evening Telegram.

The second annual report of the Oregon Historical Society has been received. It is a pamphlet 54 pages and contains 124 pages. It shows that the society had 627 members on Nov. 30, 1900, distributed in twenty-three counties in Oregon and four in Washington. The material collected during the year is classified as follows: Library Department—Documents, 134; diaries, account books, etc., 18; maps and charts, 15; bound newspaper files, 27; miscellaneous papers, unbound, 53; pamphlets, 165; miscellaneous books, 106; early school books, 48; Museum Department—Pioneer relics, 207; archaeological relics, 172; pioneer photographs, 448; other pictures, 139. The documents consist mainly of letters and other written matter relating to the early social and business life of the country, and the relics are such as were used while crossing the plains with teams or in the early industries of the country. Visitors at the rooms in the city hall, Portland, average 1500 a month, and all who visit that city are cordially invited to call.

Boer Capitol is Taken.
London, April 9.—Lord Kitchener, reporting to the War Office, under date of Pretoria, April 8, says: "Plumer has occupied Pietersburg with slight opposition. He captured two locomotives and 39 trucks." The capture of Pietersburg is regarded here as important. The place is the terminus of the railway, and has been the Capitol of the Boer government since the evacuation of Pretoria. The whole Northern Railway is now in the hands of the British.

According to Lord Kitchener's dispatch only one officer and one man was killed. The Boers evacuated the town during the night prior to Plumer's arrival after blowing up two trucks laden with ammunition.

Lord Kitchener reports the capture of 16 prisoners, 50 horses and the depot of war stores at Boshman's Kop, Orange River Colony. As an offset the Commander-in-Chief reports that 100 men of the British Lancers and Imperial Yeomanry were attacked by 400 Boers to the northward of Aberdeen, Cape Colony, and that after several hours fighting the British were surrounded and captured, with the exception of 25, who succeeded in making their escape.

W. H. BUNCH, School Supt.

The Oregonian.
Takes the market news of San Francisco by wire prints it daily and distributes it in Coos county 24 hours ahead of the Bay City papers. It also serves the arrival and departure of vessels at all Pacific coast ports. For this part of the country its columns "Domestic and Foreign ports," is the best shipping guide. Besides giving the movements of steam vessels between San Francisco, Coquille river, Coos Bay and Portland, it notes the arrival and departure of sailing schooners at and for their ports. The Oregonian is the only Morning Daily coming in here which advertises Coos county abroad. The Weekly Oregonian gives all the news of our state and 64 columns of general telegraphic news of the world each week. It will be sent in connection with the HERALD for only $2 per year. Here is your chance for County, State and National News.

New York, April 9.—According to a Herald special from Washington, since the rebellion in the Philippines 50,000 men is the lowest estimate of the War Department of the casualties sustained by the Filipino forces; 7667 rifles have been captured or surrendered, and 65,142 rounds of ammunition have been seized.

The number of Filipinos killed cannot be accurately determined, as General MacArthur in his dispatch states that it is impossible to be accurate on this point. It would not surprise officials should the Filipino fatalities reach 25,000, and some say 50,000 is closer to the real figures. Adjutant-General Corbin is satisfied that the casualties suffered by the insurgents will form a potent reason for the abandonment of further resistance by the natives.

We have made arrangements by which we can offer the king of dairy papers, Horn's Dairyman, and the HERALD for $2. No up-to-date dairyman can afford to be without this paper.
