Written for the Herald:
 The Cry of the Children.

BY E. H. P.
 The children, dear innocent creatures,
 Unhurt by the cackler of years,
 The love-light glow in their features,
 Too often is defaced with tears—
 The cry that upheaves and convulses
 The heart into tumult so wild
 As to deaden its joyous impulses,
 Is the innocent cry of a child.

Their moans pierce the heart as none other
 And stir the warm depths of the soul
 Till through the deep anguish another
 Nor the thrush in the heart can control:
 And I feel as I list to the wailing,
 Of children so helpless and mild,
 That angelic faces are weeping,
 Let them look on the grief of a child.

O, the dear ones so young and so tender,
 Heart-broke at a tear or a frown:
 A king who stood forth their defender,
 Would didademe add to his crown:
 Yet the clouds are so easily broken,
 And the shadows so quickly beguiled—
 Just a word that is lovingly spoken,
 Will light up the heart of a child.

The plaint of the children brings sadness
 Like notes from a funeral strain
 That says from the heart all its gladness
 And leaves such an ache and a pain:
 Although my feet tread the Golden Street
 My heart would beat unreconciled,
 Were a pitiful wail borne aloft on the gale
 From the lips of an innocent child,
 Riverton, Or., July 27, 1901.

[Marshfield Sun.]
 Mrs. Dr. Horsfall has returned from San Francisco.
 Father Donnelly will leave Monday on a visit to Portland.
 Henry Sengstacken has sold his general merchandise store in Empire City to F. C. Getty.

Surveyor Cathart left this week for the Coquille and before returning will relocate that portion of the Coos Bay wagon road passing through Brewster valley. The new road will be located on the high land and will be accessible to travel at all seasons of the year, whereas the present path is in the river bottom and the high water in the winter months is an obstruction to its use.

Preparations for the establishing of a Catholic church at Coquille City are in an embryonic state. Father Donnelly has the matter in hand and will go ahead with the movement. So far he has been accorded the promise of liberal aid from the parties with whom he has talked and feels quite confident that the move will be a success. Father Donnelly will, on his return from Portland, look after a site and the edifice will be erected sometime this summer if possible.

[Myrtle Point Enterprise.]
 Atty. L. A. Roberts and wife departed Wednesday for Roseburg, from where they will go to Portland on the big Woodman excursion.

Louis Strong returned last week from Dairyville, where he organized a Grange with sixty members. He left Wednesday for Camas valley where he organized a grange.

Died, near Myrtle Point, Thursday, Aug. 1st, 1901, Mrs. H. Lowe, aged 45 years. The remains will be interred in the Norway cemetery today. A husband and four children survive the deceased.

COOS TOWN NEWS.
 Mrs. Olive, who went to the city some time ago for medical treatment, is improving in health.
 Dr. A. M. Evans, formerly of Marshfield, died in San Francisco on July 22, aged 45 years, 7 months and 4 days. Private letters received here state that his death resulted from an operation for appendicitis.

The Canning Bros., who started to make a tour of the county with their vaudeville and moving-picture show, returned to town Sunday, an accident having happened to their picture machine at Alleghany, Saturday night. They will make another start this week.

Judge Schroeder was in town Saturday and paid his usual pleasant and interesting visit. He informs us that while the cutworms are not as destructive as they were last year, but in certain patches they are quite thick. He suggests that a concerted effort on the part of all our farmers should be made to destroy those to prevent propagation and their ravages in the future. As an experiment he tried the Paris green and sweetened bran on a piece of clover to his complete satisfaction. After the first crop had been removed and the second was coming up in nice shape, they struck it vigorously, and in a short time the ground was almost as bare as the floor, when he applied the remedy mentioned, and the worms have disappeared and the clover is now coming up again as nicely as could be expected considering the season and all conditions. He informs us that the labor amounts to but little and the cost of the material not to exceed 15 cents per acre to do away with a crop of worms. This being the case, it would certainly be advisable to take this pains to prevent another return of them such as we experienced last year.

Uncle David Mathers was up to town yesterday from the lower river.

Attend the Veterans' association at Myrtle Point which begins tomorrow.

County Clerk Hazard started yesterday for Tacoma, Washington where he goes to visit an aunt.

Salmon are beginning to run. A few have been caught—the first of the season by Gene Robinson.

If you have not tried a bottle of Oddey's Liquid Electricity you should do so at once. It is the best medicine out.

M. O. Hawkins sells the Mason fruit jars at prices that would jar you. Pint, quart and half gallon. Prepare your fruit for the winter.

Our friend, J. A. Cox, of Langlois, Curry county, having business in this section, made the HERALD a pleasant visit last Saturday morning.

Mrs. John Morgan, of Empire City, accompanied by Mrs. Horswell, a friend of Oakland, California, who is here on a visit, and who expects her husband in a short time to ease the big strike at San Francisco does not intend to interfere, came over yesterday's train and will visit friends on the upper river.

B. F. Lawrence arrived in town yesterday evening from Portland where he holds a position on the Oregonian, and will have a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Lawrence, and old-time friends here, and he and Mrs. Lawrence, who has been visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Drake will return with him soon, as Mr. L. has only ten days off.

J. W. Nosler started for Roseburg Friday morning expecting to meet Mrs. Viola Elliott and son Earl, on their arrival at that place from their visit in Kansas, but a letter has been received stating that they could not get off as early as they had expected, and it will yet be some time before they arrive. This will be quite a disappointment to Mr. N., as the line is not in working order and he cannot be wined that she is not coming at this time and is still waiting.

Deputy Sheriff Gallier returned from his trip to Portland yesterday, and he tells of a sad mishap that occurred on the Alliance soon after clearing the Columbia, for Coos Bay. It seems that several of the ship's crew were about the deck attending their duties when an attempt was made by one man to tighten a line about some loose freight on deck which parted, and as he was near the side of the boat, went overboard and drowned right in view of all. Life preservers were thrown to him, but the motion of the boat prevented effective assistance being rendered. He seemed to swim very well for a short time and then went down very suddenly. Some thought he might have been attacked by some sea animal.

A card from the postmaster at the Veteran's Home, California, advising us to discontinue sending the HERALD to the address of W. P. Skelly at that place, gives as a reason for so doing that Mr. Skelly died the 8th of June last. W. P. Skelly was well and favorably known to this county, having followed his trade, that of carpenter, for many years in this section, quite a number among our best residents in Coquille being of his handwork. Only a short time before his death we received a letter from him with a remittance for his subscription and a kind remembrance of his friends, but stated that he could not read much and that we would soon have to discontinue sending the paper to him, but it was the least of our thoughts that the end was so near. Thus the soldiers of the rebellion step off the stage of life one by one, leaving the honors and cares, joys and sorrows of their country to the younger generations. Peace to his ashes.

We had the pleasure of an exceedingly pleasant call from Wm. Cox of near Port Orford, on Tuesday afternoon of last week. While his son-in-law, J. W. Leneve and daughters, Mrs. J. W. Leneve and Mrs. Jack Grimes were at his place enjoying an extended visit, hunting trip and outing on the beach, the gentleman took occasion to have a little vacation and made a trip up this way, visiting a number of old-time friends, including the HERALD. While here he told us of gathering a collection of Indian relics for a lady friend in the east, and while he has shipped a quantity already, he showed us a specimen which is yet to go of rare beauty and much interest. It is in the shape of an arrow-head of small size but of symmetrical shape, and peculiar tints. The base of the instrument being of the usual whitish hue, while the point blends off into a deep pinkish tint, giving it the appearance of having been dipped in blood. An interesting feature of this stone is that it was picked up on Battle Rock, being one of the missiles hurled by the savage red men at the brave little band of white men who fought the duel which gave this noted rock its name, an interesting sketch of which the HERALD published only a few weeks ago.
