GOLD MINES OF THE SISKIYOUS.

Operations, Both Placer and Quartz, Being Carried on Extensively.

Ashland, Or., Aug. 14.—Mining operating over the Siskiyous are generally very busy on both placer and quartz properties. A number of men are at work on Grouse and Beaver creeks. George Fendall has uncovered a ledge on his placer claim which prospects well in gold. W. A. Montgomery has gotten into the channel near the mouth of Grouse creek, which yields good pay. Much money has been taken from these creeks in past years.

Near the forks of Hungry creek, some Oregon miners who have been prospecting a quartz ledge struck a pocket which yielded them about $1600 gold. The Alta mine, on Hungry creek, operated by Tiffany, Moran and Roper, of Ashland, shows good ore as development is made. A shaft has been sunk 120 feet on the ledge where the walls are eight feet apart. A cross-cut tunnel tops the ledge at 60 feet below the outcrop, and thence a drift is being run to connect with the shaft 100 feet distant. The ledge affords 18 inches to two feet of ore, which gives assay values varying from $5.85 to $75 gold per ton, and is free milling. Farther west Bunnell Brothers are developing some promising gold properties. The exploratory work in the Jillson mine, at Hornbrook, has resulted in finding the ledge again. Some 15 men have been doing this work since the ledge was lost last spring, when a large crew of men was discharged. This mine has yielded a great sum of money, and it now seems likely operations will be resumed on the ledge again on a large scale. In the extension of the La Flesh property, near by, a shoot of good ore has been struck.

In the Nabana mine, operated by Mattern, Bennett & Reynolds, it is reported a body of $40 ore has been tapped, which is three feet in width.

Work on the dredger at the Last Chance mine, near Callahan's has been suspended, it being impossible to obtain any machinery desired from the factory, on account of the strike in San Francisco. The company known as the Callahan Consolidated Dredging Company, of Callahan, now hopes to begin running by October 1.

The main shaft in the Ashland is now down about 775 feet. The ore continues very satisfactory, and the mine is yielding handsomely.

Developments in the Reader mine in Ashland canyon show a good sized fissure vein, carrying fair workable values. They are high enough to warrant shipping to the smelter. A few cars of ore are on the dump, to be shipped shortly. Most of the Jackson county placer mines have made their final clean-up, the season's water supply being closed, except in a few cases where the conditions are specially favorable. Some of the clean-ups amount to many thousands of dollars. At the A. W. Stugis mine, on Forest creek, an extensive property, the clean-up was the largest ever made there. In the Steamboat placer district, the miners report an excellent run.

A new concentrator has been put in at the Broad & Reid mine, on Forest creek. They have a large amount of base tailings on the dump, which are being run through the mill preparatory to treatment by the new machinery, which is of the latest pattern. The ledge, on which there is already extensive development, is proving very satisfactory.

The Cinnabar prospects, in the Meadows district, continue to attract much interest and some very rich ore is being shown from there. As some men of ample capital are doing development work on several claims, the merits of the cinnabar deposits there are likely to have a fair test.

The following extract from a letter just at hand, shows the confidence of school boards in the State Normal at Drain: "We want a thorough and strong teacher—lady teacher—one who has had several terms outside experience, as well as the advantage of your training department. If chanced that the president has such a teacher that he could recommend." Normal graduates are being sought and this fact is turning students towards the Normal. The Normal aids its graduates in securing positions. The TEACHER'S REVIEW CLASS will be found of great benefit to those needing review work for examinations. Address the President, Drain, Oregon. *

TRAFFIC IN DANGER.

Fighting Along the Line of thd Panama Rrilroad.

Washington, Aug. 12.—The state department today received mail advices from three different quarters in Colombia, all showing revolutionary movements in progress and rather a serious condition of affairs. Both termini of the Panama railway route were heard from, Consul General Gudger writing from Panama as to a revolutionary attack on near-by towns, and Consul Malmoros, at Colon, reporting guerrilla fighting had been going on at different points between Colon and Panama. At the same time Minister Hart wrote from the capitol of Colombea as to the arrest and imprisonment of prominent adherents to of the ex-president, Dr. Salmiente, as they were suspected of seeking to have the Nationalist organ join the Liberals, who are said to be showing increased strength and activity in a revolutionary movement.

Consul-General Gudger, writing under date of July 29, reports that on July 26 and 27 about 75 revolutionists entered the towns of Gatun, Bohlo and San Pablo, on the line of the Panama road midway between Panama and Colon; made prisoners of the Alcalde and several policemen, and retired to the mountains, taking with them 50 arms and all the provisions they could find. He says reports were current of revolutionary gatherings at other points, and an attack on Panama was feared. A general uprising seemed imminent, and the government was becoming alarmed at the situation. This is not the holding up of the train at Manachin reported by him by cable, as that happened later, and did not result in any looting.

Although these letters have taken some time to come forward, yet they give the state department about the best and the only definite information that is to hand as to the condition of affairs.

The navy department received word today of the departure of the Iowa from Puget sound for San Francisco, whence she will go to Panama if her services are required.

Rural Delivery Abuses.

Washington, July 10.—Already abuses have sprung up in the rural free delivery service, and prompt steps are being taken to prevent their spread, if not stamp them out altogether. Under a recent order of the postoffice department, carriers on rural routes were granted permission to deliver and carry packages for persons living along the routes. Complaints soon piled in that many carriers, acting under this order, have been making it a practice to deliver or sell goods along their routes, which were furnished by merchants, grocerymen or liquor dealers, who sought this means of reaching rural customers. This manner of business, on a small scale, would perhaps, have been unobjectionable, but in a number of instances the carriers became so industrious in attending to their outside deliveries that they neglected their mails, in consequence a second order has now been issued prohibiting rural carriers from engaging in any other business while performing their duties as carriers. This was merely a case of privilege abuse by the few, and in consequence denied to all. There were many routes where carriers conducted this outside business in an unobjectionable manner, but they will be affected.

The Cosmopolitin for August is, as usual, rich in fiction remarkable both for its vivid intrest and its great varity. Iriving Bacheller writes a refreshing story of the Canadian big-timber region, and Heringing's drawings catch the sprit of the scene perfectly. A. T. Quiller-Couch's ("Q.") pathetic little tale cannot fail to enlist our sympathies with the French exile who brok his parole for love. Richard Lee Oallienne tells the most charming and least knows of the quaint "Old French Rommance"—the love of honest Squire Robin for the fair Jehane. "The Temple of Fate," the late Grant Allen's clever satire on modern society, is certain not only to entertain the reader, but also to set him thinking. Francis Willing Wharton writes a pretty story of fashionable Newport—a subject with which she is thoroughly at home; while Phoebe Lyde and Egerton Castle handle strong subjects in a mysterely manner.

If national prosperity proceeds from selling more commodities to foreign countries than we buy of them, why are Egypt and Ireland not more prosperous than all other countries? The exports from these conutries have exceeded their imports many fold for centuries, yet both nations have continued to grow poorer as tim e passed. Something must be wrong.

NO MORE RESERVES.

Commissioner Hermann will Make no Further Recommendations.

In a letter to the secretary of interior the commissioner of the general land office says that he will recommend the creation of no more forest reservations until the new law governing lieu-land selections has been materially amended so as to provide that lands taken in lieu of tracts within reserves so selected shall be of the same area and approximately of the same value as the relinquished tracts. This action grew out of the proposed reserve of southwestern Oregon, in which case the commissioner declined to make any recommendations whatever.

The secretary entertains similar views on this general proposition. There is therefore little probability that any more reserve will be created until congress acts. This means that not only will this southwest Oregon reserve be held up indefinitely, but the suggested reserve in the Blue Mountains and many others in western states as well. The secretary indorsed the action of the commissioner, saying applications were pending for the creation of reserves aggregating 40,000,000 acres in August, which, under the present laws he would not undertake.—Plaindealer.

Live Steam to Save a Burning Creamery.

The frequency with which creameries are destroyed by fire makes any pratical suggestion in that direction of value.

W. S. Furnas, of Lisbon, Iowa, gives the following advice about using live steam in case of fire. Mr. Furnas says:

The writer wishes to call your attention a plan whereby it will be impossible for your creamery or cheese factory to burn, in case you have any steam at time of fire. The plan is very simple.

Arrange your factory so that you can turn steam into all the rooms, and if your factory has an atic, be sure and run one pipe up through the ceiling, so you can turn live steam in that part in case the roof catches fire. (Fix so you can turn the steam on with a valve from below).

Fully 50 per cent of all the factory fires occur between 6 a. m. and 1 p. m., while there is ample steam up to put out easily.

Most factories catch fire on the roof or near the roof in the boiler room, and some in the cupola.

In case the factory is discovered on fire either inside, outside or on the roof, the thing to do is to take it easy and cool. There is no need of any rush. Turn on the live steam into all rooms and then close up all the doors and windows and let everything stay inside. Keep all doors and windows closed and do not try to get anything out—it cannot burn—the steam will keep out all the oxygen and the fire will go out. If the fire is on the roof, fill the rooms just the same and be sure and turn the valve so as to let live steam in the upper part, the steam will reach the shingles, and the fire will not be able to make any headway. You should have a ladder so that you can get upon the roof after turning on the steam and closing up all the doors and windows. Arrange so all windows can be closed from the outside if necessary.

The live steam on the inside will fight the fire better and more successfully than all the fire companies in the county (from the inside). Of course the fire on the roof needs attention, and a few buckets of water handled carefully will soon get the fire under control, if taken in time; but it is a risky chance, and the proper thing to do is to have one or two steam pipes connections on the outside of the building, so from one or the other you can at any time attach a steam hose long enough to reach any roof on the creamery, or addition attached thereto. The end of the hose needs a nozzle on it, so that you can turn the steam on as needed. Take the end of the hose, and get upon the roof, and use the steam the same as a stream of water and you will be pleased with the way it puts the fire out.

There is no need of any more factories burning while steam is up It will be but little short of criminal negligence to let one burn whie steam is up.

You say, "that will cost a few dollars to fix my factory as above." Suppose it does. Your insurance only covers up to about two-thirds of the value of your plant, and in most cases, when you figure everything, and the loss of patrons, on account of not being able to put the new factory up short of from three to four weeks, you will find your loss double the amount paid on your insurance.

This small expense will be worth many times its cost on account of the great protection it will throw around your factory.

Do not fail to fix your factory as above, and as early as possible. If fire overtakes you before you fix your factory, be sure and remember that if the fire happens in any room that you can reach with your steam hose, you can fill the room all right. (In all cases leave the steam turned on.)

You understand in all of the above cases you are to turn the steam on and leave the valve in that condition and close up the room. Live steam will continue to fill the room, and in the event of a long fight, your butter maker and the steam will be sure to come out victorious.

The foregoing we take from Hoard's Dairyman, and while this is good advice so far as creameries are concerned, there are many other plants of various kinds with which steam is connected and where it would prove equally as effective if properly applied.
