A World Ramdly Needed.

Nearly everything in the line of practical suggestion that comes from public men, and especially members of congress, on the subject of legislation growing out of the association of the president bears solely upon the point of punishment for assassins or for those who attempt to kill the chief officers of the government. Some suggest the enlargement of the constitutional definition of treason to include attempts upon the lives of government officials of various grades, while others are of the opinion that the death penalty can be fixed upon attempts of that kind without classifying them as treason. It is, perhaps, fortunate that several months must elapse before congress can have an opportunity to act upon this matter, and in the meantime discussion of it in the press and elsewhere and the cooling of the passions aroused by the cruel and inhuman deed may furnish foundation for more effective and better considered legislation than might be rushed through in response to the demand of popular indignation and desire for revenge, for such, after all, is the spirit which is behind the demand for severe punishment for evil doers.

This vengeful spirit is now leading us in the wrong direction for practical accomplishment in dealing with anarchy. The object that should be sought is not the mere punishment of this assassin and whatever imitators he may in the future have. That might gratify our feelings, but it would not save the lives of public officials nor protect society from the assault of rabid destroyers. As time passes and discussion is widespread and varied, as it is certain to be, it will be recognized that making this offense treason would accomplish nothing, while it would open the door to the improper use of a charge of treason in other cases. The American people are not prepared to have definition of treason enlarged, nor are they yet prepared to adopt the theory that it is treason to conspire against the life of the head of the government. The president is not the state in the sense of a crowned ruler of a monarchy. The people are the sovereign in a republic. It may seem hypocritical to draw this distinction, but there should be no breaking down of the line of distinction between a popular government and a monarchial one. Let us continue in fact and in spirit to consider the president but a citizen selected for a time to execute the laws of the country as the representative only of its actual sovereignty, the people.

If we are to do anything practical we must divert ourselves of our narrow and personal view of this subject. We must cease to consider that the assassin simply assaulted our president and recognize the fact that he struck at all government and all social order. Anarchy is not national but worldwide in its scope, and it must be treated as a world problem. It is clear that the mere punishment of assassins will not be effective to restrain them from making these attempts upon the lives of rulers and statesmen. When they undertake a deed of this kind it is with the full expectation of sacrificing their lives, and no fear of punishment will deter them. We may satisfy our natural desire for vengeance by making the punishment severe, but we shall accomplish nothing for either the protection of the lives of our public men or the decrease of the spirit which endangers them. We must stop the making of anarchists. We must cut off the facilities for propagating the heresy.

There have been desperate assassins in all ages, and all have given proof that fear of death does not operate as a restraint upon them or as a protection to their victims. From the early days of Rome, when one of a band of sworn assassins was captured and illustrated the determination of his band to accomplish their purpose by holding his hand in the fire until it was burned off, down to the present day there has been discovered no way to deter the fanatical assassin by fear of the consequences of his act. There is no way to combat anarchy except to prevent its spread. Assassins there have been in all ages, but never until this generation has assassination maintained a propaganda openly under the protection of the law. Never before has it supported a literature for the education of enemies of society and the inculcation of destructive doctrines. Never before have the printing press, the telegraph, the railway and the steamship been employed to spread the doctrine of destruction of social order. Never before has this sentiment been organized and its propagation systematically undertaken. It has remained for this generation to name an organized assault upon the forces which have produced and sustained our civilization.

This work of education and organization is going on continually and is yearly increasing the number of those who are mentally perverted by it and become dangerous to society and to mankind. It is not limited by national boundaries, either in its purpose or field of operation, and the proposed remedies for it must be as world-wide as the disease. Yet like all diseases it spreads the most rapidly in those portions of the body offering it the least resistance, and just now that is the United States, owing to the foolish extent to which we carry our protection to the freedom of the press and of speech. Here is where we must apply a remedy. We must stop the propaganda, or at least so curtail and hamper it that the rapid manufacture of anarchists will cease and anarchy become again merely sporadic instead of epidemic. This treatment embraces not only the suppression of anarchistic literature and speech, but the police surveillance of all anarchists and the surrender by one government to another of all persons who seek refuge from prosecution for violation of anti-anarchy laws. We must become a part of the world on this subject and do our share of the world's work for the preservation of society and genuine liberty regulated by law.—San Jose Mercury.

SCUM OF EUROPE

Immigration Shows Increased Per Cent of Illiteracy.

Washington, Oct. 8.—The annual report of Thomas Fitch, commissioner of immigration at New York, has been received at the treasury department. The report shows that the number of aliens who arrived during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1901, was 453,495. There were also 113,956 citizens of the United States who arrived from abroad. From a comparison of the steamer immigration for the last two years it is shown that nearly 30,000 of the increase of last year over the year before was in the immigration from Southern Italy alone. The number of returning aliens resident stands at 10.6 per cent of the total immigration. In the amount of money brought per capita there appears to be an appreciable increase over last year, but the report says:

The conclusion unfortunately is unavoidable that our immigration is constantly increasing in illiteracy. Not only are we drawing more and more from the countries where illiteracy is high, but also the immigrants themselves are showing higher percentages of illiteracy. Nearly one-half of our steamer immigrants now present an illiteracy of from 40 to over 50 per cent.

Of the 388,931 steamer aliens who arrived during the year, the following are given for the principal countries:

	Males	Females
Southern Italian	55,225	24,375
Polish	25,468	12,179
Hebrew	23,343	19,894
German	17,228	12,442
Slavic	19,239	7,622
Southern Italian	18,292	4,158
Sardinian	14,290	9,981

The total number of deportations for the year, a decided decrease as compared with last year, was 3035. Following are the given causes:

Public	294
Con. each laborer	139
Inmate persons	13
Disorderly	252
Convicts	286
One-year sentence	6

Of the total of immigrants, 41,738 were alien residents returning to this country.

"As a means of protection against the coming of convicts, fugitives from justice or anarchists," says the report, "the presence of our inspectors aboard would be either futile or unnecessary. These inspectors would naturally be dependent on local authorities for information of this kind. If no efforts were made to obtain such information, their certificate as to the nonexistence of bad antecedents would be worthless. If they were to assume the right to exact evidence of an unobjectionable police record from him, why not, it is asked, make it at once a requisite for admission to the country or make the absence of such a record upon arrival prima facie evidence of criminality?"

Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "Home Gold Cure," which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the marvelous transformation of thousands of Drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men. "Wives Cure Your Husbands! Children cure your fathers! ## The Commoner

(MR. BRYAN'S PAPER)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. The columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts; and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions. The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and THE HERALD together for one year for $2. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $2.50.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. LARSON, of Bay Villa, Sunday River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by R. S. Knowlton.

would not offer a complete solution of the difficulty. It is perfectly proper to adopt any measures to prevent the coming of such people, provided the method is not likely to degenerate into a mere annoyance to legitimate travel. In our own case we need not establish any new precedent to enable us to accomplish this object. The precedent is already established in the amendment to the alien contract labor law, which the courts have construed to apply to all the excluded classes. There is no reason why the same procedure should not be extended to cover all cases of undesirable aliens, whether of the excluded class or not, and without limitation of time, proper legal safeguards being provided against abuse of this power."

The increase of the head tax to $2 and an extension of the period of jurisdiction over the immigration from two to five years is recommended.

Record Breaking Cargoes.

The S. S. Oceano cleared from Portland on September 7, for San Tau and Hankow, China, carrying the largest cargo of lumber ever set afloat on the Pacific coast and probably in the world. It consisted of 2,871,633 feet of Oregon pine lumber, 1,110,141 feet of piling, and 12,896 feet of lath and pickets, making a total of 3,994,173 feet of lumber. The Pacific Export Lumber Co., of Portland dispatched this record-breaking cargo. The vessel was loaded at the North Pacific Lumber Co.'s mill. The Pacific Export Lumber Co. have now eight vessels under charter. The S. S. Strathgyle, which cleared from Portland on August 17, carried 3,600,000 feet of lumber for Manila, loaded at the Portland Lumbering & Mfg. Co.'s mill. With the big strides that Portland is making in foreign shipments it will not take long before Portland holds the same position as a lumber cargo shipping point that she does in the rail trade, being the largest rail shipping point on the coast.—Oregon Timberman.

The Cosmopolitan for October is full of entertaining fiction. Thos. A. Janvier, for some time not seen in the magazine, reappears in the Cosmopolitan with a Mexican story of love and adventure, "Forfeit to the Gods." Bret Harte, whose "condensed novels" won him so much fame, contributes a side-splitting parody of Hall Gaine's "The Christian." Irving Schaeffer writes a short sketch of a little New York ion, "The Shadow of Happiness." E. W. Kemble tells a short humorous story of "How the Buzzards Worked a Spell," while Clara Morris's love story reveals her as an accomplished writer, capable of analyzing and sympathizing with man's deepest emotions.
