Church Directory.

Episcopal Church.—Episcopal services will be held at St. James church, Coquille city the third Sunday in each month.

M. E. Church, South.—Preaching every Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Christian Church.—Services every Lord's Day as follows: Preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

The W. C. T. U. meets every Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the Presbyterian church.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Our new arrival from Humboldt, G. M. Dimmett, made our office a pleasant call Friday.

Julius Larsen, one of the bay side's prominent farmers, paid Coquille a visit last week.

Anyone having a ranch to rent should advise the HERALD. We have several applications.

Tom Coke, of Marshfield, filled a position as a train hand on Wednesday's regular passenger train.

Mesdames Walsh & Balch keep the finest of fresh bread on hand at the restaurant on Front street.

Mrs. Walter Sinclair returned from her visit to Portland Friday, having come down by the last Alliance.

W. S. Perry is assisting R. S. Klowton, the druggist in taking stock, etc. Mr. Perry is an efficient helper on such occasions.

F. A. White has on hand a lot of excellent waterproof boot and shoe dressing of his own manufacture.

J. J. Stanley, editor of our worthy contemporary, the Bulletin, invites those wishing to interview the fighting editor of that publication, to do so by telephone.

J. C. Peirce, the logger, of Marshfield, visited the Middle Fork last week looking at some timber for other parties. This may mean some extensive logging operations in the future.

If you want anything done in the line of plastering or brick laying, call on E. A. Howey. Mortar, lime, cement, fire brick, sand, etc., constantly on hand. Satisfaction guaranteed. Prices right.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sneed took Mrs. Sophia Caldwell, mother of the former, to the bay last week for medical treatment, being afflicted with a bowel trouble, from which she can only get temporary relief.

Since vaccination seems to be a certain preventive for the prevailing disease, the doctors have been doing a rushing business in that line. The trouble will certainly have to give way soon for the want of material on which to work.

Charles Price, a recent arrival from Kansas, now of Marshfield, where his is visiting with relatives, came over Wednesday and went down to Riverton to see his cousin, E. J. Price of that place. He is thinking of locating on the river.

Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Strang, having sold their home at the north end of the Henry street bridge to our new arrival from Humboldt, J. A. Davenport, will spend the balance of the winter with their son David and family at Riverton, and in the spring will move to Portland.

W. R. Henry, son of our townspeople, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Henry, who has been here visiting with his folks for several weeks, departed for San Francisco Wednesday. He holds the position of Steward on the mail steamer Siera, flying between Frisco and Sidney, Australia. It is probable he will have time to take a run up to Portland before the Siera sails again.

"Some time ago my daughter caught a severe cold. She complained of pains in her chest and had a bad cough. I gave her Chamberlain's Cough Remedy according to directions and in two days she was well and able to go to school. I have used this remedy in my family for the past seven years and have never known it to fail," says James Prendergast, merchant, Anacapa Bay, Jamaica, West India Islands. The pains in the chest indicated an approaching attack of pneumonia, which in this instance was undoubtedly ward off by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It counteracts any tendency of a cold toward pneumonia. Sold by R. S. Klowton.

Carbondale on the Lampey.

Carbondale on the Lampey creek is an interesting place. Not because it is a big place although it may be said to take in a whole mountain. That is a mountain with a hole in it, nor is it because it is an old place; for although the place may be as old as any other mountain in the valley, it has not been known as Carbondale for more than six months. Yet it is an interesting place, very. One of the interesting things about Carbondale on the Lampey is that it contains a man that is perhaps the only man in the world that is so sharp that he actually fell down and stuck up.

If you were traveling on the Coquille river you would readily recognize Carbondale because of its being conspicuous in its lack of every thing interesting. This is perhaps what makes it interesting. The first thing you see on the river bank is a coal bunker, and back of the coal bunker, a car track and back of the car track the track of the coal tunnel, and back of that the town hall, built of rough boards put on vertically; and back of the town hall, and across the public highway which is likewise the main street, is a residence built like wise, and a store of like construction, which also contains "living rooms," and back of all this is the steep north side of Carbondale mountain. A nice shady place, especially in winter, when the sun never raises, and consequently does not have to set. But the sons of Carbondale raise and like wise they sometimes "set." At least that is what I have been told.

One day the sharp young man got very lonely working all alone in the coal mine so he raised himself from his stooping position and stretched himself. Then he decided to go outside and see if he could see a boat. Upon coming out, he looked around to find the hardest log near at hand, and having found it, he immediately "set."

Now you will wonder why he chose a hard log to set upon when he might have chosen one of many soft ones.

The reason is obvious all the soft logs were badly decayed on the outside or thickly coated with moss, and as it was winter, which is the rainy season, the moss and the decayed wood were thoroughly saturated with water. Hence the sharp young man chose the hard log. Having sat down, and seeing no boat coming, he still felt lonely and decided to pick his teeth for amusement. So he took out his jack knife cut a splinter from the log, and made a nice sharp tooth pick, which he sent wandering sim- plesly about in his mouth for some time fancying it might find some stray bite of meat which he had not ate. But suddenly remembering that he had breakfast on mush, he threw away his toothpick in disgust and then decided to climb up the mountain, and get some sunshine, and see what his neighbor across the river a half mile away on the opposite mountain foot was doing. Having reached the top of the mountain with considerable exertion he saw his friend at work slashing on his ranch. But wishing to see better he climbed up an old stump and was just settling for a good sunning and a long look, when he happened to look back. Then he gave a terrific shriek, his hair raised his hat off his head, and he gave one mighty leap down the mountain side, and alighted on a smooth log and began to slide. The log had been a "snag" before it was cut; that is a tree with the top, consisting of limbs, broke off. Consequently it had no limbs; was about 6 feet through and 150 feet long. And when the sharp young man struck the log, he began to slide rapidly down it, feet first. But a small protuberance caught his trousers and swung him around, so that he completed the journey head foremost and when he came to the end of the log which was some eight feet from the ground, he shot straight out into the air in a very independent way and at first it seemed as though he had acquired the power of traveling through space at will.

But just as it seemed his powers of flying were most phenomenal and his success beyond parallel he brought up suddenly in the middle of a nice soft mud puddle and stuck up. Yes sir he actually came down head first, and stuck up. Oh! It was interesting to see his legs cutting the air in a most energetic way, as though they thought they were running right away from the steering power, which they regarded useless, and all the time shaking the contents out of his trousers pockets as though to lighten their burden. First there came the pocket knife that had made the useless tooth picks. Then there was his best girls picture which fell from an envelope, before the envelope dropped, and hit the mud and kepplunk face down. Then there was a bounteous omen of fine cut tobacco, a pack of cards, a lovely pipe, which, as the bowl was heavier than the mouth piece, came down bowl first, having the amber mouth piece sticking up in a most inviting manner. Then there was a housewife and a fishing line, and some sea sea, and a small bottle of cologne, and some cloves, and a cork screw and some pretty tobacco cards, and a few trifles, besides small box of mustache blackening and a lovely pocket mirror, and a fresh package of bombs.

Now it is one of the rules of etiquette in Carbondale, to always yell when you hear any one else yell. So when the sharp young man gave his first yell at the top of the mountain, everyone else joined in the chorus. But when he kept on yelling all down the mountain side, the rest of Carbondale got out of breath and then started on the run to have a look at the yeller and find out what had excited him into outdoing all other yellers, and when they came upon the scene one man exclaimed "by the hokey the sharp cuss has cut hisself in two" for he actually thought the half of man in sight was in no way connected with any other half. But another man cried "no by the jumped-up-jumper jangle!" He's fell down and stuck up!" "Yes" says the rest, "why the sawed-off-set-came silly!" He has sure certain. He's fell down and stuck up." And then they turned too, and pulled him out. And when he had removed the rich alluvial soil from his mouth, he informed them that there was a great ferocious bear on the top of the mountain that had attacked him and would have devoured him had he not been sharp enough to mount the log and slide down the mountain. And then an old man with long white hair and beard who had been a soldier in the rebellion, said he would take his rifle and go up and shoot it. And when he had reached the top of the mountain he found the calaverous carcass of a gigantic old she bear that had died of starvation some time before.

A Good Recommendation.

"I have noticed that the sale on Chamberlain's Stomach & Liver Tablets is almost invariably to those who have once used them," says Mr. J. H. Weber, a prominent druggist of Cascade, Iowa. What better recommendation could any medicine have than for people to call for it when again in need of such a remedy? Try them when you feel dull after eating, when you have a bad taste in your mouth, feel bilious, have no appetite or when troubled with constipation, and you are certain to be delighted with the prompt relief which they afford. For sale by R. S. Klowton.
