MR. KAN DISCOURSES

Seriously Upon Several Subjects.

"Hello, Mr. Scribble!" and along with the voice the door swung suddenly open and a breath of fresh air permeated our sanctum. "Hello, Mr. Scribble; how are you today?"

"As right as the sun, thank you; but who—Oh, Mr. Kan, 'Shake.' We're glad to see you—awfully, where you best for a month of Sunday? Take a chair and tell us about it."

"Been? Oh, rampaging round seeing what I could observe, and among other places took in Portland to see how they are getting on with the Lewis and Clark Exposition for three years hence, and find out who the politicians are going to have for U. S. Senator (its the people be damned—you know) and all and singular take a look at some of G. G. Lange, fire apparatus, of which our city is so much in need. You see I was a self-constituted all round committee of the whole, getting myself into position to know something, when the occasion arrived.

"Ah, been to Portland, eh? and saw my old friend, Long? He's all right. Do you know why Long is the pleasantest, most even-tempered and most universally well liked merchant in Portland?"

"No. Have you any doubts? I wish you'd talk United States."

"Well, I'll tell you, if you'll forget to tell anybody else. It's because he is never 'short.'"

"Oh! Kneecap me down with a handful of air. You are too cute, now, Scribble, and likely to die young, but you ought to look into Mr. Long's store. It's at 170, Second street, Portland, and is well filled with just such stuff as our city dabs will be buying just after we have had a big fire and don't need fire apparatus half as bad as we do now. But I didn't come in to talk to you very long."

"Don't worry, Mr. Kan. We have all the time there is, and unlike many other people, you never talk without saying something. What's uppermost in your brainpan any way?"

"State officers' salaries. I see you had something to say on this subject a few weeks ago, and I just wanted to put you on the back and say 'wade in.' The Capital Journal, of Salem, is doing a giant's work for this reform, and is rightfully receiving the backing of the press generally all over Oregon. I saw your article while I was away from home, and it made me glad to note the leading organ of Coquille in line at the right place."

"The Herald don't often miss that mark."

"Yet made one bad break when you credited the state Treasurer with $1800 salary, when the constitution only gives him $800."

"We corrected that the next week. You may not have seen it, but the point is, how well the state treasurer manages to swell that $800 a year to $212 as tabulated by the Capital Journal."

"Yes, it's as easy as rolling off half a dozen logs, and several more of our public servants are in the same boat. In the first place the Constitution, as shown by your article, does not fix the salaries of but four state officials, to-wit:

Governor..... $1500
Secretary of State..... 1500
State Treasurer..... 800
Supreme Court Judge each 2000
and that constitution absolutely and entirely forbids any of them receiving any fee or perquisite for the discharge of any of the duties of their offices. This was clearly shown by your constitutional quotation of section one, article thirteen. The Judges of the Supreme Court do not appear to have found any side channels to augment their salaries, while the three leaders stand as follows:

Governor..... $6,950
Secretary of State..... 22,358
State Treasurer..... 8,212
as has been shown before, but I want to go on and show how their constitutional salaries are raised to these figures, and yet be all in accordance with law, in accordance with law, in such cases made and provided, making the whole pernicious practice a system of legalized robbery. Now, the Governor's constitutional salary of $1500 is increased to $6958 by additional salaries on a dozen or fifteen different Boards, of which he is a member, but we contend the system is wrong. Instead of a dozen or fifteen salaries of varying grades, he should have one salary for being Governor, and being Governor make him legally a member of as many boards as the business of the State required. I would not make his salary less than $5000 a year, but whatever it was, that should end it, and if a man did not want the office on those terms, perhaps some competent chap might be found who would be willing to sacrifice himself for the good of the state. The same is true of the Secretary of State, who, being a member of five different Boards swells his salary to..... $5,850.00

Received for fees net total..... 10,846.00
Total salaries and fees 13,368.00
Appropriation for clerk hire..... 8,983.55
..... 22,352.01

It is fair to suppose the annual appropriation for clerk hire is consumed for that purpose, yet we have, as above shown, this officer to receive for salaries and fees, the sum of $13,368.46, when the constitution fixes his salary at $1500, and says he shall not receive a fee on perquisite during his term of office. Your article was along this line, but I think it our duty to make this thing as plain as we can, even at the risk of a little repetition."

"That's all right Mr. Kan, you can't unjunt my nose by any such remarks as that."
"And thus we have the spectacle of a state officer getting away with more than eight times his constitutional salary, and presumably, all under the forms of law. More legalized robbery. Oregon never had or ever will have a secretary of state whose services are worth any such sum. Plenty of good men can be secured for a good deal less money. The sum shown in the meal regarding the office of State Treasurer whose office makes him a member of two 'Boards' and gives a $600 salary therefore, so that his account stands up like this:
Constitutional salary..... $ 800.00
Salary on two Boards..... 600.00
Annual fees pocketed..... 3911.87
Total salaries and fees... $5311.87
Annual appropriation for clerk hire..... 2900.13
Total, as shown above... $ 8212.00

Thus we see the state treasurer manages to gobble up in a presumably legal way $4511.87 in fees and perquisites, which the constitution expressly prohibits and forbids, which the same is but another section of legalized robbery. It is a wonder the people have allowed this to go on so long, and is only to be accounted for by the fact that they did not understand the true inwardness of the matter. They did not understand the "Whichever of the why," as well as they are liable to hear after if the press of the state will only keep on stirring up the animals."

It is an all round case of too much grabbing, in which every taxpayer has an interest, Mr. Kan, and therefore we are not surprised to find you so enthusiastically in earnest."
"Yes—Well—thank you. That's what I am, but I must be going. I've not got done with this subject yet. Good day; and our wide-awake friend was off before we knew it, but he's not lost, for wherever he may be, he is talking to the people about this salary business. Some of them are marvelously indifferent about it. We bronched the subject to a friend the other day and he gave us a jar by remarking: "Same old story always heard just before election, but all the same, this is no party question, and as its "line upon line and precept upon precept," in any fight for truth and right which wins in the long run, so here it is the duty of the press to keep this thing going everlastingly before the people until it is unsettled and then settled as it ought to be."

"We do not know—
Where falls the seed we have tried to sow.
With great care,
But a small know
The meaning of each waiting word below,
Some time, some where."

Cost of Our Navy

Washington, Feb. 11.—The new Navy has cost the United States $99,803,928 for construction $9,343,233 for repairs on completed vessels. These figures were supplied in a statement forwarded to the Senate by the Secretary of the Navy in response to a resolution adopted by the Senate in February, 1901. The facts are all given in tabular form explanatory text.

In addition to the expenditures made on vessels now about there there are several ships in course of construction. These include the Kentucky and the Kearsarge, on each of which an expenditure of $4,000,000 has been authorized, and the Illinois, Indiana and Alabama, on each of which an expenditure of $3,350,000 is authorized. There are also several smaller vessels in course of construction which will bring the total up to a considerable extent when the vessels are completed.

The statement covers the period from 1883 on it begins with the building of the Chicago, Atlanta Boston. Of the completed vessels the Oregon cost the greatest amount—$6,575,032. The Massachusetts is second in point of cost—$6,074,175. The cost of the Maine was $4, 677,788.

Count Tolstoi Dying

St. Petersburg, Feb. 12.—Count Tolstoi has suffered a relapse, and is dying. His illness is pneumonia.

A number of big fires in cities has made this a hard winter on the fire insurance companies, some of which may have to substitute assessments for dividends this year.

Carbondale on the Lamps.

We are very sorry to appear before the public so soon again, and would not do so only for a terrible catastrophe that occurred in our delightful little city a short time ago. You see, the young men of our town are enterprising and heroic, and when the report appeared in the paper of the man falling down and sticking up, each and every one claimed to be the hero. I am very modest and retiring, so one day when I heard a powerful young man who had succeeded in quieting all other claimants, state that it was he; he was the sharpest man in Carbondale, it grieved me much to ounce him a prevaricator, and assure the people that I, and I alone was the hero of that remarkable occurrence. But you can imagine my horror when the false claimant challenged me to fight a duel. I dared not refuse lest my motive might be misunderstood, so, told him I would leave it to the citizens to decide if the fair record of our town should be smirched by such a lawless act. So the citizen met in the town hall to debate on the subject. One bright young man shed considerable light on the subject. One man said, "my gracious," and one said, "It don't had other been," and one said it was "terrible," and one "dowed it would not do at all," and one said "by gollies," though what that means I do not know, but think it an extraction from a dead language, and if it is not dead I am quite sure it ought to be. Then a professor-looking man opened his discourse with great dignity and said, "a awl, a awl." Then a young man with a weenty teenty black mustache put his cigarette in the other side of his mouth, turned both eyes toward the end of his nose and cheered till it echoed. Then a gentleman whose begin countenance and ample form made one think of a retired alderman got up and said, "bully, bully!" That's the way they do in Europe. O y s, that's a fact you, know. That settled it and my enemy came up to me and haughtily demanded to know what weapons I would choose and I said "a t s." But what I ment to say was "rats," as I have heard that "back east," being a very forceful way of expressing scorn and contempt. The weather had been growing rapidly cooler the last half hour and my teeth were chattering each other around so fast they tripped up the "r" and substituted a "c."

"Very well," said my enemy, "and where shall the meeting be."
Recovering myself I replied with dignity, I shall stand a rod to the right of here and you a rod to the left. This I ought to explain, would place the town hall between us. The time of meeting was set for the following day, and the little boys who have to play in the marshes were dispatched for the required weapons. The meeting occurred amid a large crowd of people and the fight was to be to the finish. The first few rounds I pass over without comment. Then I swung a fine white coat with green eyes, and my opponent ditto with blue, and they lodged on the comb of the hall and stopped to sing a duet. Then I threw a large gray cat that was recently imported from up up the river in a megal bag, who took my opponent a swat in the face and left his mark. Then a huge black cat boomed up over the half roof, and I swung a fine white coat with green eyes, and my opponent ditto with blue, and they lodged on the comb of the hall and stopped to sing a duet.
