What Shall We Do About It.

The following which we take from the Evening Telegram reminds us of the situation of Coos county and the condition of affairs which existed between it and the balance of the state ever since this county was occupied by the whites until recently. The maintenance of a steamer line to Coos bay has, to some extent, releived the situation, but the service is not yet what it should be. One steamer which goes as far south her rounds altogether too infretoo long for one to be obliged to should be at least one steamer run-Coos bay, and another between between Portland and the Coquille, calling in at Coos bay if needs be. The Telegram gives this letter with
