Consolidation of Schools.
 Superintendent of Public Instruction Ackerman says he would prefer but one State Normal School and that the state pay students' transportation to and from this school, to the four Normal Schools which the state maintains. He is right; one first-class school, one of as high grade as any in the country, would be preferable to four inferior schools, and it would be cheaper to pay the students' fares, as the Superintendent suggests, than to maintain five extra schools. But there is no prospect that such a change will be made. It has been easy for the state to acquire Normal Schools under the logging process of legislation, but to get rid of any of them will be difficult, if not impossible.
 Whether the proposed consolidation of country schools, or of such country schools as are within a few miles of a town school with the latter, is a good policy, and how far it can be successfully carried out, are questions upon which those interested will not agree. But it would seem safe to rely to a great extent on the judgement of Superintendent Ackerman and other experienced teachers.—Telegraph.

To Study Alaska Salmon.
 Washington, March 24.—By decision of the President, a commission of fishery experts, including President Jordan, of Leland Stanford University; Dr. Evermann, of the Fish Commission, and several other scientists, will spend the summer studying Alaska salmon, with a view to devising a practical means of perpetuating the salmon supply, and of promulgating adequate regulations governing fishing and the establishment of hatcheries. Especial attention will be paid to the question of propagation, as many of the hatcheries heretofore established have been successful, and efforts will also be made to find out why private attempts at propagation have failed. The operations of the present fishery laws will be gone into with a view to recommending modifications.

The Irish Land-Reform Bill.
 The bill to settle the centuries-old conflict between Irish landlords and tenants, that passed its first reading in the House of Commons yesterday, is one of the most important and notable pieces of progressive legislation ever devised. It is the result of long, diligent, earnest, enlightened, conscientious study of the situation by British statesmen, and while not perfect, is in its main details as nearly so as possible. Under its provisions Irish tenants, instead of paying rent, will make annual payments on the lands they occupy, so that the next generation of Irish tillers of the soil will be their own landlords—will own their homes. To make up the difference between the aggregate price asked by non-resident landlords and that offered or considered right by Irish tenants, the British government will supply a cash fund of $60,000,000. This big expenditure is justified by the British Secretary for Ireland in the statement that, under present conditions "the landlords of Ireland were being ruined financially, the tenants were being ruined morally, and the taxpayers of England were paying $700,000 per annum to the land commission and $7,000,000 to the Irish police, which largely was needed to deal with the illegalities arising from the land question." Redmond, the Irish leader, while not positively committing himself yet, made no opposition to the bill; neither did Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader. So the outlook is favorable for a practical solution of this Irish land question, which for many generations has been a prolific source of ill-will, hatred, strife, and deadly conflicts. It is gratifying to the whole civilized world thus pursuing in Ireland as in South Africa, a broad, liberal policy, and also to see Ireland's already improved prospects thus brightening.—Evening Telegram.

Crisis in Spain.
 Madrid, March 26.—Minister of Finance Villaverde has resigned, thus precipitating the long expected Cabinet crisis. He gives as his reasons for resigning that he could not agree with the large expenditures demanded by the other portfolios. Villaverde has taken the position that, while Spain is impoverished, she should not waste the public funds. In this he is strongly supported by the populace, although the Court is against him.

General William Thomas Clark.
 of Washington, D. C., was knocked down by a cab while attempting to cross State street, Chicago, Monday night, and was severely injured. He is 73 years old, and has sustained, it is said, two fractures of the skull and internal injuries. General Clark has the distinction of being the only surviving Adjutant and Chief of Staff of Grant's Army of the Tennessee. He served two terms in Congress from Texas.

Shooting Affair at Gold Beach.
 On Friday night March 20, a party of five or six young men were whiling away the hours in a vacant house in Gold Beach. While engaged in a game of poker, Hederick Wilson, and Aaron Foster—better known as "Joe Joe"—got into a dispute over the game and a fight ensued in which Foster was mortally wounded. As near as we have been able to learn, the facts are about as follows: The two men jumped up from the table and clinched each other. The others present left the room and as they did so one of them called to Foster to "look out" for Wilson was armed. Foster was unarmed. There was no witness to what followed. The fight occurred shortly after midnight, and about two o'clock the Sheriff, who lives some distance away, was awakened by Wilson who said that he had shot "Joe Joe" and wanted to give himself up. After taking Wilson into custody, the Sheriff went to the scene of the shooting and found Foster unconscious. Everything possible was done for the wounded man and a doctor telephoned for. Foster soon regained consciousness and was able to give an account of the affair, which statement will be published in due time. Upon examination by the doctor it was found that Foster had been shot twice with a 38 caliber revolver. The first shot passed through one leg under the knee joint and between the bone and cords, the other bullet entered the left side, barely missing the last rib, ranged downward and came out on the same side between the spinal column and the hip joint. At last accounts the wounded man was very weak, and suffering greatly with but slight chances of recovery. At the time of the shooting Wilson was slightly under the influence of liquor. Wilson had a hearing Saturday and was bound over to appear before the grand jury next August.—Port Orford Tribune.

City Under Water—Many Lives Lost.
 New Orleans, March 28.—Greenville, Miss., is inundated. The break in the levee occurred this morning and the flood waters of the Mississippi poured in an overwhelming, relentless mass on the city.
 Only six blocks are above the water.
 At least 10 lives are known to have been lost and it is thought the list will be greatly swollen by later information. In one case a house containing a woman and five children was swept away by the flood and the entire family was drowned. This is but one instance of several that have been reported.

Relief boats with men and supplies are being rushed to the stricken districts by the people of this city.
 New Orleans, March 28.—Further advices from Greenville, state that the situation is awful beyond description.
 The larger part of the city is under water and the death list is still growing. The crevasses are enlarging and the volume of water pouring over the country is greater than it was this morning.
 The property loss will be immense.
 The death list has just been increased by the reported drowning of four more persons who were swept from the tops of their houses in Greenville.
 One hundred more convicts have been sent to the stricken city to assist in the work of rescue. Advices from there state that unless more boats are sent at once the loss of life will be appalling.

Greenville, Miss., March 28.—Only six blocks of the city are above the flood. Hundreds of negroes have been rescued from the tops of houses and cabins.
 News comes this morning that another break is threatened in the levee thirty miles north of here.
 The Mayor of the city issued a call for volunteers and five hundred men responded.
 Should this break occur the worst will have happened. The city would receive the full force of the deluge and the loss of life would be terrible.
 The town is in darkness as the electric light plants and gas works are submerged.
 The Boston police have arrested Walter B. McBride, of New York, and John Reiley, alias John Adams, also of New York, whom they charge with attempting to sell stock far in advance of its value, with intent to defraud. The stock of which Reiley claims 30,000 shares was the St. Marie Copper Mining Co., of Wyoming.
