SEASON

Let's Wade Right into the Subject

The 1903 season will be the greatest bicycle season ever known. The finest equipped and most up-to-date wheels that Coquille riders ever laid their eyes on will be kept in stock at right prices, and if you want one say so.

We want your trade, and we are entitled to it, because we have good goods, right prices, and can serve you well. You don't expect any more, but you want that much, don't you?

To be brief, try us and our goods, and our way of treating you, and if you like us try us again. We want your business. Enough said.

President's Message.

"To the Senate and House of Representatives:
"I convened congress that it may consider legislation necessary to put into operation the commercial treaty with Cuba, which was ratified by the senate at the last session and subsequently by the Cuban government. I deem such legislation is demanded not only by our interest, but by our honor. We cannot with propriety abandon a course upon which we have so wisely embarked. When the acceptance of the amendment was required from Cuba by the action of the United States this government thereby definitely committed itself to the policy of treating Cuba as occupying a unique position as regards this country, and it was provided that when the island became a free and independent republic it should stand in such close relation with us as in certain respects to come within our system of international policy, and it necessarily followed she must also, to a certain degree, become included within lines of our economic policy. "Situated as Cuba is, it would not be possible for this country to permit strategic abuse of the island by a foreign military power. It is for this reason that certain limitations have been pressed upon her financial policy, and stations have been conceded by her to the United States, negotiations as to the details of these naval stations being now on the eve of completion. They are so situated as to prevent any idea that there is in intention to ever use them against Cuba, or otherwise than for the protection of Cuba from the assaults of foreign rovers and for the better safeguarding of American interests in water south of us. These interests have been largely increased by consequences of war with Spain and will be further increased by the building of the isthmian canal. The granting to us by Cuba of the naval stations alluded to, is of utmost importance, and, from a military standpoint, is proof of Cuba's good faith. Cuba has made great progress since her independence, and already stands high among her sister republics of the new world. Loyal observing her obligations to us, she is entitled to like treatment by us.

"The treaty submitted to you for approval secures to the United States economic advantages as great as those given Cuba. No American interest is sacrificed. By the treaty the large Cuban is secured to our producers. This market, which lies at our doors, is large and is capable of great expansion, and is especially important to the development of our export trade. It would be indeed short sighted for us to refuse to take advantage of such opportunity, and thus force Cuba into making arrangements with other countries to our disadvantage. The reciprocity treaty stands by itself. It is demanded on consideration of a broad national policy, as well as by our economic interests. It will do harm to no industry. It will benefit many industries. It is in the interest of our people as a whole, born because of its importance from a broad standpoint of international policy and because, as economically intimated, it concerns us to develop and secure the rich Cuban market for our farmers, artisans, merchants and manufacturers.

Finally, it is desirable as a guaranty of the good faith of this nation toward her young sister republic to the south, whose welfare must ever be closely bound with ours. We gave her liberty. We knit to her the memories of the blood and courage of our soldiers, who fought for her in war. By the memories of the wisdom and integrity of our administrators who served her in peace, and who started her so well on the difficult path of self-government, we must help her onward; upward; and by helping her we help ourselves.

"The foregoing considerations caused negotiations for this treaty with Cuba and its ratification by the senate. They now, with equal force appeal for the support of legislation by congress, which, by the treaty, is necessary to render it operative. Failure to enact such legislation would come perilously near a repudiation of the pledge in faith of this nation. I transmit herewith the treaty as amended by the senate and ratified by the Cuban government.

(Signed) THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

In the House of Sinners.

An excerpt from the New York American:
New York City presents today one of the strangest transformations imaginable. It is the cleansing, rinsing and washing out morally of one of the most famous and infamous resorts of wickedness in the whole world.

The four corners of the earth were ransacked for sinners to make this spot enticing and alluring. It was "The House of All Nations"—upholstered in gorgeous pinks and dainty blues and white and gold; carpeted with specially woven patterns so that your feet sank into them as in a fleece of softest wool; walls paneled in oil and water color friezes of nymphs and satyrs painted by clever artists to allure the eye; a Turkish room, an Egyptian room, a French room, a Chinese room, in fact, rooms of "all nations," and from these the establishment took its name and fame. But now—at this moment, while the old furnishings and settings and background of former gayeties are still all there, the atmosphere has changed. Almost by a miracle the Franciscan Sisters have suddenly become the new tenants. The old haunt of wickedness is the home of a most worthy charity.

Way down in the cellar are the Venuses, the Bacchantes and the Sirens which used to stand on alabaster pedestals among the perfumed palms; on these same pedestals now stand statues of the saints. A burning brazier of incense has driven out the old odors of perfumes.

Among the gaudy furnishings of the days of wine and revelry are the solemn pictures of martyrs and Scriptural mottoes. To partly hide the gray old frieze of dancing-women tip-toeing on champagne bottles the Sisters have hung paintings and lithographs of their most famous saints. The saint whom Christ pardoned is notable amidst it all.

Its owner is "Al" Adams, the degraded "policy king," now in Sing Sing. In remorse for the great evil done in the house and in explanation of his manifold sins, he has leased it for five years at a low price to the Franciscan Sisters Tertiary. As the Five Points once the crime center of the biggest metropolis in America, has been made over into a children's play-ground, through the work of the Five Points Mission, so has the House of All Nations been made over into the Private Catholic Home for Working Girls at 117 and 119 West Thirty-second street.

The Franciscan Sisters Tertiary undertook and finished this work. They have cleaned the stables. Where red lights once blazed out their invitation to all men, on a narrow strip of glazed glass above the door gilt letters spell this name:
"The House of the Transfiguration."

The Franciscan Sisters Tertiary have given it this title.

On the Right Track.

A San Francisco dispatch dated Nov. 10, says that the local secret service department received instructions from Washington, D. C., to investigate the brutal attack made upon Mrs. Ames, of Marshfield, Oregon, about ten days ago, while en route from this city to Marshfield on the steamer Alliance, Howard Laws, the nightwatchman on the Alliance, was arrested today and is detained as a witness. He has stated the assailant of Mrs. Ames was Thos. Davis, a waiter who left the steamer several days ago at Eureka.—Mail.

A Sure Thing.
It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. R. C. B. VanMeters of Shepherdsburg, W. Va., says "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by R. S. Knowlton, Druggist. To Stop Timberland Frauds.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Senator Hansbrough introduced a bill in the senate, which by implication, repeals the timber and stone act, under which land is now acquired at $3.50 an acre, regardless of its real value. The measure is intended to cure defects in existing laws, stop speculation in public timber lands and put an end to the frauds which recently have grown into a national scandal. It was referred to the committee on public lands, of which the author is chairman.

The Secretary of the Interior is authorized, under the new bill, to make examinations and estimates relative to quantity and value of the timber and stone on the public lands, and sell the right to dispose of the same in such quantities, as may seem advisable, to the highest bidder. This plan is now pursued in the sale of timber on Indian lands in Minnesota. The title to the land remains in the government and the Secretary of the Interior may fix the limit of time in which the purchaser of the right shall remove the timber or stone. The right to cut the timber and make it a merchantable quantity is made inalienable.

If Senator Hansbrough's measure becomes a law, all the timber land on the public domain will be withdrawn from entry, and the Government will enter upon the policy of disposing of its timber at its market value. One provision in the bill prohibits the entry of these lands under the homestead or old land laws. It is argued by Senator Hansbrough that in leaving the fee to the land in the Government, reforestation will take place and the sale of timber will be a source of large revenue.

The second section of the bill amends the lieu land section so as to provide when a settler whose entry falls within a forrest reserve, selects another piece of land in lieu of his original entry, it must be more valuable for agricultural purposes than for timber or stone. Under the existing laws, many of the entrymen who find themselves within a forest reserve cut and dispose of the timber on the land, and later go outside of the reserve and file a homestead on other timber land.

The third section of the bill amends the act of March 11, 1901, and requires all deeds of commuted homestead and desert land entries to be made before registers and receivers in local land offices. This proposed amendment to existing law is recommended by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, who, in his last report, says: "The privileges gained by the act have been greatly abused, particularly by the United States Commissioners, who have often been parties to wholesale frauds in connection with proofs made before them."

The Thrice-a-Week New York World.

The Thrice-a-Week World long ago established itself in public favor, and it is now recognized as the strongest publication of its kind in the United States. Advertisers and publishers seeking clubbing combinations—and they know best—universally testify to this. It is widely circulated in every State and Territory of the Union, and even in remote South Africa and on the gold fields in the deserts of Australia. These are the things that tell.

Next year we have the Presidential campaign, in which all Americans are deeply interested. Already the issues are being discussed and the two great parties are preparing for the first moves. You will not want to miss any details, and if you subscribe now your year's subscription will cover the campaign from beginning to end.

The Thrice-a-Week World is absolutely fair in its political news, Partisan bias is never allowed to affect its news columns, and Democrat and Republican alike can obtain in its pages truthful accounts of all the great political contests.

In addition to all the news, the Thrice-a-Week World furnishes the best serial fiction, elaborate market reports and other features of interest.

The Thrice-a-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and the HERALD together one year for $2.15.

The regular subscription price of the papers is $2.50.
