Live Stock Association Convention.

To THE MEMBERS OF THE NATIONAL LIVE STOCK ASSOCIATION AND ALL OTHERS INTERESTED IN THE LIVE STOCK INDUSTRY:

Complying with the orders of the Executive Committee, we have the honor to advise you that the Seventh Annual Convention of the National Live Stock Association will convene in the Marquam Grand theatre, January 12, 1904, and continue through as many sessions as the business may require.

Delegates will be admitted according to the provisions of the Constitution, as follows:

Each state, territory, county or local range association of cattle, sheep, horse or swine-breeders may appoint one delegate for every 10,000 head of stock, or part thereof, represented by the members of such organization.

The governors of each state and territory may appoint three delegates-at-large.

Each feeders' and breeders' association may appoint one delegate-at-large and one for every twenty-five members or part thereof.

In counties where there is no regular live stock organization, the county commissioners may appoint one delegate from among the stockmen of said county.

Each state or territorial livestock sanitary board may appoint three delegates.

Each state board of agriculture or agricultural college may appoint one delegate.

Each livestock commission merchants' exchange may appoint one delegate-at-large and one for each twenty-five members thereof.

Each stockyards company may appoint one delegate.

Each railway and transportation company may appoint one delegate.

Each chamber of commerce may appoint one delegate for every 100 members.

Each dairy-men's association may appoint one delegate.

An alternate may be appointed for every delegate.

Any bona fide stockman engaged in breeding, feeding trading or handling live stock may become a member of this association by the payment of an initiation fee of $10 and an annual due of $10.

Delegates may be appointed from Canada and the Republic of Mexico, but in all cases, except those from state and county, the requirements regarding membership must be complied with.

All associations, governors and county commissioners are requested to send the names and postoffice addresses of their delegates to the Secretary as soon as named, in order that the roll may be promptly and properly arranged.

RAILWAY RATES.

For this occasion the railroads have made the following unusually low rates from points west of Chicago:

New Orleans, $70.30; Memphis, $62.75; Cairo, $62.15; Houston, Texas, $60.75; Mineola, Texas, $57.35; St. Louis, $57.50; Chicago, $61.50; Missouri river points, including St. Paul, $50.00; Denver and common points, including Cheyenne and El Paso, Texas, $45.00; from all other points in this territory, one lowest first-class fare for the round trip.

For territory south of the Ohio and Potomac and east of the Mississippi rivers a rate of one and one-third fare for the round trip has been made. From all points east of St. Louis and Chicago to Buffalo and north of the Ohio river, eighty per cent of double the one-way first-class fare for the round trip will be in force. Selling dates for these tickets are January 6, 7, 8 and 9, with final return limit January 31, 1904. A reduced rate of $13.50 from Portland to San Francisco has been made, so that anyone desiring to stop off at all points of interest may do so.

Stop-over permits will be granted on the return trip on application to the joint agency in Portland.

BUSINESS OF THE CONVENTION.

Existing conditions throughout the country make it absolutely necessary that decisive action upon several subjects shall be taken at this meeting for the protection of the industry.

ORGANIZATION.

For mutual protection it has become the policy of all industrial organizations. It must be conceded that in a national organization the live stock industry of the nation can accomplish more than by individual efforts. The history of this organization will demonstrate this fact. The work is in your hands, and upon your determination and successful efforts, to a great extent, depends the future of the live stock industry. Unless the association receives this support, it will be impossible for it to attain the measure of success desired. The cost of maintaining a national organization is insignificant, the assessments being but one-twentieth of one cent per head. If you or your local association are not members of the national association you are earnestly requested to make application immediately, in order that you may be represented at the coming meeting. Blanks for this purpose and all information may be had by addressing the secretary at Portland, Oregon.

We desire to impress upon you the supreme importance of delegates being appointed under this call who will attend this meeting and give the matters under discussion their serious consideration.

The citizens of Portland have raised a generous sum and are arranging to entertain all delegates in a handsome manner.

Immediately on arriving at Portland you should register with the Secretary at headquarters, Portland Hotel, or the theatre, when you will be provided with badges admitting you to Convention Hall, and coupon tickets for all entertainments given by the citizens.

Be sure and ask for rates to the National Live Stock Convention, January 11-15, 1904. If your local agent cannot give you full information as to dates of sale, etc., write the Secretary of the Association.

JOHN W. SPRINGER, President.
 CHAS. F. MARTIN, Secretary.

Satisfaction Guaranteed

"Satisfaction guaranteed." That is a promise often made—sometimes in good faith, sometimes as a blind—yet how many of us are ever really satisfied with what we have, with what we can earn or with what is given us?

It is not that we are particularly hard to please, for we are ungrateful; it is not that we are borrow trouble, that we worry or that we lack in cheerfulness. We may possess all these favorable attributes, and we do possess them, but over and above them we are human beings, and no living, moving, breathing, reasoning thing can long remain content. We strive for a desire beyond what we have accomplished, and when we have accomplished that for which we labored we look on and up and see other things and have other wants and other needs and other necessities. And thus it is throughout all time.

Yet, without, we are never to taste its full realization. "Satisfaction guaranteed" ever proves an ignis fatuus. That supreme condition which it promises never seems to be beyond the sphere of our evolution. We grope, we catch a glimpse, we follow, we grasp; and then we begin again at the groping and run the gamut as before.

Start at the beginning. The child's first desire is for the light. Doubtless upon the extremely youthful mind it casts a splendor that fills the infant thought, the budding intellect, to exclusion of all else. On it the chaotic brain first centralizes, and, speaking in comparison with after realities and after knowledge, when education has developed the mind, and the desires of the world, the flesh and the powers of darkness have made it sordid—the light represents gold, fine raiment, beauty, virtue, fame, rank, property and all things which are counted as being worth while by those who are supposed to know. But as the child grows older it learns of these other things, and because it is human it turns from the light, which now it could have, and wanders into strange and danger-fraught byways, following the will-o'-the-wisp which seems to "guarantee satisfaction."

Take the man in middle life. He may have acquired fortune, position, honor and respect; he may be the father of a family, the founder of a race—but will he be satisfied? Ask him, he will tell you of some scheme he has for doing more, for adding to his fortune, for making fame more famous, for paving the pathway of those who follow. He does not live in the present, he is not content in the enjoyment of that which he has. He is not lacking in appreciation, but the sign, "satisfaction guaranteed," is off yonder on some other mountain, and he is ever toiling toward its summit, that he may reach a goal that recedes in proportionate ratio to the speed of his approach.

Take the man who has grown old, give him bodily comfort, give him loved ones, give him everything that mortal could wish for, and yet will he be free from the influence of that which promises satisfaction? Before him there may be no future. Behind him there is a past. Delving backward into the memories of the long ago, he will clothe them anew in form if not in fact and choose wherein satisfaction might have been achieved.

Take it home to ourselves. Where is one of us who in his daily walk can say that he is "satisfied?" The word itself is fraught with suggestion of the future or memories of the past. It is not of the present—a potent and important fact, that has spurred humanity to high accomplishments; to high ideals; to the performance of great things.

"Satisfaction guaranteed" may be a delusion and a snare—but it is the power that moves the world.—Tel egram.

International Arbitration

There seems good grounds for the belief that there has been a real growth among the civilized nations of a sentiment which will permit a gradual substitution of other methods than the method of war in the settlement of disputes. It is not pretended that as yet we are near a position in which it will be possible wholly to prevent war, or that a just regard for national interest and honor will in all cases permit of the settlement of international disputes by arbitration; but by a mixture of prudence and firmness with wisdom we think it is possible to do away with much of the provocation and excuse for war, and at least in many cases to substitute some other and more rational method for the settlement of disputes. The Hague court offers so good an example or what can be done in the direction of such settlement that it should be encouraged in every way.

Further steps should be taken. In President McKinley's annual message of December 5, 1898, he made the following recommendation:

"The experience of the last year bring forcibly home to us a sense of the burdens and the waste of war. We desire, in common with most civilized nations, to reduce to the lowest possible point the damage sustained in time of war by peaceable trade and commerce. It is true we may suffer in such cases less than other communities, but all nations are damaged more or less by the state of uneasiness and apprehension into which an outbreak of hostilities throws the entire commercial world. It should be our object, therefore, to minimize, so far as practicable, this inevitable loss and disturbance. This purpose can probably best be accomplished by an international agreement as to regard all private property at sea as exempt from capture or destruction by the forces of belligerent powers. The United States Government has for many years advocated this humane and beneficent principle, and is now in a position to recommend it to other powers without the imputation of selfish motives. I therefore suggest for your consideration that the Executive be authorized to correspond with the governments of the principal maritime powers with a view of incorporating into the permanent law of civilized nations the principle of the exemption of all private property at sea, not contraband of war, from capture or destruction by belligerent powers."

I cordially renew this recommendation.

The Supreme Court, speaking on December 11, 1899, through Peckham, J., said:

"It is, we think, historically accurate to say that this Government has always been, in its views, among the most advanced of the governments of the world in favor of mitigating, as to all noncombatants, the hardships and horrors of war. To accomplish that object it has always advocated those rules which would in most cases do away with the right to capture the private property of an enemy on the high seas."

MATTER OF HUMANITY AND MORALS.

I advocate this as a matter of humanity and morals. It is anarchistic when private property is respected on land that it should not be respected at sea. Moreover, it should be borne in mind that shipping represents, internationally speaking, a much more generalized species of private property than is the case with ordinary property on land—that is, property found at sea is much less apt than is the case with property on land really to belong to any one nation. Under the modern system of corporate ownership the flag of a vessel often differs from the flag which would mark the nationality of the real ownership and money control of the vessel; and the cargo may belong to individuals of yet a different nationality. Much American capital is now invested in foreign ships; and among foreign nations it often happens that the capital of one is largely invested in the shipping of another. Furthermore, as a practicable matter, it may be mentioned that while commerce-destruors may cause serious loss and great annoyance, it can never be more than a subsidiary factor in bringing to terms a resolute foe. This is now well recognized by all of our naval experts. The fighting ship, not the commerce destroyer, is the vessel whose feats add renown to a nation's history, and establish her place among the great powers of the world.

Last year the Interparliamentary Union for International Arbitration met at Vienna, six hundred members of the different Legislatures of civilized countries attending. It was provided that the next meeting should be in 1904 at St. Louis subject to our Congress extending an invitation. Like The Hague Tribunal, this Interparliamentary Union is one of the forces tending towards peace among the nations of the earth, and it is entitled to our support. I trust the invitation can be extended.

One hundred and sixty thousand persons are employed by the United States in connection with the postal service. Fourteen of these are implicated in the frauds described by the Bristow report. Perhaps the Post office department isn't so dishonest after all; at any rate we can still continue with safety to mail our letters.

The labor unions oppose the militia because it is sometimes used against striking workmen. Many Southerners oppose it because when they enter the service of the United States at army maneuvers, they are called "Country's Saviors" when the drums began to roll in war.

Would quickly leave you, if you used Dr. King's New Life Pills. Thousands of sufferers have proved their matchless merit for Sick and Nervous Headaches. They make pure blood and build up your health. Only 25 cents, money back if not cured. Sold by R. S. Knowlton, Druggist.

The Southern Oregon State Normal School begins this year's work September 15th. A large working library has been added; the physical and chemical laboratory has been fully equipped; a new gymnasium building is being erected, and a large and handsome school building is nearing completion. The school grounds are beautiful and picturesque. The health conditions are of the best; the social environment is pure and stimulating; the course of study has been strengthened and made more practical. The faculty has been increased in number and the school is now equipped to do work of the highest order. This school belongs to Southern Oregon. It desires and merits the patronage of the people of this great section. For catalogue address.

RECTOR OF ST. LUKE'S, Ashburnham, Ontario, Tests New to the Good Qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Ashburnham, Ont., April 18, 1903.

—I think it is only right that I should tell you what a wonderful effect Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has produced. The day before Easter I was so distressed with a cough that I did not think to be able to take any duties the next day, as my voice was almost choked by the cough. The same day I received an order from you for a bottle of your Cough Remedy. I at once procured a sample bottle, and took about three doses of the medicine. To my great relief the cough and cold had completely disappeared and I was able to preach three times on Easter Day. I know that this rapid and effective cure was due to your Cough Remedy. I make this testimonial without solicitation, being thankful to have found such a Godsent remedy. Respectfully yours,

E. A. LANGFORD, M. A., Rector of St. Luke's Church. To Chamberlain Medicine Co. This remedy is for sale by R. S. Knowlton.
