Three Gentlemen, J. D. Edwards, of Grants Pass, Lem Parker, of Portland, and C. R. Snell, of Medford, passed through town Thursday on their way to Bandon, taking a look at our section of the county. They seemed very well pleased with the general appearance of the county, but had certainly heard some terribly overdrawn stories about our coal. Mr. Snell was here and taught a term or so of school about thirteen years ago.
Warren Laird, head sawyer at Johnson's mill, had the misfortune to get his right hand badly hurt on Thursday. He was at his post of duty and a large log was on the sawsaw carriage being sawed upon, and another was being hauled up the chute which struck the one which the saw saw was in, forcing it against the saw so heavily of to break it loose at the top. Mr. Laird reached to the lever to reverse the carriage when a large casting, the clamp which held the upper end of the saw in place, and which had been broken loose, fell, catching his hand on top of the lever, inflicting a very severe bruise and dislocating the joint at the base of the thumb. He will doubtless be off duty for several days.
